OIL TAX BREAK PROFITS ITS SENATE CHAMPION

By JOHN S. LANG
Associated Press Writer

BATON ROUGE, La. — Sen. Russell B. Long has collected at least $329,151 in oil royalties since 1964 which has been free of federal income taxes because of the 27½ per cent depletion allowance he now is defending in Congress.

This income is the tax-sheltered portion of the $1,196,915 which Louisiana Mineral Board records show Long has received during the past 5½ years for his interests in four state oil and gas leases.

The Senate Finance Committee, headed by Long, currently is considering a House-passed tax bill cutting the depletion allowance to 20 per cent. Under present law, 27½ per cent of gross income from oil, gas and other minerals is exempt from federal income taxes.

While presiding over Finance Committee hearings last week, Long agreed with oil industry witnesses who argued that reducing the depletion allowance "would be a breach of faith by Congress."

The Louisiana Democrat, who has been identified with the oil industry since he came to the Senate two decades ago, describes himself as a "very small independent" in a field dominated by giant firms.

"Most of my income is from oil and gas," Long said in an interview.

There is no ban against members of Congress having such financial holdings, and Long said, "I don't regard it as any conflict of interest."

"A long time ago I became convinced that if you have financial interests completely parallel to your state, then you have no problem," he said. "My state produces more oil and gas per acre than any other state in the Union. If I didn't represent the oil and gas industry, I wouldn't represent the State of Louisiana."

The senator said his oil interests have been "an issue in more than one campaign" and added: "I've never withheld from anyone that I've inherited and participated in wells."

Long said he last drilled for oil five years ago and ended up with a dry hole. "It hurt me sufficiently," he said. "I haven't been able to participate since that time."

Records here, however, disclose that since 1964 Long has received the $1.2 million as overriding royalties on four tracts leased by the state. An individual who holds an overriding royalty does not share the costs of finding and pumping oil from the lease.

Applying the 27½ per cent depletion allowance to this $1.2 million yields $329,151 which has been free from the bite of federal income taxes.

Besides these four state leases, Louisiana records indicate the senator has an

Seal Beach Man Arrested on Smuggling Charge

A Seal Beach man was nabbed aboard his cruiser at sea by agents of Operation Intercept, the air-sea-land effort to smash border marijuana smuggling, and was being held in San Diego County Jail Saturday night.

Marijuana and pills litter Tijuana streets near Operation Intercept inspection station. See story, Page A-4.

Customs officers confiscated quantities of dangerous drugs, heroin and marijuana — including the first marijuana packages with brand labels.

Booked on a federal charge of marijuana smuggling was William Joseph Lenahan, 27, who gave his address as "various, depending on where the boat is docked." Local police agencies, whose records show previous traffic warrants, report a pre-

Deny Link of Jurist to Baker

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A White House investigator Saturday issued a strong denial that Judge Clement F. Haynsworth was involved in business dealings with Bobby Baker, controversial former Senate aide.

Clark R. Mollenhoff, President Nixon's deputy counsel, said he conducted an inquiry, including interviews with Haynsworth, into reports that Haynsworth and Baker had bought stock in the same companies.

Mollenhoff said, "There is not one scintilla of evidence that Judge Haynsworth has ever been involved in any illegal, unethical, or even questionable transaction with Robert G. Baker."

Mollenhoff said he had mailed the White House memorandum to "certain interested Senators" who are involved in current Senate hearings on Haynsworth's nominations to the Supreme Court seat vacated by Abe Fortas after disclosures of his business dealings.

MOLLENHOFF said Haynsworth had only three conversations with Baker

Q. I would like to put an antique finish on my baby's crib, but I have heard that paint containing lead should not be used on children's furniture. Is this true? If so, are there any antique kits available that do not contain lead? Mrs. B.W.H.

A. Since babies have a tendency to gnaw on their cribs, paint containing lead could poison the child, according to Dr. Irving Litwack, director of the Long Beach Heath Department. Non-toxic paints, containing no lead, are safe to use on children's furniture. In most antique kits, the undercoat paint contains lead, but you can substitute a non-toxic paint for the undercoat and then apply the antique glaze and varnish which contain no lead. Standard Brands Paint Co., 2401 Long Beach Blvd., sells the antique kit ingredients separately as well as a variety of non-toxic undercoat paints. Charles Bradley, a salesman for the store, said he will be glad to give you instructions on how to antique the crib using non-toxic paints.

Here to Help

Q. My father is a semi-invalid with one useless arm. He does not need to earn money, but would like to spend some time doing volunteer work. Can you suggest some place where he could stuff envelopes, type, or answer the phone. J.F., Long Beach.

A. Your father, and anyone else in Long Beach interested in volunteer work, should call the Community Volunteer Office of the United Way-United Crusade between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. at 426-7171. The office serves as a clearing house for volunteers in 125 different agencies in the Long Beach area, and coordinates volunteer work for schools, Head Start, neighborhood centers, tutoring services, hospitals, immunization clinics, and dozens of other activities. According to volunteers' coordinator La Verne Tucker, there also are seasonal programs that need help — such as a Halloween Carnival being planned by the City Recreation Department and Tuberculosis Christmas Seal mailing. She said the United Way tries to clear all volunteers through her office, so that workers can be assigned where they will do the most good.

On the Level

Q. We bought a mobile home from Foremost Motors Inc. in Compton in June. They have been out since then to level it, but it's worse now than it was, and we can't seem to get anyone out here to take care of it. Also, when we bought the coach, there were two shutters missing from the front windows. The manufacturer, International Mobile Homes of California, promised to replace them, but we just can't get any satisfaction. Can ACTION LINE help? J.S., Cypress.

A. Frank DeMille, Foremost salesman who sold you the coach, said they have been out three times already to level your home. He promised to send a serviceman out one final time. He explained that your trailer park is built on soft fill ground which keeps settling. He also agreed to go to the manufacturer himself and pick up your shutters.

Welfare Lien

RELEASE ON BAIL DEMANDED

Half-Million in Teamsters Back Drive to Free Hoffa

By BILL HOMER
Staff Writer

A nationwide effort to secure release on bail for imprisoned Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa was under way Saturday by an organization of more than a half-million of the union's "rank-and-file" members.

Hoffa, 56, is serving an eight-year sentence at the Lewisburg, Pa., Federal Penitentiary while appealing the 1964 jury tampering conviction that sent him to prison.

Formation of the "Free Hoffa Committee," which seeks the Teamster chief's release pending final outcome of the appeal, was disclosed by Robert Morgan, a Los Angeles attorney who is serving as the committee's chief counsel and western states chairman.

In an interview at the committee's local offices, 15217 S. Atlantic Ave., Compton, Morgan, who specializes in constitutional law, said the committee officially began operating in 32 major American cities Friday.

Morgan told The Independent, Press-Telegram he will present a motion in Chattanooga, Tenn., U.S. District Court Nov. 4 that bail be granted Hoffa.

The Teamsters president could be released from custody by mid-April if Judge Frank W. Wilson, who will consider the motion, grants bail, Morgan said.

The U.S. Parole Board Thursday denied parole to Hoffa, who would have become eligible to be freed Nov. 6 after serving one third of his sentence. The union leader was imprisoned March 7, 1967.

The board gave no reason for turning down Hoffa's bid for freedom, but Morgan indicated denial of parole probably was made because of the appeal of Hoffa's conviction. Parole usually is not granted until all appeals have been concluded, Morgan said.

Morgan said the motion to be presented to Judge Wilson is based on Section Two, Rule 46, of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, which states persons convicted of crimes can be released on bail pending final disposition of their cases, including appeals.

"We feel (Hoffa) will be successful (in appealing his conviction), but in the meantime we believe he has the vested right to bail," Morgan said.

The attorney said he presented a similar bail petition to Judge Wilson Aug. 27, but that no action was taken because Hoffa's chief legal counsel, Morris Shenker, objected to the motion.

Morgan said he doesn't know why Shenker made the objection, but went on to explain, "There are certain members of the (union's) rank-and-file who believe there may be a power play (under way by some members of the present Teamsters leadership) to have Hoffa's position with the union weakened by not having him out on bail."

While Shenker previously sought bail for Hoffa, Morgan claimed he did so under the wrong section of Rule 46 — a section that deals with persons not standing convicted.

Judge Wilson had turned down Shenker's bail request, since Hoffa already had been convicted, said Morgan, who also told this newspaper Shenker has since failed to seek bail for Hoffa under the applicable section of Rule 46.

"Don't ask me why," Morgan said. "All I know is that a lot of rank-and-file Teamsters are asking 'Why isn't Jimmy Hoffa free on bail'

"If Hoffa is released and there's a very good chance he will be — I'm sure he'll resume his position as active president (of the Teamsters) and that he'll participate (in up-coming contract negotiations) for the benefit of (the union's) members."

Morgan said contract negotiations between the un-

Hurricane Inga Bats Her Eye at Bermuda

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Inga, her winds peaking at 90 miles an hour, crawled slowly up the Atlantic Saturday on a course that could send gale winds whistling across Bermuda.

Centered 225 miles south of the British island, the hurricane was moving northward at five miles an hour but was forecast to curve toward the northeast. The eye was expected to pass less than 100 miles southeast of Bermuda during the night.

No Denial of News Dispatch

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida White House pointedly declined to deny Saturday a report of secret contacts between Washington and the new leadership in Hanoi.

And President Nixon was described as engaged in very thorough discussions of the Vietnam situation over the weekend here with his special adviser on national security affairs, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger.

These reactions from presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler left open the possibility that the United States might be making some new approach to the North Vietnamese since the death of Ho Chi Minh.

ZIEGLER was asked about a Washington dispatch from James McCartney of the Knight newspaper chain that the Nixon administration has made secret contact with the North Vietnamese regime to seek a negotiated settlement of the war and that this was directly related to recent Administration efforts to get a moratorium on Vietnam war criticism.

"We have made it our position not to discuss one way or another whether or not there are discussions with the other side outside of the public sessions in Paris," Ziegler said.

He added, "We have al-

Art Linkletter's Daughter Plunges Six Stories, Dies

Combined News Services

A daughter of television personality Art Linkletter plunged to her death Saturday from the sixth floor of a plush West Hollywood apartment building, the sheriff's office said. Diane Linkletter, 21, was taken to a hospital where she died 7½ hours later, deputies said. She was Linkletter's youngest daughter.

"She had asked a friend over," said Sheriff's Lt. Norm Hamilton. "It was about 3 a.m., and she was very emotional."

Hamilton said, "The friend said she went over toward a window. He said he tried to grab her, but he couldn't hold her, and she went out."

Hamilton declined to release the friend's name. Deputies said they were investigating.

Linkletter and his wife have two other daughters and two sons.

On July 15, John Zweyer, 33, husband of Linkletter's daughter Dawn, shot himself to death in the yard of his Holywood home. The death was ruled a suicide.

HOPEFUL

Comedian Bob Hope arrived in Dallas in preparation for his Monday evening performance of "Roberta" at the Bob Hope Theater on the campus of Southern Methodist University.

Performance of the musical, originally done by Hope several years ago, will be taped and aired on national television.

Monday night's performance will be a $1,000-a-seat benefit for SMU.

Hope's entourage included John Davison, Michelle Lee and Janis Paige, who will also appear in "Roberta."

CIA POST

The State Department announced Saturday the appointment of a veteran officer of the Central Intelligence Agency as head of its bureau of intelligence and research.

He is Ray S. Cline, 51, at present listed as a special adviser to the American embassy in Bonn. The department said Cline is expected to take office about Nov. 1. He succeeds Thomas L. Hughes, who has been assigned to the U.S. embassy in London as a deputy chief of mission.

ROYAL VISIT

Britain's Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, flew into Bangkok Saturday for an overnight stay as the personal guests of King Bhumibol Adulyadej and Queen Sirikit of Thailand.

The king and queen entertained the British couple at a dinner party Saturday night at Chitlada Palace. They will take a boat trip today on the Chao Phya River.

FREEDOM

Communist China announced Saturday the release of Anthony Grey, the Peking correspondent of the British news agency Reuters, who had been under house arrest for more than two years. Grey reported that he was well and hoped to leave for England in three days.

A brief communique issued by the Communist Chinese foreign ministry said Grey, 31, had his "freedom of movement restored since the Hong Kong British authorities had already released all the patriotic Chinese journalists."

Grey was placed under house arrest July 21, 1967, in retaliation for the arrest, trial, conviction and imprisonment of leftist journalists in Hong Kong during a long siege of Communist-led terror that resulted in the death of 51 persons.

FBI POUNCES

Joseph (Joe Bananas) Bonanno, the exiled leader of the New York Mafia, and his bodyguard, were arrested Saturday at their homes in Tucson, Ariz., and charged with conspiring to manipulate the release of the former underworld boss of Arizona from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan.

Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation seized the 64-year-old Bonanno and his bodyguard, Peter Joseph Notaro, 53, in simultaneous raids. The two surrendered peaceably.

In affidavits filed with a United States commissioner, Bonanno and Notaro were accused of plotting to extort false testimony from a former Tucson police sergeant in an effort to obtain a new trial for Charles Joseph Battaglia, who was sentenced to 10 years in Leavenworth in 1967 in an extortion case.

Obtaining Battaglia's release, informants said, could have renewed Bonanno's standing in the underworld, from which he was ousted four years ago.

The charges filed against Bonanno and Notaro included conspiracy to obstruct justice, commit perjury, commit subornation of perjury, commit extortion and use interstate facilities to commit extortion.

CHOO CHOO

Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe drove a 90-mile-an-hour train part of the way to Naples Saturday and made three telephone calls from the train to the United States when he wasn't playing engineer on the run from Rome.

The telephone calls, first to the United States in Italian rail history, were to his daughter in Massachusetts, his own department in Washington and the Florida White House in Key Biscayne.

Chancellor Won't Prevent Red Prof From Teaching

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Chancellor Charles E. Young declined Saturday to take any action to prevent a woman Communist philosophy professor from teaching at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Young called a news conference to announce he supported Dr. Donald Kalish who assigned Angela Davis, admitted Communist and a Negro, to a teaching post despite action against her by the university Board of Regents.

BY A 14-6 VOTE Friday, the regents passed a resolution stating Miss Davis, 25, should not be given any teaching assignments. Young, however, said she would remain on the university payroll and could teach in a noncredit course.

Young told the news conference it would not have been proper of him "administratively" to change Kalish's assignment of Miss Davis to a teaching post.

Miss Davis has indicated she will be in the classroom ready to teach on schedule Monday.

"I believe we can operate within the resolution passed by the regents," Young said. "It is far less serious and damaging than I had feared."

Friend Shot, Young Man Kills Himself

LA PUENTE (CNS) — A young La Puente man apparently committed suicide early Saturday shortly after being questioned by sheriff's deputies about the shooting of a friend.

Steve Rader, 20, was standing in front of his home talking with deputies at 2:30 a.m. about the shooting of 13-year-old Glen Grabhorn when he reportedly told them he was cold and returned to the house for a sweater.

According to deputies, Rader walked through the house to the rear yard and shot himself in the head. He was taken to Hartland Hospital where he died at 5:30 a.m.

The deputies said Rader told them he accidentally shot the boy while the two were playing with Rader's pistol at Grabhorn's home. Grabhorn was in serious condition with a stomach wound.

QUESTIONS HICKEL

Senator Fears Oil Shale Giveaway

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., expressed a fear Saturday that the Department of the Interior might be trying to "give away" some western oil shale land.

A statement issued from the senator's office drew a prompt reply from Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel. "Nobody is going to give away oil shale or any other valuable mineral in our custody as long as I am Secretary of the Interior," Hickel said in a statement.

Hart said he had heard that Hickel was "considering dismissing" the practice of holding open hearings on sodium lease claims on oil shale land in the public domain and "granting the claims" of applicants represented by some of the country's most influential law firms.

President Nixon's former New York law firm, now Mudge, Rose, Guthrie & Alexander, represents one of the sodium lease claimants, known as Wolfe Joint Venture. Another claimant is the Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp.

Several western mining and development companies have sought to have claims on the oil shale land in Colorado, Wyoming and Utah validated on grounds that they seek dawsonite, a sodium-bearing rock, not oil shale.

The sodium involved in their claims is mixed with the oil shale. Under federal mineral law, sodium is subject to leasing but oil shale leasing is restricted.

By obtaining a sodium lease under routine procedures, an applicant would be gaining the valuable oil shale.

Thus, departmental lawyers under Hickel's predecessor, Stewart L. Udall, disputed the sodium lease claimants, who said that the claims were valid and had to be honored by the department. In 1968, under Udall the department remanded the case of Wolfe Joint Venture and seven other cases to the Bureau of Land Management in Denver, for hearings before a department examiner. The hearings were to determine whether Dawsonite could be recovered separately or was a part of oil shale and subject only to the oil shale leasing provisions of the Mineral Leasing Act.

Hart said that "if the sodium preference right leases are granted, the companies could acquire the valuable oil shale deposits by paying only the minimum royalties and without having to offer competitive bids."

Hart said that he had written Hickel on Aug. 1 "requesting information" on his intentions on the sodium lease claims. "The reply was not encouraging since it indicated the department is seriously considering dispensing with public hearings," Hart said.

LBJ Will Soon Publish a Book on Years in the White House

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Former President Lyndon Johnson said Saturday he would soon publish a book on the highlights of his years in the White House.

Johnson, with his wife, Lady Bird, said at a University of Texas luncheon the book, to be published by Holt-Rinehart Publishing Co., would be ready "soon" and would be the result of a lot of reminiscence and research.

"I'LL BE researching a good deal here at the University of Texas and shortly will finish my first book," the former president said. "All of the proceeds from this book, half a million dollars wil go to the University of Texas.

Johnson said he still reads newspapers but looks more at the best seller list than the front page.

"I no longer turn in the newspapers to look at the latest Gallup Poll," he said. "I turn to the best seller list to see who else has come out with a book. George Christian (Johnson's former press secretary) will soon be coming out with a book. I hear it will be entitled 'How a Christian Looks at Johnson'."

JOHNSON said his brother, Sam Houston Johnson, was writing a book and "my wife is working on three of them.

"Everybody's writing a book these days except my ranch manager," Johnson said. "He was elected the other day to head a local group called 'Get Johnson Back to Washington Quickly.'"

CSLB CHIEF IN DISFAVOR?

Job for Dr. McIntosh 'Just Won't Work'

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

Dr. Carl W. McIntosh, former president of California State College at Long Beach, is no longer expecting the reassignment he requested within the state college system.

He had hoped to take a system-level job where he could help bridge the distances and differences between college presidents, the state college chancellor and the Board of Trustees.

Dr. McIntosh, who announced his intent to resign as CSLB president Feb. 11 and requested reassignment "at the earliest date convenient," said he'd been told by state college officials that "it just isn't going to work out." No formal notification has arrived, he said.

"I'm not unhappy about it," he said. "I'll remain at CSLB until the end of October and then take a long vacation before making any future commitments."

In his resignation letter to Chancellor Dumke last spring, Dr. McIntosh—CSLB president for 10 years—said the college required "new leadership which can provide renewed vitality and energy."

"I am therefore requesting reassignment to some other position in which I may be of continuing service . . . I have served for 22 years in two different college presidencies and I believe I can make a worthwhile contribution in some other capacity also," his letter stated.

Dr. McIntosh indicated this week that he would have liked to have traveled to the state college system's widely-disparate colleges, preparing reports on specific campus problems and channeling his findings to the Board of Trustees.

"To give the trustees a better perspective would be a challenging task," he said. "Anyone who is a part of the regular administrative channels just doesn't have the time."

He said new methods of communication are needed in the state college system to make up for long distances and great differences between individual colleges.

"With the crisis management we've had in recent years, it's reasonable to assume that the focus of attention will be on whatever brushfire is raging at the moment," he said. "Perspective is often lost."

He said that when the trustees act to cure a problem on one campus, "they often assume the same medicine will be good for every college in the system."

System-wide action taken to cure a problem at San Francisco State, for example, could create new problems at widely divergent campuses such as CSLB, tiny Stainislaus State or far-north Humboldt State.

DR. CARL McINTOSH
'Not Unhappy About It'

"This isn't a condition the trustees create—or the college presidents—but it's partially because of unresolved tension between college autonomy and centralized administration.

He emphasized he wasn't calling for total local college autonomy, but said greater latitude is needed in areas such as budgeting.

"It's a myth that a line-item budget proposed two years in advance can be spent exactly as specified," he said.

Other CSLB administrators such as Dr. George Demos, former dean of students, have complained bitterly about lack of financial flexibility. Demos listed it as a major reason for his resignation last summer.

Dr. McIntosh stressed the importance of Trustees staying out of administrative decisions of individual colleges.

In May, 1968, Chancellor Dumke over-rode Dr. McIntosh's decision to allow a limited showing of controversial sculptures created by masters' candidate Bill Spater.

"I made the best case I could for a limited showing," Dr. McIntosh said. "But the trustees and the chancellor didn't accept my decision."

"I was asked to cancel the show. I said I would only cancel it if I were directed to. Chancellor Dumke reversed my decision and cancelled the showing."

Dumke's action touched off a series of campus demonstrations which climaxed in the arrest of 4 students and one teacher in or near the college administration building.

Dr. McIntosh said he didn't know if the Spater incident was a factor in Dumkes' failure to reassign him within the system.

"That would be a matter of speculation," he said.

He said Dumke had not requested him to cancel the Tactile Symposium held in the college's Gallery C this summer.

The Tactile Symposium —a maze of pitch-dark passageways in which visitors groped their way through by touch—"was the subject of a number of inquiries," Dr. McIntosh said.

The chancellor's office asked him to file a report on the Symposium after a sensationalistic article appeared on it in Time Magazine.

Dr. McIntosh said he'd be on the college administrative payroll until the end of October.

"I've been attempting to do some reports that will give the next president information about how we got here from there," he said.

"I don't want to intrude into forming new policies, but I can provide some background."

No Merger Near, Say 2 Airlines

NEW YORK (AP) — American Airlines said Saturday it has conducted merger talks with several airlines, including Western Airlines, but is not near any final decisions on merger.

"We have held discussions with several airlines," a spokesman said in response to merger reports. "Western being one of them, but we are no closer to a merger with Western than we are with anyone else.

"We will continue to discuss merger with several airlines," he said, "but we are nowhere near a final decision."

The most recent talks between American and Western took place a month to a month and a half ago, the spokesmen said.

A spokesman for Western had said there has been a great deal of speculation about merger, but added he was unaware of Western discussing merger with anyone.

Union Pushes Drive to Free Jimmy Hoffa

ion and a number of large trucking firms are scheduled to begin in about 90 days.

If Judge Wilson doesn't free Hoffa on bail, Morgan said the committee plans to take its case all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary. But once bail is granted, or the high court rules unfavorably, the committee plans to disband, he said.

Morgan also said a former Teamsters local president, Frank Saheen, of Philadelphia, is national leader of the committee, which will soon begin distribution of more than a million "Free Hoffa" bumper stickers to publicize its cause.

The committee, said Morgan, will not become involved in the appeal of Hoffa's conviction. Hoffa's present counsel "is well prepared" to carry the appeal through the courts, he said.

Hoffa, in addition to serving the eight-year jury tampering sentence, is under a concurrent five-year sentence for defrauding a Teamsters pension fund.

On March 24 of this year the Supreme Court ordered a new hearing in the jury tampering case to determine whether there had been illegal government wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping in securing evidence against Hoffa.

Judge Wilson refused Aug. 25 to release to Shenker portions of federal documents dealing with government eavesdropping of the Teamsters Union.

After studying the documents, the jurist ruled they had no bearing on Hoffa's bid for a new trial. Judge Wilson's decision was appealed to a higher federal court.

Heat and Wind Cause Havoc; More Due Today

Hot and gusty desert winds fanned grass fires, caused power failures in three counties, and unleashed air, land and sea dangers Saturday in the Southland.

As the Santa Ana condition of winds and high temperatures — in the 80s — will continue today skies will be generally sunny and usually smog-laden areas are expected to be mainly clear.

More than 300 men battled three grass and brush fires in Los Angeles County Saturday. No property damage or injuries were reported.

Along the coast, small craft warnings were hoisted from Port Hueneme to Oceanside for localized northeast winds of 20 to 30 knots near coastal canyons. The warnings were to remain displayed overnight and today.

Winds caused dangerous flying conditions from Saugus to San Bernardino, the Federal Aviation Administration warned pilots of light planes.

From the California Highway Patrol came hazardous road condition warnings for the San Bernardino Freeway between Ontario and Fontana and for Interstate 15 from San Bernardino to Cajon Pass.

Blowing dust and sand reduced road visibility to near zero in some spots, the CHP reported.

In parts of Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties, gusts of more than 50 miles an hour Saturday caused a series of power failures. In Westminster, the winds twisted a conductor on a power pole. More than 2,000 homes were without power for nearly an hour as a result.

On Saturday, fire consumed 25 to 50 acres along White Canyon Road in the Saugus area. Another blaze blackened 50 acres along Interstate 5 near Newhall. A third fire in the Big Tujunga Canyon area was confined to four acres.

In Long Beach Saturday, the winds pushed temperatures upward, until a high of 84 degrees was reached downtown. Today is expected to be equally hot or hotter — if the winds are stronger.

The Santa Ana winds follow a reverse pattern from the usual Southern California winds, blowing from deserts and mountains through canyons to the coast. Usually, winds come in from the ocean. The reverse condition, the Santa Ana, is common in fall.

Firebomb Tossed in ROTC Quarters

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police sought three men who were seen running from the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps office at Columbia University Saturday shortly after the building was slightly damaged by a firebomb.

No one was injured in the predawn blast. Witnesses said one of the three men carried a pipe which may have been used to break a window through which the firebomb was thrown.

SCORES OF VEHICLES BREAK DOWN UNDER BROILING SUN

Pot Leaves, Pills Tossed Out of Waiting Cars at 'Intercept'

By BILL GAGNON
Staff Writer

The hot sun beat down on scores of vehicles stalled on the Mexican side of the border inspection station at San Ysidro, south of San Diego.

There, in the midst of the traffic jam and sweltering I sat awaiting my turn to cross into the United States.

Suddenly, my wife nudged me, motioning to a pickup truck parked in the lane alongside us and said, "take a look at that!"

Turning my head I saw the driver get out, glance furtively about and quickly toss a brown paper sack out of sight under his truck.

WHAT THE BAG contained is anybody's guess. But more than likely it was marijuana or some other contraband the truck driver didn't want custom agents to find in his possession.

In all directions around me I could see steam spewing from radiators in overheated cars that couldn't take the punishment meted out by the broiling hot sun.

Several cars stalled and some motorists wore down the batteries in their vehicles in unsuccessful attempts to re-start them.

However, walking between rows of cars and trucks was an enterprising Mexican national pulling a small, red, child's 4-wheel cart containing two new storage bateries, jumper cables and a bottle of distilled water.

This individual was doing a brisk business renting his services to stalled motorists, who paid him to re-start their cars.

The asphalt-covered approach lanes to the inspection station were covered with debris cast out of cars and trucks by motorists who apparently care little for anti-litter laws.

IT DIDN'T take an expert on narcotics to spot "pot" leaves, pep pills and other types of drug capsules and pills scattered here-and-there among the litter of beer cans, bottles, paper and other assorted trash.

As I inched my car forward in line, I glanced off to one side and saw a pair of border patrolmen sitting in a jeep high on a hilltop near thenational boundary.

One of the patrolmen was scanning the area with binoculars, apparently watching for anyone attempting to cross the border illegally on foot.

To while away the time, I got out of my car and walked over to another car and struck up a conversation with the driver who I found to be John Wirta of Chula Vista.

Wirta, a service representative of the National Cash Register Co., told me he crosses the border everyday on business.

"This is going to turn into an economic disaster for these people down here," Wirta predicted, motioning towards grimy and shabby Tijuana.

". . . The ones who are really getting hurt," he added, "are the 'green card' holders (Mexican nationals with permits to work in the United States)."

WIRTA WENT on to explain that "Operation Intercept" was causing delays up to three hours in crossing the border which, of course, resulted in many of the green card holders showing up late for work.

Motorist Obliges by Helping With Suitcase

"I've talked to a lot of employers," Wirta said, "who are getting sick and tired of their help being late and they are threatening to fire the tardy ones."

Wirta said he is unable to get technical help from San Diego to go below the border to work on NCR equipment because they don't want to get involved in the long delay.

"I used to be able to drive to San Diego from Tijuana, pick up a replacement part and return in an hour," Wirta said. "But now it takes me three hours or more."

However, despite the trouble it's causing him Wirta said he agrees with the concept of Intercept "if it stops those kids from getting their hands on illegal drugs. Its a darn shame what was happening here before — all those kids buying that junk (illegal drugs. It's a darn ing candy."

". . . If this sort of thing will stop this nonsense, well, then I'm for it," he added.

WALKING BACK to my car I found that my wife had moved it forward a good three car lengths while I was talking to Wirta. Since she was doing so well, I went over to another car driven by Cecil Kallberg of Bonita to get his reaction to the delay. And it wasn't long in coming.

"The delay has nothing to do with it if it stops the drug traffic," Kallberg declared, "it is well worth the wait."

A couple of cars to the rear, I talked to Jose Barberra of Mexico City, a student at the University of California in San Diego.

Barberra shrugged his shoulders when I asked his opinion of the delay and said, "I don't understand it. I don't think it's going to stop people from using drugs; they'll just go to other things."

Although its his first trip across the border since Operation Intercept went into effect, Barberra said he didn't mind the delay "too much."

WALKING AROUND the waiting cars I wasn't having too much luck in finding one with out-of-state license plates until I happened upon Mike W. White and his family who are from Denver, Colo.

Mike, who is in business for himself, was returning from a buying trip in Mexico where he had bought a load of statues which were packed in a house trailer he was pulling.

As far as Operation Intercept was concerned Mike said he "didn't think too much of it.

"I don't think the narcotic smugglers are stupid enough to try and bring the stuff through here," Mike said. "But I'll bet they are getting it across in other places."

Glancing apprehensively at the trailer attached to his car Mike sighed and said "I sure do hope I don't have to unload it to make them (border guards happy."

He didn't.

Just about everyone I talked to was taking the delay in stride and said they approved of it if it was slowing down the traffic in illegal narcotics and drugs in crossing the border.

I FOUND THAT time had gone by rather well while I was talking to others and now it was my turn to cross over.

I drove up alongside a guard in a blue uniform who asked "what country ya from?". . . "The U.S.", I answered. . . "Where do ya live? . . . "California," I replied.

During the course of this sparkling dialogue, the middle-aged guard was giving the interior of my car the once over and darting looks at me that gave me the feeling I should break down and confess to something — anything . . . but confess.

"How much did ya spend in Mexico," he demanded. . . "tha. t h a, three dollars and fifty cents." I stammered . . . "Humpf," he snorted, then ordered me to open the engine hood.

Taking a brief look inside, and finding the engine still there, he then decided I should show him the interior of the trunk.

Switching off the ignition, I grabbed the keys, climbed out and unlocked the trunk. Again, he took a quick look, then seemed disappointed at not finding any hidden contraband.

With obvious reluctance, he waved me through — an hour and twenty-five minutes after I got into line.

I HAD NOTICED some motorists were not as fortunate in getting the nod from the border guards. They were directed to another area where a dozen or so men in coveralls, and gloves, with pistols and handcuffs strapped on their hips were waiting.

Parking my car well within the American side of the border, I walked back to where the coverall-clad men were going over cars with a fine-tooth comb.

Using special mirrors they inspected the undercarriage of suspect vehicles, removed hub caps and checked fenders and bumpers for hidden contraband.

Inside the vehicles, they removed door panels, lifted floor mats, checked behind the dashboard, inside the steering column, under and inside seats, headliner and the like, leaving nothing undone.

While this was in progress, other inspectors closely interrogated occupants of the vehicles under suspicion.

Later, I went inside the border administrative offices where I talked with the captain in charge (who didn't wish to be identified) who explained they were using a "two-minute" preliminary search system for all vehicles entering the country.

"If, for one reason or another, a guard thinks a further check should be made," the captain said, "the driver is directed over here to the secondary search zone which means, perhaps another delay of 30 minutes or more."

A WEEK OR SO ago, the captain told me, an inspector became suspicious when examining the undercarriage of a suspect car with a mirror, he noticed two shiny new bolts in the strap securing the gas tank.

Closer inspection led to the discovery of a false gasoline tank, inside which was stashed a load of marijuana, the captain said.

"The phony gas tank gimmick is an old, tired and worn-out trick," said the captain, "and a smuggler has to do better than this if he is going to slip something by my men."

While talking to the captain in his office, I looked through an open doorway into another room and there saw a young and attractive lady I had observed earlier in a Tijuana curio shop.

When I saw the girl earlier — dressed in moderate "hippie-type" clothing — she was with a couple of young men, one of whom was obviously quite sick.

It seems that the young lady and her companions were detained crossing the border back into this country when an inspector discovered them with a quantity of illegal drugs in their possession.

IT SUDDENLY dawned on me that the young man that was sick was an apparent narcotic addict suffering withdrawal who had to settle for a drug less powerful because of the border "heat."

Looking over statistics given me by the captain I found that about one in every 12 cars entering this country at San Ysidro were detained for the 30-minute secondary inspection.

Traffic also has diminished to about a third of the normal amount crossing the border at this point, due to the delays which ranged from one to four and a half hours.

Canny Caliente Race Track officials, however, have arranged free taxi-cab service for fans who leave their personal vehicles parked on the American side of the border.

After the races they are transported back to the broder crossing — again by taxi without charge — and then walk back through customs inspection with only a slight delay.

"We're only doing the kind of job now that we were supposed to have been doing all along," the captain said, commenting on Operation Intercept.

". . . Years ago we operated this way but later we were forced to limit our inspections to a mimimum because of a shortage of manpower," he said.

Now, with his beefed up staff, the captain said they are able to crack-down on inspections and once again its "business as usual."

Take it from one who knows, the wait isn't bad at all — providing you have a patient wife, a good air conditioner in your car, plenty of gasoline, a goodly supply of food and drink and a lot of time to kill.

Custom Agents Seize Cargo of Pot

vious address in the 100 block of 11th Street.

Lenahan is to appear in federal court Monday. No bail has been set for him.

U.S. CUSTOMS officials said officers aboard a Coast Guard vessel off Mexico observed a 26-foot power cruiser heading north in the pre-dawn darkness Saturday.

The officers overtook the boat and boarded after it had reached U.S. waters. Lenahan was arrested and taken ashore to San Diego.

A search of the cruiser — purchased by Lenahan June 3, 1960 — turned up 154 pounds of marijuana in 41 packages; 35 capsules of a substance believed to be LSD; 1,000 orange-colored pills with oriental markings in a sealed bag and also possibly LSD; 10 pipes of the type used for smoking marijuana or hashish, and a half pound of a tan powder believed to be heroin.

Customs officers said the packages of marijuana carried labels depicting a Mexican man with dollars in one hand and pesos in the other, standing next to a marijuana plant.

The brand name was "El Comparador" — "the buyer" in English — and the packages bore the slogan, "No Hay Mejor" — meaning, none better.

c/o N. VIET DELEGATION

PW's Kin Told 'Write to Paris'

PARIS (UPI) — North Vietnamese diplomats told six relatives of American servicemen missing or imprisoned in Vietnam that it was not necessary for them and others to come here to learn the fates of their husbands and sons.

According to a member of the American group, Thomas Swain, the diplomats said American families could receive the same information simply by writing to the Hanoi delegation in Paris.

Swain said that Xuan Oanh, a member of the North Vietnamese delegation to the peace talks, told them that the letters should include all details possible about the missing relative and be sent to the North Vietnamese delegation at 8 Avenue General Leclerc, Choisy - le - Roi, Paris.

He told a news conference that Oanh instructed that the details should include the type of plane a missing relative was flying when downed, the base from which he was flying when downed, and the target of his mission.

beneficiaries. Why would they do this? H.B., Long Beach.

A. It is entirely possible that the Los Angeles County Bureau of Resources and Collections could place a lien on your insurance policy. Your MediCal card should show "your share of the cost" of medical expenses in a space so designated. This figure is arrived at by calculations based on your regular income and any real property or other assets you have. You are responsible for paying this share. A lien will be placed on your assets — in your case, probably your life insurance policy — for any portion of the "your share of the cost" figure unpaid during your life. The rest of your estate will be divided among your beneficiaries according to the terms of your will. The Department of Public Social Services is obligated by law to issue a MediCal card to persons over 65 but is not required to pay medical expenses which they can afford.

Clean Corner

Q. Can ACTION LINE find out who is responsible for cleaning the southwest corner of Clark Avenue and Spring Street? It looks like a dump, and is an eyesore for people arriving at our airport. Mrs. F.A.B., Long Beach.

A. The City of Long Beach now is leveling the site and removing the concrete blocks which used to be part of the Nike base relocated there, according to John Williams, assistant to the city manager. He added that the perimeter fence will be landscaped with trees to match the landscaping to the south of the intersection on Clark Avenue.

SOUND OFF!

I believe there should be theaters where adults can go to see "adult" films if they so desire, but I have always believed that drive-in theaters were designed for family entertainment — where you could pile the kids in the car and go to a movie without having to worry about a babysitter. For years, it has been sort of a ritual for our family to go to a drive-in movie on Saturday night. We even take the dogs and they, also, obviously look forward to it every week. Last weekend there was not a single theater — drive-in or walk-in — in Long Beach that had a program rated as being suitable for a general audience. So we stayed home. The movie industry has made a big pitch against pay-TV, but from now on I'm going to be an advocate of it. Not that pay-TV interests me but that the competition just might wake up the film makers and theater operators to the realization that there is a market for family entertainment. J.B., Long Beach.

New Try for Peace Reported

ways said we will watch very carefully every development in South Vietnam and we are doing that in this case." He reported this same answer when asked about the meaning of the latest lull in Vietnam fighting.

McCartney's story said the secret contacts were being made to see if the new regime might be more receptive to negotiating a peace settlement than Ho Chi Minh had been.

IT ALSO SAID Administration officials were searching for the meaning of the current battlefield lull. One State Department official was quoted as saying "there is no question but that if the lull continues it could be full justification for new withdrawals of U.S. troops."

Ziegler was asked, too, about the accuracy of a comment, from Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., that the Nixon Administration might announce withdrawal of another 40,000 men by the end of the year.

To this, the press secretary cited the oft-repeated three-point criteria on which he said Nixon will make decisions on any further troop withdrawals.

They are the level of enemy activity, the ability of the South Vietnamese to replace U.S. troops, and the progress of peace talks in Paris.

ZIEGLER ALSO said Nixon and Kissinger had been "discussing Vietnam very thoroughly here in Key Biscayne." He said the President took similar opportunities during his visits to Camp David in the Catoctin Mountains of Maryland for extensive Vietnam discussions.

Asked if he was hopeful on developments in Vietnam, Ziegler replied simply, "We watch these things very carefully."

Nixon was at his Florida vacation home for a three-day weekend that included sessions with other staff members. He also was relaxing in the sun, swimming and boating.

He was expected to return to Washington today.

The White House announced appointment of Dr. S. Paul Ehrlich Jr., of Bailey's Crossroads, Va., as a representative on the executive board of the World Health Organization.

Senate Oil Champion Long Gains From Depletion Aid

interest in at least seven private leases.

Royalty payments from private leases are not disclosed in public records.

Long also is listed as one of three trustees on family trusts which, according to records, have collected $961,443 for holdings, in state leases in 5½ years.

THE SENATOR'S personal overriding interest on the four state leases is listed as .0015625 of the gross income. The figure seems small, but the leases are so lucrative that this percentage earned Long $235,095 in royalties in the last fiscal year alone — more than five times his $42,500 annual salary as a senator.

The tax-free portion of last fiscal year's royaltie — $64,651 — was in itself greater than his Senate salary.

In addition to his overriding interests in the four state leases, records show Long has working interests in three other state leases — meaning he has to share in the expenses of searching for and producing oil from the tracts. These three leases are less lucrative, with one grossing him only $3,819 since 1964.

ALTOGETHER, the seven state leases grossed Long and others with interests in them $766,474,707 in the last 5½ years. The depletion allowance applied to that figure discloses $210,787,092 was free of federal income taxes.

Mineral Board Chairman Thomas Leigh refused to allow a reporter to inspect all state lease records. He was courteous but firm:

"My lawyer says I've got to let you see our records on Lease 340 and any others you know and ask for. But I'm not just going to open my books and make them a happy hunting ground. Maybe I've got to legally, but as a matter of procedure, I'm not going to do it now."

STATE LEASE 340, to which Leigh referred, rambles for 20 miles along the Louisiana coastline. It is at least 50 times bigger than any other state leases, which generally consist of 5,000 acres.

Besides being the biggest, Lease 340 is one of the most productive in Louisiana. Long's royalties from this lease since 1964 have totaled $666,136, records disclose.

SEN. RUSSELL LONG
'Interests Parallel to State'

The federal government also has been active in leasing tracts off the Louisiana coast. But an Interior Department spokesman said "most of our records do not reflect what payments might be made in overriding royalties from the companies to individuals."

LONG'S name on the state leases first appears in records dated Feb. 1, 1951, about the time he and other then-listed stockholders dissolved the Independent Oil & Gas Co. Inc., originally known as the Win or Lose Corp.

Win or Lose, involved in controversy and scandal throughout the five years in the 1950s during which it carried that name, was known in the state as the company of Huey P. Long — governor, senator, the "Kingfish" of Louisiana politics and the father of Russell Long.

Russell Long, in the interview, said he inherited the bulk of his oil holdings from his father, who was assassinated in 1935.

Since his own election to the Senate in 1948, Long has been a constant champion of oil industry causes.

Gen. Wheeler in Viet, Says Lull Temporary

SAIGON (UPI) — Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, arrived Saturday for a new assessment of the Vietnam war and said the current battle lull is only temporary. He predicted that Communist forces will launch a winter campaign.

Speaking at a planeside news conference at Tan Son Nhut Airport, Wheeler said the purpose of his four-day mission was to determine the possibility of withdrawing more American troops beyond the 60,000 who will have left the war zone by Dec. 15.

Wheeler said President Nixon has established three criteria for pulling more U.S. fighting men out of the war zone: progress at the Paris peace talks, a decrease in the level of violence in Vietnam and improvement in the efficiency of South Vietnam' armed forces.

"I'm here to look into the latter two—violence and Vietnamization," Wheeler said. He declined to say if he would make any specific proposals for further reductions in the 500,000-man American force.

"This is something the President will have to decide later," Wheeler said.

Two Americans were reported killed and three wounded Saturday in a running battle between U.S. Paratroopers and a North Vietnamese-Viet Cong force along the South Vietnamese coast. A U.S. helicopter was shot down in the fighting.

The action 315 miles northeast of Saigon near Bong Son involved troops of the U.S. Army's 173rd Airborne Brigade who reported killing two of the Communists before 12 others, including two wounded soldiers, surrendered.

High Court Opens With a Vacancy

By Charlotte G. Moulton

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court begins its 1969-70 term Monday with a Nixon-appointed chief justice, a vacant chair and a challenge to carve out new legal frontiers in the fields of welfare and treatment of juveniles.

It also faces the issues of civil dissent and racial unrest, criminal procedures, obscenity, draft procedures, conscientious objectors to the Vietnam War and whether states may exempt church-owned real estate from taxation.

Because the Senate Judiciary Committee is taking such a long look at Clement F. Haynsworth, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger will be flanked by only seven colleagues when he opens court for the first time (10 a.m. EDT).

Related Story, Page A-15

BURGER SUCCEEDED Earl Warren as chief justice at the close of the 1968-69 term in June. Haynsworth is Nixon's choice to replace Abe Fortas, who stepped down from the bench because of his financial links with the family foundation of Louis E. Wolfson, a Florida financier convicted of selling unregistered securities.

Haynsworth has run into critical fire on grounds that he failed to disqualify himself from at least two cases in which he had a financial interest, while he was chief judge of the 4th U.S. Circuit court of Appeals.

He is expected ultimately to be confirmed, however, barring some new disclosure. But the delay by the judiciary group means he will not be on hand for the opening session.

The first meeting of the new term will be largely ceremonial anyway, consisting mainly of admitting attorneys to practice. Afterward, the court will start a week-long series of private conferences on about 600 appeals which have piled up during the summer recess.

On Oct. 13 the court will announce which cases are to be heard, meaning lower court decisions will prevail in the others. The court considers a case if four justices vote for a review.

Chief Justice Burger, who is considered more conservative than Warren on criminal matters and perhaps others, will be watched closely for any expression of views. But the court rarely makes public how divides or the question of accepting a case.

AN EXCEPTION may come on a crucial test case involving Mississippi school desegregation. Despite Negro protests, the Nixon administration won a delay in court-ordered desegregation in 30 of the state's school districts and the high court is expected to take some action on an appeal at its Oct. 13 session.

Arguments also will start that week on cases already accepted with Burger questioning attorneys from the bench. No opinions are expected until November but observers will be watching his approach to questions raised before the court.

The court had scheduled a batch of important cases for its first week. Burger had them postponed because of the Senate's delay on Haynsworth. The court tries to be at full strength when making important decisions.

The postponed cases deal with capital punishment and Illinois, California and Texas laws attacked as infringements on free speech. They were held over from last term presumably because of the Fortas controversy.

WITH BURGER and Haynsworth (assuming he is confirmed) replacing two outstanding liberals, the court this term may be less prone to side with individuals who claim government oppression. Four members of the once controlling liberal bloc remain — Justices Hugo L. Black, William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall— although Black has withdrawn from the group in a number of cases the past few terms.

Justices leaning more toward giving government a stronger hand are John M. Harlan, Byron R. White and Potter Stewart. That means Burger and Haynsworth could reverse the court's direction.

FEDERALLY sponsored legal services programs in city ghettos have sparked a sunburst of lawsuits on behalf of the poor, some of which are now reaching the court.

The justices last year struck down state one-year waiting periods for collection of welfare benefits. Now they must decide in cases involving New York and San Francisco whether welfare recipients are entitled to a formal hearing before their benefits can be cut off.

Other cases to be heard, from Connecticut and Georgia respectively, urge that the poor be allowed to bring divorce actions free of court costs and to remain in rented quarters while fighting eviction.

Also at stake are New York State's reduction of welfare benefits and Maryland's maximum grant law. Others deal with disputes in California and Connecticut over withholding of benefits to needy children with a wage-earning stepfather.

Facts You Should Know About Opals

by ARCH SHINDER of LAWSON'S JEWELERS Downtown Long Beach Only

OPAL, one of the most ancient of all gemstones, is the birthstone for the month of October. For those who follow the stars, the Opal is so popular it not only serves as the jewel for those born under the influence of Libra, the Scales, but also Cancer, the Crab, from June 22 to July 1st. Opal is the gemstone of good fortune. In fact, it is far more preferable than a crystal ball for fortunetellers. It is claimed that by gazing into an Opal one can predict the future! This is due to the fact that an Opal includes all the colors of the rainbow – red, green, blue, purple, yellow, etc. and the interplay of these colors to present to the viewer a complete mirage of colors. If one wears an Opal ring, you possess a view into the future.

Opal has been called by the ancients "the captive rainbow." An Opal, it is said, can turn away anger, the wearer will be urbane and courteous, and is the symbol of hope.

The name Opal derives from the Sanskrit term "UPALA" which meant precious stone. This is just an example of how, historically, Opals have always been considered a precious gem that will bring hope and good fortune to its possessor.

Queen Victoria thought so highly of Opals that each of her daughters was given an Opal on her wedding day.

In Roman days, a famous senator so prized his Opal ring that he chose exile and loss of all his possessions rather than to surrender the Opal ring to Marc Antony. Who knows, perhaps if Marc Antony had gained possession of that Opal ring he would have been triumphant and successful! Instead, deprived of an Opal, he met disaster.

We are fortunate to have the largest selection of Opals in this area.

If you desire further information, please contact us at Lawson's Jewelers, 250 Pine Avenue, Downtown Long Beach only and we will be most happy to answer your questions.

Secretary Volpe Confers With Pope

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — U.S. Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe conferred with Pope Paul VI for nearly an hour Saturday and presented him with "various" messages from President Nixon, a spokesman for Volpe said.

Both sides declined to give details on the private discussions between Volpe and the Pope, but Volpe was believed to have briefed the Pope on the current situation in the Viefname peace talks in Paris, among other things.

Space Age 12, Still Growing

Twelve years ago Saturday the United States was jolted into the space age.

On Oct. 4, 1957, the Soviet Union launched Sputnik I into orbit.

Since then, Russia has placed 385 objects in space compared with the U.S.'s 1,327 as of Oct. 1. Thirty-three objects have been launched by other countries.

A catalog of man-made objects put into orbit by any country is kept by the Space Defense Center inside Cheyenne Mountain near Colorado Springs.

The center is operated by the Air Force Aerospace Defense Command for NORADas a command post for a global satellite tracking network.

The 1,745 man-made objects now in space consist of payloads, rocket bodies, and debris belonging to the United States, Soviet Union, France, Great Britain, Canada and the European Scientific Research Organization. A total of 2,366 space objects have been deorbited or decayed into the earth's atmosphere. To date the Space Defense Center has cataloged 4,111 space objects.

Daily, more than 20,000 satellite observations flow into the center's data processing facility from space sensors extending from the Pacific Ocean across the North American continent to Greenland and Europe.

ADC also operates a world-wide network of electronic and optical sensors scanning near and outer space to warn this nation of attack and maintains a 24-hour alert force of aircraft and missiles for defense against an attack.

Nominee's Baker Tie Disputed

during his life and that other persons were present at all three. Two, he said, were during an exchange of pleasantries with a third party.

Haynsworth told Mollenhoff that the third was during a ride he and Baker shared to a South Carolina picnic with a senator and that no business was discussed.

It had been revealed that both Haynsworth and Baker owned stock in Mortgage Guarantee Insurance Corp. and Greenville Memorial Gardens, a cemetery firm.

Mollenhoff said, "The full facts on these transactions demonstrate that there were no financial transactions between Judge Haynsworth and Bobby Baker. It is my conclusion that Judge Haynsworth's actions were completely proper and I believe the explanations will make this apparent."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate confirmation of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. for the Supreme Court remained in doubt Saturday, with a survey showing 31 senators supporting him, 29 opposing and 40 undecided.

Haynsworth, chief judge of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, needs a majority of 51 votes if all senators are present and voting. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who presides over the Senate, could break a tie in his favor.

First Fall Storm Dumps Deep Snow in Rockies

Associated Press

The first major storm of fall dumped up to a foot of snow on the Colorado Rockies Saturday while the rest of the nation basked in summer-like warmth.

Estes Park in the Colorado mountains was buried under 12 inches of snow and 4 inches fell on Leadville, Colo., for a total accumulation of 9 inches. An 8-inch cover of snow blanketed Denver.

IN WYOMING, 2 more inches of snow piled up on Lander and Rawlins for total accumulation of 6 inches.

Additional snowfall was expected as the storm pushed southward and heavy snow warnings were posted for portions of Colorado, Wyoming and Nebraska. Travelers' warnings were issued for northern New Mexico, where residents braced for the onslaught of snow, high winds and frigid air.

The cold front extended across the Rockies promoting freeze warnings for northeastern Arizona.

A BAND of showers in the Plains preceded the front but rainfall was generally light.

A heavy downpour in the lower Rio Grande Valley dumped 4.8 inches of rain on portions of southern Texas in a 6-hour period.

A mass of polar air advanced toward the Northeast and frost warnings were issued to cranberry growers in upstate New York and most of New England.

Probe Set of Traffic in Arms

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — A senate inquiry Monday will focus on alleged trafficking in weapons by a high American military official, according to sources close to the investigation. Some of the weapons were allegedly meant for revolutionaries in Haiti.

The sources said that the Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations will hear testimony that the officer sold weapons to private parties.

THE PRIVATE parties reportedly intended, in some cases, to sell the arms to revolutionaries in Haiti.

Graham Story Hailed

Readers of the Independent, Press-Telegram, including Long Beach ministers, this week wrote to commend the front page article on the Billy Graham Crusade by religion editor Les Rodney which appeared in last Sunday's edition.

"I wish to thank you for the excellent article," said Rev. Francis A. Rhoades, of Emmanuel United Presbyterian Church. "It was not only well done but it was factual and unbiased. Keep up the good work!"

Rev. Dr. George O. Peek, veteran pastor of North Long Beach Brethren Church, wrote: "Thanks for your Graham story. You did a great job of 'telling it like it is.' I believe you have the religion writers of the Los Angeles Times and the wire services beat hands down."

READER Louis M. Ver Plank wrote: "Our sincere thanks to you for giving such a factual review. Not only were you fair, but you gave Dr. Graham a front page notice. I have been very critical of the television news media for dwelling on what the militants and kooks do, and not enough on things that could help to build up our faith in our country again. Your article prominently displayed in our local press is a bit of fresh air."

C. R. Hughes wrote: "Your Sunday article on the Crusade was the best of its kind I have ever seen, a credit to your newspaper. It covered this event the way it deserves to be covered, like an All Star game or World Series. The way it started with the people coming forward, comparing it to the old days, was very good writing. I was so proud I bought an extra copy to mail to relatives back in Ohio."

Tunney Hits Minorities' Homes Lag

STANFORD (AP) — "We need two million housing starts per year and all we have had in the past few years is about a half-million new units," Rep. John Tunney told a Mexican-American seminar here Friday.

"We can't spend $80 billion a year for defense and go into the kind of massive government-supported home building that we need," said the Riverside Democrat.

Nor is low-cost housing for minority groups and other low income people possible under conditions where plumbers make $17,000 a year and cement finishers about $19,000, Tunney said.

"We can't pay this kind of labor cost and have low-cost housing," he said.

A rental supplement bill introduced in last year's Congress was "watered down and destroyed," he said, adding that "two-thirds of the Congress is conservative. They are willing to vote billions for the ABM but would hardly vote $50 million for education."

Churches of World

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — The World Council of Churches Saturday urged its member chruches to provide $2 million over the next two years for new aid programs to Palestinian refugees.

The call issued at the end of the council's week-long conference here also urged member churches to marshall all their influence behind the desire of the Palestinians to regain a homeland of their own.

Solons Ask Smog Suit Rule Stay

By LARRY BRYANT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twenty-four congressmen Saturday urged a California District Court to delay its decision in an air pollution antitrust suit against the nation's major automobile companies.

Rep. Leonard Farbstein, D-N.Y., and the other petitioners asked the court to grant a 60-day delay in its decision so additional information could be presented and a congressional investigation could be conducted.

LAST MONTH the federal government and the manufacturers agreed to a consent decree ending alleged "industry-wide conspiracy to delay research, development and installation of air pollution control equipment on motor vehicles."

Farbstein said in a statement. "The public, and more importantly, the courts should be fully apprised of how acceptance of this decree will increase the probability of choking to death on dirty air. We believe that a congressional investigation can bring out these facts."

Another petitioner, Phillip Burton ,D-Calif., also urged San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto to file an antitrust suit against the auto manufacturers.

BURTON said San Francisco should follow the lead of such cities as Chicago, which is suing for $3 billion, and Los Angeles, which is suing for $100 million.

"If the case went to trial, evidence which would help the cities develop their own cases would be revealed," Burton said.

"Lack of a trial would deprive the public of their right to know and be fully informed of the true facts of the alleged conspiracy."

Other House members signing the petition were:

Brock Adams, D-Wash.; Joseph Addabbo, D-Ny.; George Brown, D-Calif.; Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y.; James Corman, D-Calif.; Harold Donohue, D-Mass.; Seymour Halpern, R-N.Y.; Henry Helstoski, D-N.J.; James Howard, D-N.J.; Edward Koch, D-N.Y.; and Abner Mikva, D-Ill.; Reps. Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y.; Bertram Podell, D-N.Y.; Adam C. Powell, D-N.Y.; Thomas Rees, D-Calif.; Peter Rodino, D-N.J.; Fred Rooney, D-Pa.; Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y.; Edward Roybal, D-Calif.; William Ryan, D-N.Y.; John Tunney, D-Calif., and James Scheuer, D-N.Y.

Santa Rosa Counts Loss in Millions

SANTA ROSA (UPI) — Damage from Wednesday night's earthquakes may run between $5 and $10 million, says Mayor Jack Ryerson.

Investigators keep finding more damage to buildings in this city of 50,000, with some showing "severe structural damage."

Ryerson said original damage estimates of between $1 and $2 million have been revised upward.

"We thought we'd just have a lot of plate glass to clean up, but it's a great deal more than that," he said.

Hundreds of homes were damaged, he said, "more in number and scope than it first appeared."

Two houses will have to be demolished, as will the condemned Fremont elementary school. Students have been sent to double sessions at another school.

Asst. City Manager Joe Henderson said around a dozen actual breaks found along major water mains are under repair.

Russians Shot in Lebanon Intrigue

New York Times Service

LONDON — Diplomatic informants said Saturday that an incident in Beirut last week in which two Soviet officials were shot was related to a wide conspiracy by leftist groups to overthrow the Lebanese government.

The shooting occurred as Lebanese officials arrested the two Russians, who had been accused of participating in an attempt to steal a Lebanese Mirage fighter plane.

The informants said they received information of a wide conspiracy as reports came from Moscow that the two Russians arrived in the Soviet Union this morning aboard a chartered plane of Aeroflot, the Soviet Airline.

The two men, First Secretary Aleksandr Khomyakov and Vladimire Vasilyev, an attache in the commercial section of the embassy, were injured in a shooting incident when Lebanese intelligence agents broke into Vasilyev's apartment last Tuesday evening.

Khomyakov was seriously injured and was carried aboard the aircraft on a stretcher, the informants said, while Vasilyev was less seriously hurt. The Lebanese had ordered them to leave as soon as their health permitted.

The report of a leftist plot was received here from Beirut through diplomatic channels after the Lebanese government had banned the publication of all news concerning the Mirage incident.

The report was accompanies by the first full explanation of why Lebanon was censoring the news and why the Russians would have been interested in stealing a Mirage from Lebanon.

The censorship order was issued by President Charles Helou. It was said that his had infuriated the military because the news blackout left that impression that something very embarrassing had occurred in Beirut.

However, the president halted the free flow of information, apparently in an effort to appease the leftist governments of the United Arab Republic, Syria and Iraq, all of which have good relations with the Soviet Union and had been accusing Lebanon of inventing the Mirage affair in order to damage Arab-Soviet relations.

The diplomats understood that Helou's advisers were convinced that Lebanon would eventually be vindicated by the inquiry of the military tribunal that would try the Lebanese involved, but thought that in the meanwhile it was advisable to try to halt the anti-Lebanese campaign in the Arabic leftist press abroad.

The evidence that has now reached diplomats in Beirut and has been reported to London is that a Lebanese Air Force pilot was to have flown the jet to Syria or Iraq, not to Baku in the Soviet Union, as previously reported. He was to have told the Syrians or Iraqis that he had fled because the Lebanese government was not willing to assume its proper role in the fight against Israel.

Israeli Jets Attack Egyptian Positions in Retaliation Raid

New York Times Service

JERUSALEM — Israeli jets joined a major artillery battle across the Suez Canal Saturday in the wake of one of the largest Egyptian commando raids since the end of the six-day war in June, 1967.

The jets attacked what an Israeli communique described as "military objectives" in the Dweir Suez area, the scene of heavy fighting across the blocked waterway during the night.

A senior Israeli staff officer described how a force of from 50 to 90 Egyptian commandos sought to infiltrate Israeli positions after nidnight under cover of a heavy artillery barrage.

He said one Egyptian unit was allowed to move up the canal bank and advance between two fortified positions before being wiped out in a severe crossfire.

THE ISRAELIS counted five Egyptian dead when the site of the ambush was combed. Three wounded Egyptian soldiers were taken prisoner, although one died later.

The Israelis said it was likely that there were many more Egyptian dead along the canal bank. In addition, some boats were sunk, one containing nine soldiers, none of whom were believed to have survived.

Two Israeli soldiers were reported killed during the night, one in an artillery exchange in the Ismailia area father north The Israeli's denied Egyptian claims of having destroyed two tanks and three armored vehicles.

The officer said Egyptian forces had opened fire at about 9:30 and then, a half-hour later, launched the commando force in rubber boats, each capable of holding 15 men.

Air Pocket Saves Two Trapped for 35 Hours on Capsized Boat

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — Two men feared drowned when a 98-foot boat capsized in the Gulf of Mexico at midnight Thursday were found alive Saturday, miraculously saved by a pocket of air in the galley.

W. C. Wells, 55, the crewman on the motor vessel Lady Verna, said there was nothing to do but think in the 15-by-20-foot galley, with the air pocket getting smaller, so he finally decided not to worry, lest he drive himself crazy.

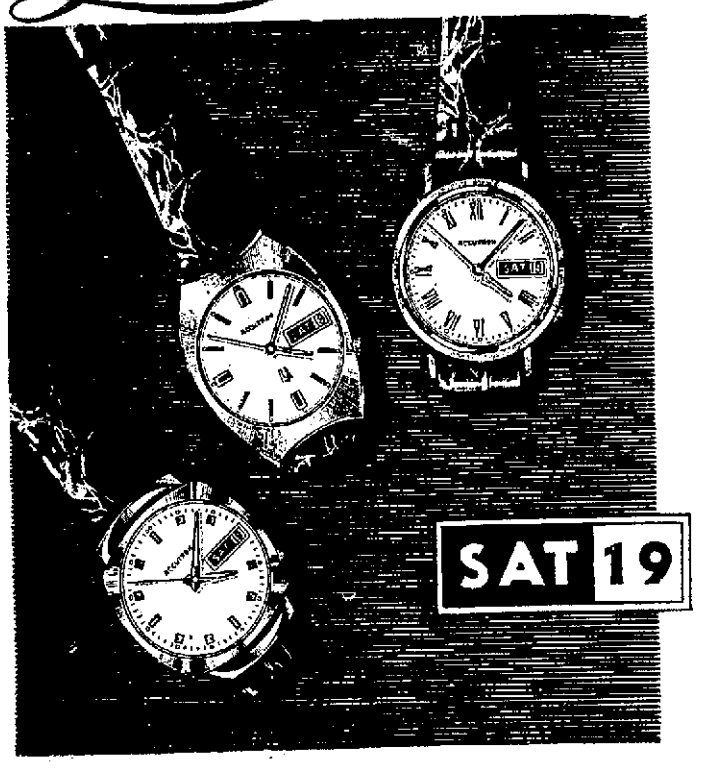

Wells suffered a broken rib. Andrew Rouse, master of the Lady Verna, hurt his back. He said a six-foot refrigerator fell on him.

Physicians at the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital said both men were "fairly well" dehydrated.

Wells and Rouse were rescued Saturday, 35 hours after their boat capsized, when the Coast Guard pumped air into flooded compartments of the Lady Verna and made her turn upright.

The Lady Verna turned turtle and sank deck down when a cargo of oilwell pipe shifted 20 miles south of Sabine Pass, Tex. A patch on the capsized vessel's bottom was visible in the water.

Wrong-Way Auto Crashes, Four Die

DELANO (UPI) — Four persons were killed Friday night when a car entered Highway 99 on the wrong side and struck another car head-on.

Authorities said Eugene N. Mitchell, 59, McFarland, entered the freeway on the wrong side. He died at the scene, as did a middle-aged couple in the other car. A 4-year-old girl died two hours later at a hospital.

Red China Tests H-Bomb, Underground Nuclear Blast

TOKYO (AP) — Red China tested a hydrogen bomb in the atmosphere and staged its first underground nuclear explosion last month, Peking broadcasts said Saturday.

The hydrogen bomb test last Monday and the underground blast Sept. 23 were detected by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission at the time but China remained silent about them until now.

A Chinese-language broadcast by Radio Peking and an English-language dispatch of Peking's official Hsinhua news agency said both tests were successful and should come as "great encouragement and support" for Vietnamese and others fighting against "U.S. aggression" and for national independence.

But the Hsinhua dispatch said: "At no time and in no circumstances will China be the first to use nuclear weapons."

A JAPANESE translation of the original Radio Peking broadcast said "a new type" of hydrogen bomb had been tested.

But Hsinhua's English version made no mention of the weapon's being of a new type. It said: "A new hydrogen bomb explosion was successfully conducted over the western region of the country on Sept. 29, 1969; prior to this, on Sept. 23, 1969, China successfully conducted her first underground nuclear test."

This was taken to mean here that the hydrogen test was not of a new type bomb but rather that the Chinese had tested another H-bomb.

China's first hydrogen bomb was tested June 17, 1969. It was dropped from an airplane. Other Chinese nuclear tests were detected in the West on Dec. 24, 1967 and on last Dec. 28, but Peking has never acknowledged them.

The hydrogen and underground tests were Red China's 9th and 10th nuclear explosions. The first took place Oct. 16, 1964.

The new tests were carried out in China's West, presumably around the Lop Nor test area in Sinkiang Province which borders on the Soviet Union.

HSINHUA did not mention the force of weapons tested nor did it give any indication how the hydrogen bomb was detonated in the atmosphere.

Japanese scientists who tried to detect fallout from the test explosions said Communist China tested the hydrogen bomb either at a high altitude or used a "clean bomb." The Japanese government's radioactivity countermeasure headquarters said they failed to detect any fallout over Japan.

Hsinhua said the nuclear tests are necessary for national defense and for breaking the nuclear monopoly.

"The conducting of necessary and limited nuclear tests and the development of nuclear weapons by China are entirely for the purpose of defense and for breaking the nuclear monopoly, with the ultimate aim of abolishing nuclear weapons," the dispatch added.

N. Viet Chief Travels

TOKYO (UPI) — North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong was en route Saturday to East Berlin at the head of a delegation scheduled to attend celebration of the 20th anniversary of the founding of East Germany, Radio Hanoi reported.

Teachers to Continue Strike

LAWNDALE (AP) — Teachers voted Saturday to continue their classroom boycott — despite a court order — unless school trustees agree not to spend salary funds the teachers say are legally theirs.

A spokesman for the California Teachers Association said 220 of the district's 260 teachers showed at a meeting and voted unanimously to continue the strike.

The 11 elementary and two junior high schools in Lawndale, a Los Angeles suburb, were closed Friday after only 30 teachers appeared for classes. The district serves 6,400 students.

The district obtained a Superior Court temporary restraining order Friday afternoon preventing the teachers from further disruption of school activities.

The dispute centers on a 12 per cent pay increase voted Lawndale teachers last June, boosting the salary range to $6,800-$13,800 from $6,010-$11,035.

New trustees, elected in July, rescinded the raise, saying funds were not available. The teachers contend the action was illegal.

Patricia Graves, president of the Lawndale Teachers Association, said the teachers want trustees to agree not to spend funds for the wage hike until a court determines who is right.

"We will go back to work at any time they agree not to spend the money or it is settled in court if the money belongs to the teachers or the school board," said Tom Brown, CTA professional services consultant.

WARREN E. BURGER

Once Awed Lawyer Is Now Seasoned U.S. Chief Justice

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The first time he saw the U.S. Supreme Court in session Warren E. Burger was so awestruck that he couldn't bring himself to use a letter of introduction he carried to meet one of the justices.

That was back in 1933 when Burger was just out of law school and on his honeymoon. But Monday, when he takes his seat for the first time as the 15th chief justice of the United States, he will be anything but awestruck.

"Obviously, anybody must be impressed with the fact that it's a great court and a great institution, but I've been in this work too long to have any illusions or any feeling of elation," Burger declared last week.

"If I'd been plucked out of law practice in St. Paul, I might have different feelings, but I have enough of an idea of the scope of this job to know it's going to be very, very hard work."

THAT KNOWLEDGE, coupled with an awareness that only 14 other men have worn the black robes of the chief justice since 1789, no doubt will help put the 62-year-old Burger in a solemn mood when the court begins its 180th year at 10 a.m. Monday.

In addition, there is also the realization that what historians will one day refer to as "The Burger Court" began with the intended occupant of one of its nine high-backed leather chairs embroiled in the same kind of controversy over judicial ethics that forced another man off the court and prevented him from becoming chief justice just one year ago.

But while a solemn mood is natural for someone about to assume the burden of leading the American judicial system as the nation enters the unsettled seventies, there is another side, more relaxed and sanguine, to Warren E. Burger.

THE NEW CHIEF justice revealed something of both sides as he relaxed at the end of the day with a cup of tea in his mahogany-paneled, red-carpeted private chambers in a rear corner of the ornate Supreme Court building.

Propping a foot up on his glass-topped desk, Burger leaned back in his swivel chair and talked about how his life has changed since President Nixon nominated him last May 21.

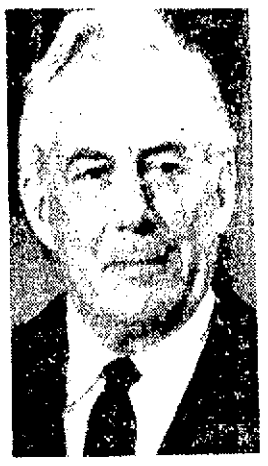

He recalled that the past four months, including his Senate confirmation that looked easier than it was, have been one of the most grueling periods of his life. Since then, he has to increase his workday by at least 50 per cent to keep up with a mountainous load of administrative work that he inherited as chief justice.

He explained that in addition to the primary role of the chief justice — defined by Nixon as "the guardian of the Constitution" — he is chairman of the Judicial Conference of the United States (the 'board of directors' of the federal court system), chairman of the U.S. Judicial Center (a research and education arm of the federal judiciary) and has several other major ex officio duties (chancellor of the Smithsonian Institution and trustee of the National Gallery of Art and the National Geographic Society).

BUT HIS DUTIES on the court and his efforts to carry out reforms in at least four major areas are what Burger is obviously most concerned about now.

One of his first priorities is to do something about upgrading the machinery for post-conviction review, the process which accounts for the flood of appeal petitions which the court receives each year from convicted criminals.

The petitions, many of them written in longhand and running many pages, came in at the rate of 50 to 60 a week last year and are expected to top 3,000 in the coming year. All have to be thoroughly studied and processed by the court, yet only about three or four per cent are ever actually heard by the court.

JUSTICE BURGER
No More Illusions

Drawing on his experience as chairman of the American Bar Association's Committee on Standards for Criminal Justice for nearly six years, Burger wants to see a more adequate review process established at the state level to reduce the flow of these petitions to the federal courts.

This would include making lawyers available to advise prisoners in state institutions if their appeal has any merit and if it does, to assist in preparing an adequate petition so it will receive prompt attention by the courts.

BURGER IS ALSO pleased that the three reform proposals he made to the ABA's national convention in Dallas this summer are making considerable progress.

They include a crash program to find and train a cadre of court administrators or managers, a comprehensive study of the nation's penal and correctional systems and a long-range re-examination of the legal educational system.

Burger is particularly enthused about the proposal to train court administrators who, acting as traffic managers for overloaded courts, can speed up judicial machinery so that judges can concentrate on their primary professional duty of judging.

Noting that only a handful of such administrators now exist, and then almost entirely confined to state courts, Burger said courts are in almost the same position as hospitals were some 35 years ago when they began to see the need for trained administrators.

In fact, Burger, a former member of the board of directors of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., asked the clinic's librarian for a memo on how the medical profession filled the need for hospital administrators, and he hopes the same techniques will be helpful in creating a corps of court administrators.

The sheer volume of cases handled by the Supreme Court is one reason Burger takes two briefcases full of papers home with him every day. He studies the legal documents usually until 11 o'clock in the evening and often gets up at 6:30 in the morning to work on them again before his chauffeur-driven limousine arrives about 9 a.m. to take him to the court.

WHEN THE COURT'S fall session opens Monday, Burger will preside over a brief ceremony consisting mostly of some routine announcements and the admission of a number of lawyers to practice before the court. Then, the court will start a busy schedule that for October alone, includes 10 sitting days and seven conference days to consider 29 cases.

Although Burger refuses to discuss anything coming before the court, the 29 cases to be heard in his first month concern issues ranging from an Arkansas case involving the constitutionality of a jury's capital punishment decision to determining the fate of one of the largest railroad mergers in history (the Northern Lines merger).

Burger is very conscious of the effect of the Abe Fortas affair — and now the imbroglio over the nomination of Judge Clement Haynsworth to the court — on the court's prestige, and he makes it clear he will strive to restore the confidence and trust of the American people in the court.

Burger won't discuss his judicial philosophy because he says it is too involved and would take too long to explain.

He cited the words of Scottish poet Robert Burns when asked whether he feels he has been correctly analyzed by the news media in recent months as a "strict constructionist" and political moderate, noting that "you don't always see yourself as other people do."

But he did acknowledge that his judicial philosophy has evolved in a steady unfolding process like any educational process, characterized by an ascertion of knowledge and experience with an occasional breakthrough of new insights.

He has also gained some feeling for the problems faced by the 14 men who preceded him as chief justice by studying the biographies of such men as Charles Evans Hughes and Salmon P. Chase.

There isn't any reason for a chief justice to confine himself to trying to influence the development of improvements in the law just by judicial decisions, Burger feels. Instead, more can be accomplished by exerting influence on the legal profession as a whole, he thinks.

"Lots of things," he said as he rose from his swivel chair and stuffed a brief case full of papers, "you can't cure by decisions alone."

WEEK IN REVIEW

House Approves Military Funds

By DON HASTINGS
Staff Writer

After long and bitter debate the House approved a $21.85-billion military procurement bill carrying funds for a host of controversial programs, including the Safeguard antiballistic missile system, more C-5A giant transport planes, the F-5 Freedom fighter and additional Navy ships. The amount approved exceeds funds voted by the Senate by slightly more than $1 billion. Differences will be worked out in Senate-House conference.

HANGING IN THE BALANCE last week was President Nixon's nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the U.S. Supreme Court. Opposition to the Southern jurist mounted in both parties as the Senate Judiciary Committee probed allegations of improprieties in Haynsworth's financial and judicial activities. President Nixon stood firmly behind his selection and on Friday sent a letter to Senate leaders saying he will do all he can to bring about confirmation.

The Nation

INVESTIGATION OF ALLEGED thefts of military service club receipts brought out the names of two retired generals and the Army's former top non-commissioned officer. Pentagon investigators told a Senate probe that sergeants operating clubs in the United States and overseas skimmed profits and divided the loot in clandestine conventions. Accused of sharing in the action were Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner (ret.), Maj. Gen. William A. Cunningham III (ret.) and Sgt. Maj. William O. Wooldridge. Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., labeled the operation a "Khaki Cosa Nostra."

A BOYCOTT OF ALL U.S. PORTS to force a federal and industry commitment to rebuild the American Merchant Marine fleet was threatened Friday by union leaders meeting in Atlantic City. Joseph Curran, president of the Maritime Union, and Thomas W. Gleason, president of the East and Gulf Coast longshoremen, said members of all unions involved in the maritime industry would be asked to approve a port boycott. Gleason said the West Coast's International longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union also would be asked to participate.

THE SPLIT IN LABOR'S RANKS widened last week when delegates to the AFL-CIO convention in Atlantic City voted to oust the 114,00-member International Chemical Workers Union for joining the rival Alliance for Labor Action, established by United Auto Workers President Walter P. Reuther.

A STRIKE AGAINST seven railroads was blocked for at least 60 days Friday when President Nixon intervened under emergency provisions of the Railway Labor Act and ordered a three-man mediation board to look into the wage dispute. Four shopcraft unions had threatened to strike when negotiations failed.

A ONE-MEGATON NUCLEAR DEVICE was detonated 4,000 feet underground on a remoe Aleutian island Thursday and the Atomic Energy Commission announced the test went as expected. Its purpose was not announced. Fears had been expressed by many scientists and national and international political figures that the blast would trigger earthquakes and tidal waves.

TWO EARTHQUAKES JOLTED Norhern California Wednesday night causing an estimated $2 million damage and injuring 50 persons in Santa Rosa. The shocks were felt as far south as San Jose, but there were no reports of damage outside the Santa Rosa area. The temblors were the strongest to hit California since 1961.

The War

Murder charges against six Green Berets accused of killing a Vietnamese civilian were ordered dropped by Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor, who closed the case when the Central Intelligence Agency refused to let its agents testify in courts-martial. The CIA said the refusal was "in the interest of national security" and Resor said that "under these circumstances the defendants cannot receive a fair trial."

The Berets, including Col. Robert C. Rheault, former commander of all Special Forces in Vietnam, were accused of killing a Vietnamese national identified as Thai Khac Chuyen, a spy for the CIA, who apparently was a double agent, also in the employ of North Vietnam.

PRESIDENT NIXON APPEALED to the American People last week to stand firm behind U.S. efforts for peace in Vietnam, but there was no indication that critics of the war would abate their attacks.

The President asked the people Tuesday not to "buckle under" or "run away." In a separate appeal, his chief congressional lieutenants, Sen. Hugh Scott and Rep. Gerald Ford, assailed Americans who want to "bail out" of Vietnam or "capitulate" to the Communists.

A day earlier, Scott had appealed for a 60-day moratorium on criticism, saying Nixon needed time to negotiate a peace settlement.

On Thursday, however, Sen. Eugene McCarthy called a news conference to assail the President's Vietnam policies and announce his support for the Oct. 15 student protest against the war.

At the same time, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield was urging the United States to go on the defense in Vietnam, announcing that its troops would fire only if fired on.

The World

Foreign Minister Willy Brandt emerged last week as the next chancellor of West Germany when his Social Democratic Party and the small Free Democratic Party combined in a coalition. The action followed a national election in which the long-dominant Christian Democratic Party polled the most votes, but failed to win a majority.

CONTINUING PRESSURE on Britain to give up Gibraltar, Spain last week cut off telephone and cable communication with "The Rock." Gibraltar's communications with other countries were not affected.

NAMED TO SUCCEED Sweden's retiring Premier Tage Erlander was Education Minister Olof Palme. Palme participated last year in a demonstration against American involvement in Vietnam.

TEN, NINE, EIGHT

Youth Fights for Vote

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — A group of young people willing to work for the right to vote will know next month if their influence with the New Jersey electorate is as great as it was with state political leaders.

Pressure on the New Jersey Legislature in the past year by their organization, the Voting Age Coalition, played a major role in setting up next month's referendum to lower the state's minimum voting age from 21 to 18.

And coalition members now are crusading to have the state's adults approve the 18-year-old vote at the Nov. 4 election.

DAVID DUPELL, the 22-year-old VAC president, explained why the issue is important to young people.

"We couldn't do anything in society," he said. "We were frustrated by assassinations and riots. What could we do. Not much until the vote is achieved."

Dupell dropped out of Rider College, in suburban Trenton, for one year to start the VAC and to campaign full time for the lower voting age.

It was his persistent lobbying which helped convince the New Jersey Senate to unanimously approve legislation for the referendum.

Canadian Hunters Find Priest--Missing 22 Days

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C. (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest missing for 22 days in British Columbia's rugged Cariboo District was found alive Saturday — hours before a massive air search was to be called off.

Father Emil Sasges, who was missing on a 100-mile flight from Wells, B.C., to his home at Valemount on the Alberta border Sept. 12, was found by a group of hunters at Keithley Creek, 85 miles northeast of here.

He was reported in good condition, but suffering from exhaustion, exposure and undernourishment.

FUNNIES

SCORED

EDGEWARE, England (UPI) — It was an impressive soccer debut, a goal scored on the first time out. Then the rookie was kicked off the team.

The problem was that Edgeware Junior's new player was a girl, and in England girls cannot play school soccer.

Corrine Samuel has been benched and Edgeware will have to play its season opener again.

RICHER

SOUTHFLEET, England (UPI) — Paul Gisby dropped into the local pub for a pint of beer and emerged richer by as much as $4,800.

In change farmer Gisby 20, had received a 1937 three-penny piece with King Edward VIII's picture. The king reigned only 11 months in 1936 before abdicating to marry Wallis Simpson of Baltimore. Coin experts said there were only twelve coins of that type in existence.

LOTTERY

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI) — Number 67 came out too late and Giacomo Sciuto wound up in jail.

A Catania court sentenced the 41-year-old bank clerk to two years and eight months in jail Monday on charges of stealing $177,600 dollars last year and squandering it all on the lottery.

Sciuto testified he kept betting on number 67, which had not come out in the weekly numbers game for nearly three years.

It came out two weeks after his arrest.

CRABBY

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL —The vice president paid off his bet in Maryland crabs — 12 of them.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, a Baltimore Colt fan, had a bet with Rep. Clark MacGregor, R-Minn. on the outcome of the Minnesota Vikings-Colts game last Sunday. The Vikings won 52-14.

MacGregor said his end of the wager was for a pound of Minnesota wild rice and added Agnew was taking the loss "kind of crabbily."

TOCK-TICK

NOTTINGHAM, England (UPI) — The clock at the bus station has confused many passengers and drivers lately — it has been running backwards.

It loses two hours every 60 minutes, so is always wrong except for the six times a day it catches up with itself.

Bus company officials promised to have it fixed soon.

GOURMET

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Bobbie E. Murphy likes to dine well — and falling on hard times didn't stop him. He wrote bad checks for dinners in several good Columbus restaurants and is wanted in New York and Chicago for the same thing.

"This really isn't a case of intending to commit fraud," Murphy explained to the judge. "It's simply a matter of insufficient funds — and great hunger!"

The judge fined him $100 and sentenced him to a month in the workhouse.

REJECTS DRAFT STATUS

Santa Ana Man Flees to Sweden

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

The strapping 21-year-old son of a retired Marine Corps flier from Santa Ana sought asylum in Sweden Saturday.

Andrew Goewey, son of attorney Bruce A. Goewey of 2801 N. Bristol St., apparently reached a decision a few weeks ago not to accept a 1-A draft classification he knew was imminent and which he received less than two weeks ago.

The young man, a 180-pound six-footer with an athletic build, attended University of California Riverside for three years after graduation from Tustin High School. He went to Europe in the early summer for a hitchhike tour of the continent.

HIS FATHER said that the youth often corresponded, and that the family knew of his decision — and sought to counsel him. Goewey said "it was entirely Andy's decision," and that he and his family had "very definitely considered all possibilities and consequences, legal and otherwise."

As a Marine Corps flier, the youth's father fought in War II and in the Korean War. He retired from active duty as a major.

"He objects to the kind of war we're in now," the father said.

The elder Goewey offered this statement:

"My son is in Sweden today as a result of an obviously difficult decision he reached some several months ago.

"I think it is safe to say that if it were not for his strong feelings about the draft, Vietnam and other problems that are troubling most of America's youth in these times, he would now, at most, be merely traveling in Europe. He is fluent in several languages and aspires to be a writer. The time he has spent in Europe has been as much of an education for him as a matter of avoiding any obligations he might have as an American citizen.

"I CAN VOUCH for the fact that Andrew is proud to be an American. In his own mind he believes he can do more good for his country in the long run by following his present course of action, than by following any other.

"I do not agree, nor does his mother. We have advised and counseled him to the contrary, but he is 21 years old, has had the benefit of three years in the University of California Riverside, and is competent to make his own decisions."

Mansfield in Rimfire Battle

Attempts to Defuse Conflict Over Gun Act Exemption Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield disclosed Saturday he is trying to defense some of the controversy over legislation he supports which would exempt most ammunition from sales curbs in the 1968 Gun Control Act.

Nonetheless, the Montana senator said he expected heated debate when the measure reaches the Senate floor, probably within the next week or 10 days.

FORTY-SIX senators — nearly half the Senate membership — have signed as cosponsors of the measure pushed by Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah. It would eliminate restrictions on the sale of .22 caliber rimfire ammunition, rifle ammunition and shotgun shells and their components.

The issue has split the Democratic leadership. Mansfield, like most westerners in the Senate, is a co-sponsor, and his assistant, Senate Democratic Whip Edward M. Kennedy, Mass., is one of the measure's most formidable opponents.

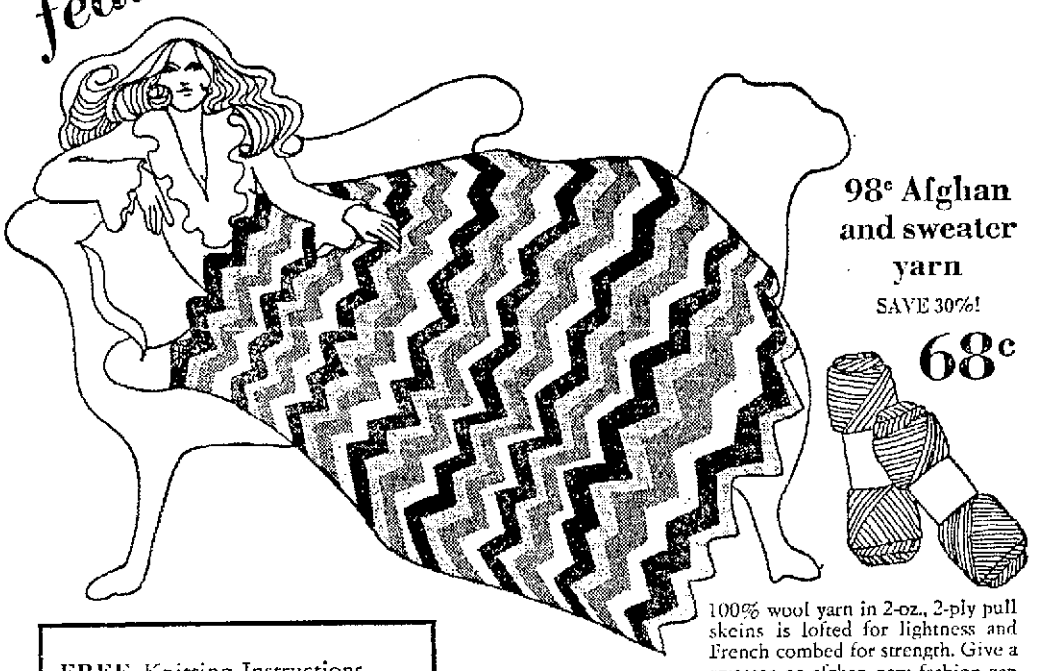

MANSFIELD said he has been in contact with Bennett and Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., chief sponsor of the Gun Control Act, over demands that .22 caliber rimfire ammunition — the type used in the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy — be removed from the bill.

He said he thought "something may be worked out" on this, the most controversial aspect of the bill.

Dodd has told the Senate that .22 caliber rimfire ammunition was used in 37 per cent of all murders committed with a gun in the United States last year. The Bennett measure, he says, would exempt 90 per cent of the ammunition used in the country from regulation.

'UNDERGROUND RAILROAD' HELPS DESERTERS

By JOHN KIFNER
New York Times Service

NEW YORK. — A loosely organized network of antiwar groups and individuals is now helping hundreds of American servicemen a month to desert to Canada.

The new "underground railroad" is composed of pacifist and religious organizations, campus radicals, draft counselors, middle-class professional and business people, suburbanites and youthful friends and acquaintences of servicemen.

It is providing shelter, adivce, false identification papers, money and transportation for a rapidly growing number of deserters.

The flow of deserters over the border has shown a marked increase in the last summer, becoming a new factor in the pattern of immigration into Canada, for the last several years a refuge for young men avoiding the draft.

Each night in Montreal in the warm months, dozens of Americans, newly arrived with their small leather or canvas "ditty bags," sometimes also known as "AWOL bags," could be seen sleeping in the park near McGill University.

In Toronto, Tom Needham, a staff member of the union of American exiles, said, "The big influx of deserters began this summer. Last spring it was two or three draft dodgers to every deserter, but now it's running about even."

In the first 27 days of September, the Exiles Union, one of several organizations in Toronto providing assistance to American draft resisters and deserters, said it found temporary housing for 153 new arrivals.

Among the factors that indicate and contribute to the situation are:

— A mounting disenchantment with the war in Vietnam, coupled with the side effects of the free-wheeling, anti-authoritarian youth culture, has created a climate of opinion in which desertion is no longer the unthinkable, disgraceful act it would have been considered five years ago.

— A steadily increasing rate of desertion from the armed services, now running at a projected rate of over 73,000 a year, up from 40,227 in 1967.

— A change in immigration policy by the Canadian government, after a public furor, that openly welcomes American deserters.

— The existence of a network of 26 organizations across Canada, grown up in the last three years, providing information and assistance to Americans avoiding the military.

— The full-time work of a number of antiwar activists in this country in funneling soldiers over the border and, perhaps more important, the almost unquestioning willingness of large numbers of Americans — particularly among the young — to aid deserters.

— The filtering of word through the military by escaped deserters, discontented GI's, underground newspapers and radical organizers about the possibility of fleeing to Canada.

One day last week, a light-colored sedan rolled up to the customs booth on the Canadian side of the Rainbow Bridge at Niagara Falls.

"Where are you from?" the blue-coated official asked the young men in the car. "How long are you going to stay?"

"West Virginia," replied Craig, a short, stocky youth with closely cropped hair and the beginnings of sideburns and a goatee. "Just a few hours."

The Canadian gave a languid wave of his arm, and Craig's shoulders, tensed under a battered black ski parka, fell back against the seat.

"Free," Craig said, exhaling a large sigh as the car pulled away from the booth. "It's beautiful. I'm not gonna stop smiling for weeks."

Five days after his 20th birthday, three months, nine days after he was drafted into the United States Army, 27 days after he slipped through the woods at Fort Gordon, Ga., Craig had deserted and fled to another country.

A major factor in the sudden flow of deserters into Canada was a change in the country's immigration regulations late this spring, reversing an anti-deserter policy adopted the previous year.

On July 29, 1968, the Canadian Department of Manpower and Immigration issued a memorandum telling immigration officers that, in exercising their broad discretion over applicants for permanent residence, they should consider whether the applicants were "serving on an active basis in the armed forces of their country."

Neither draft evasion nor desertion is covered by Canada's extradition treaty with the U.S. but the government was clearly telling its inspectors to consider desertion a debit in evaluating the worth of a potential Canadian citizen.

But a public outcry over the new regulations, including heated debate in the House of Commons, forced Minister of Immigration Allan J. Maceachen to rescind the memorandum on May 21 and to announce that deserters would be welcome as immigrants.

In the U.S., the network of people helping deserters to travel north has sprung up almost spontaneously in the past year.

The "underground railroad" has its major centers in pacifist organizations in New York, Boston and San Francisco, site of a group known as the movement, whose offices become overrun every time there is a large troop shipment from nearby Travis Air Force Base.

But it is a largely uncoordinated series of acts by groups and individuals across the country — Quakers and religious antiwar organizations, the Resistance coffeehouses near army bases or campuses, middle-age suburbanites increasingly upset by the war and young people — who respond to a plea for help from the fugitive GI, that is contributing to the flow of deserters.

Typically, a deserter will head for a large city in order to hide. Once there, he will search out local antiwar organizations for advice, or go to a campus or bohemian area where he will be either spotted by street-wise youths for his short hair and nervous manner, and helped out, or he will simply stop people he thinks will be sympathetic and ask for aid.

Sympathizers find the deserter a place to sleep — a crash pad, dormitory or friendly apartment. Then they borrow money or steer the youth to a temporary job, such as a day laborer. In New York, several small-business men have notified peace workers that they will accept short-term employes without question.

Senator Warns California of Environmental Disaster

PALO ALTO (UPI) — Warning that the United States, particularly California, is heading for environmental disaster, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., called Saturday for a national land and ocean use policy.

"Maybe it is already too late for California, the nation and the world," said Nelson, "but something must be done to try to see if the years of indifference and disregard for the environment can be somehow reversed."

In remarks at a $25 a plate dinner for state Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, a leading California conservationist from San Jose, Nelson said the "crisis of the environment is the most critical issue facing mankind."

"Ironically, because California is such a desirable place to live it is in danger of being the first place to face the crisis of the environment," added Nelson.

Noting that California's population of nearly 20 million is expected to double by the year 2,000, the Wisconsin lawmaker predicted terrific pressures on state resources.

"The population pressures are already almost beyond endurance with an ugly, unplanned suburban sprawl, millions of automobiles filling the air with deadly smog, rivers and lakes on the way to being poisoned by persistent pesticides, and recent oil spill that killed an untotaled amount of sea life and violated miles of rich beaches."

The member of the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee noted that the vast California park system, considered to be one of the best in the nation, is finding its resources severely limited with the growing demand for recreational space.

"Look at what has happened to San Francisco Bay," added Nelson. "The water area has been cut nearly in half as the drive for space, profit and a wider tax base has filled in nearly 200 square miles of the bay."

Man is looking toward the oceans as a source of food in a crisis, said Nelson, "but how will the oceans ever be able to feed man if the aquatic life is steadily destroyed by oil spills, dumping of industrial and municipal wastes and the runoff of long-lasting pesticides?"

"The nation can now see its future in the smog and overcrowding of California . . . and the future doesn't look good," he said.

Red Army Discourages Marriage for Draftees

By EDWARD J. SHIELDS

MOSCOW (UPI) — Cupid's arrows are out of place in the Russian army. The Soviet soldier is not altar fodder, claim senior officers.

When a draftee takes the oath, the girl he left behind him should stay behind him, add Lt. Col. B. Brykhanov and Maj. V. Shivchenko.

Young Soviet males now have to serve only two years in the army after the age of 18, instead of the previous three years. But the shorter term only seems to have increased the number of marriages, the officers said.

THE SOVIET military establishment's dim view of hurried marriages before the draftee begins basic training were published in the army newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star).

The officers quoted in the article were quick to add they weren't against the revered state of matrimony, however, just for postponement.

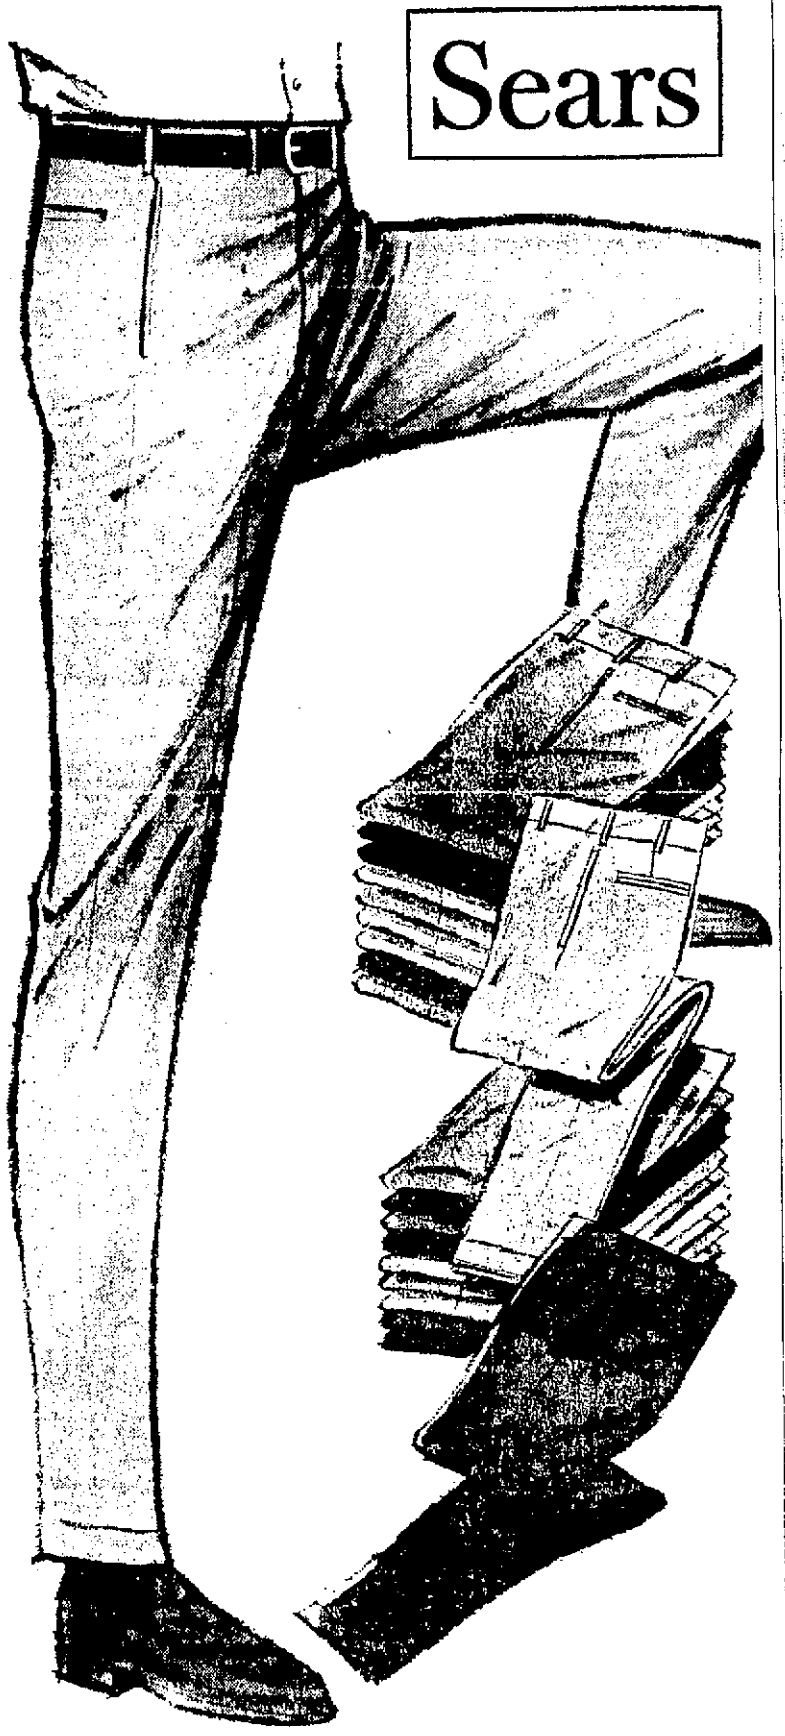

"Sometimes early marriages are even stronger and more likely to last a lifetime than those contracted when the couple are more mature," they admitted, "but there cannot be two opinions about the early marriages of soldiers serving only a two-year term of service."

In fact, they said, "such marriages are really fictitious since the husband lives in barracks and the wife is usually in a distant town.

L.B. Men Among the Air Force Elite

By HAL LOWE
Staff Writer

"Bring me men to match
my mountains,
Bring me men to match
my plains,
Men with empires in their purpose
And new eras in their brains."

Above the entrance to the parade area of the spacious grounds of the United Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, Colorado, the first three words, "Bring Me Men" from the poem by Sam Walter Foss, are engraved, and out on the parade ground, some 3,600 men who measure up stood in formation, among them a contingent from the Long Beach area.

Back in June, the two newest local members of this elite group reported to the Academy, and then have been on the run ever since.

Robert Ireland, 18, of 200 Molino Ave., and Bradford Hirschi, 18, of 5270 Eagle St. are this area's newest "Doolies" (first-year men) at the academy.

BOB, WHO is majoring in Astronautics, and Brad, a General Engineering major, reported to the academy in June to start four years of training and study leading to a college degree and a commission as a second lieutenent in the Air Force. For their period at school, they will receive $182.50 per month to buy all their clothes and books, and will be expected to spend five years in the Air Force after graduation.

Their first year at the academy will be taken up, not only with their studies, but with learning the basics of Air Force life, including the traditions of the academy. These traditions say that a Doolie, when not in formation, is expected to run everywhere he goes. This running will last for at least six months and even longer, if the first-year man fails to "shape-up".

"WE'VE BEEN RUNNING everywhere since we reported to the Academy" Bob said, relaxing in the library at the Academy for an interview.

The summer was spent in field indoctrination, similiar to basic training, in the back country of the 18,000 acre Academy. The classes were taught by upper classmen who were getting practical experience in leading men.

At the end of August, the two new Doolies, like the rest of the cadets, settled down to the college life of study. Settle down, is not exactly the phase. Where most college students are expected to carry from 15 to 18 class units, the Air Force cadet must take close to 20. In addition, for every hour of class study, two hours of outside study is expected.

"NOT HAVING enough time to do everything we have to" is the biggest complaint the two Doolies have.

Bob, who is a graduate of Culver Military Academy in Indiana, and who attended Southern California Military School in Signal Hill, is a bit more indoctrinated to the military life. However, Brad, a 1969 graduate of Millikan High School, whose time at the Academy has let him go out for freshman baseball, claims experience in being on the run. For several years he delivered the Independent, Press-Telegram and then worked as a complaint carrier for the company.

Though the Academy assigns new men roommates from different states cadets from the same areas always find each other.

OTHER CADETS from the Long Beach area include Cadet Capt. Timothy Carey. A 1966 Millikan High School graduate. Tim, who will graduate in June and receive his commission, spent the summer in Thailand. The Air Force has a program where upper classmen get experience by serving at Air Force bases around the world during the summer. Tim is a Political Science major and the only member of his family in the Air Force. His brother is in the Marines while his father is a Naval Reserve officer.

Cadet Master Sgt. Steve Shay, class of '71, graduated from Mayfair High School in 1966. He is a European Affairs major and the son of a master sergeant in the Air Force.

William Beck, class of '72, graduated from Wilson High School in 1967 and attended UCLA for a year before entering the academy. He is a Economics Major.

WILLIAM MAKS, class of '71 and a 1966 graduate of Jordan High School, just sort of "grew up" with the idea of going to the Academy. His father was an Air Force man.

The past summer, Bill won the silver wings of a parachutist at field training in Georgia. The Academy encourages the cadets to aim toward flight training and some day all flying officers will be Academy graduates.

In the meantime, they try to keep the cadets oriented toward the air and this includes taking parachute training by those who would like to. About 400 members of the cadet wing wear the prestige wings of a parachutist.

The four area upper classmen, in giving advice, along with a little good humor "bracing", to the two Long Beach Doolies, observed that if the new men thought they didn't have enough time now, they should wait a year or so . . . they'll have even less time.

Bob and Brad figure that they can make it through the four years as long as they get over the first six months. By Christmas vacation, the running should be over and they can concentrate on racing the brain.

Bob and Brad, along with Tim, Steve, Bill Maks and Bill Beck, are the Long Beach area's answer to the Air Force sign over the parade ground entrance . . . "Bring Me Men".

Law Force Agencies to Be Feted

The Construction Shrine club of El Bekal Temple will fete law enforcement agencies at a Law Enforcement Night dinner meeting Friday beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the Petroleum Club, 3636 Linden Ave.

Long Beach Chief of Police William J. Mooney will discuss "Dissident Groups in the Long Beach area" and TV personality Lou Mosconi will also speak.

Henry Rowley, club president, said the public is invited and that tickets at $6 each are available at the El Bekal Temple, 801 Elm Ave., and will also be sold at dinner.

Rowley said the Shrine Quartet will sing, a film, "No Place to Hide," will be shown and that the police helicopter will demonstrate landing and taking off in front of the club.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Abe Fortas, who resigned from the Supreme Court last May, and his wife were dropped from the Washington Social Register Saturday.

As usual, there was no explanation for the action.

The latest edition of the social "Who's Who" in the nation's capital also reflected shifts inspired by the Nixon Administration in the dinner party pecking order.

THE OFFICE of director of the Bureau of the Budget, now held by Robert P. Mayo, has been moved up a few prestigious notches in the "table of precedence" which denotes the ranking at social affairs of Washington's movers and shakers.

The budget director now immediately follows Cabinet members, as he did during the Eisenhower administration. In the recent past, he was relegated to a position behind members of the House of Representatives.

A significant demotion was given the U.S. representative to the United Nations who was ousted from a privileged perch above Cabinet members and lodged behind the budget director.

RAMSEY CLARK, who was attorney general, Lawrence F. O'Brien, former postmaster general and Democratic national committee chairman, former Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. and Harold Barefoot Sanders, Jr., who was an aide to President Lyndon B. Johnson, also are among the social dropouts from the 39th annual edition of "The social list of Washington."

NBC television newsman David Brinkley, who moved to New York, and the former chief of protocol, Angier Biddle Duke, also were dropped.

CAROLYN HAGNER Shaw, publisher of the annual list also known as "The Green Book" because it is bound in emerald green felt, never divulges why it adds or drops names.

Editors to meet on Bermuda

NEW YORK (UPI) — Galo Plaza, secretary general of the Organization of American States, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and the governors of New York and Bermuda are among the speakers scheduled to address the 1969 United Press International Editors and Publishers Conference which opens Monday in Hamilton, Bermuda.

The three-day conference, expected to draw 400 newspaper executives and their wives, will feature four working sessions in which panels will discuss the coming decade, student and racial unrest, U.S.-Latin American relations, and new technology.

Roger Tatarian, UPI vice president and editor, will chair the first session, which features an address by CBS' Walter Cronkite and a panel of UPI executives presenting a size-up of the 1970s.

THE PANELISTS include Managing Editor H. L. Stevenson, Foreign Editor Jack Fallon, Washington News Editor Grant Dillman, Cliff McDowell, vice president and general manager of UPI newspictures; and C. Robert Woodsum, director of stock market services.

Mitchell will address the opening banquet Monday night. Plaza and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller are to speak Tuesday afternoon during a session on U.S.-Latin American relations which will be chaired by Brady Black, editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

China Hails Mao and His Inspiration

TOKYO (AP) — The New China News Agency, in a delayed account of the Oct. 1 celebrations of Red China's 20th anniversary, said "the best weapon is invincible Mao Tse-tung thought and not aircraft, artillery or atom bombs." It referred to the re-emerged Mao as "The Great Supreme Commander."

Steam Engines on Last Run

SUNBURY, Pa. (AP) — Like the final scene of a passing era, seven steam locomotives hit the rails Saturday for a final run after several years in storage in a Penn Central engine house at Northumberland Yards.

The seven engines weren't hard to spot as they moved down the tracks from Sunbury in Central Pennsylvania at about five miles an hour, pulled by two modern diesels. Their boilers were cold, their massive drive wheels were powerless, and the rust was not hard to spot.

All the engines were the original ones in their classes, each of them with a history.

One small passenger locomotive labelled 7002, assigned to the old Pennsylvania Railroad's Fort Wayne division, set speed records that are still intact. As she moved down the track Saturday, her bright red trim was faded, and the gold leaf lettering below the engine men's window was peeling.

7002's last stop will be at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., after a layover with the other six in a railroad museum near Lancaster.

The seven engines were moved on the main line between Sunbury and Harrisburg, almost like a funeral cortege.

Reprieved Paddle Tug Spans Oceans to S.F.

By RODNEY GUILFOIL

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — One of the last survivors of the world's paddle-tug fleet is making her first and only ocean voyage — a 10,400-mile trip from Newcastle, England, to honored retirement in San Francisco.

She is the 100-foot coal steamer Eppleton Hall. A side-wheeler, she was found last December at Newcastle, awaiting an ignominious demise on the scrap heap.

The man who rescued the 166-ton boat is Scott Newhall, a founding trustee of the San Francisco Maritime Museum and executive editor of the San Francisco Chronicle. He bought the Eppleton Hall for $6,000 and had her painted and refurbished for the voyage at a cost of $148,000.

Newhall is captain on the voyage, which began Sept. 19 and will take anywhere from 75 to 125 days. Also on board are First Officer Karl Kortum, director of the Maritime Museum, and 10 crewmen.

Three of the crew are girls, who'll do the housecleaning and cooking. Another member is Kortum's son, John, 11, who will be the ship's boy and lamp trimmer.

"I have an excellent crew," Newhall said as he passed glasses of champagne to toast the Eppleton Hall's successful voyage.

Kortum describes the acquisition of the Eppleton Hall for the Maritime Museum — appropriately — as "one of the high-water marks" in the museum's history.

THE EPPLETON HALL was built in 1914. She and three similar sturdy tugs used to take ships of 1,500 to 4,500 tons up the narrow Tyne River to three collieries to load coal.

She had other duties, too. During bad weather, it was common for ships berthed at their moorings to break away, and other firms called upon the Eppleton Hall to retrieve them. She was one of the most powerful tugs in the area.

On other occasions, the Eppleton Hall was bedecked with flags and she would carry festive groups of yachtsmen taking part in yacht races.

But times changed, and tugs such as the Eppleton Hall were no longer needed. The Eppleton Hall was sent to the shipbreakers two years ago. At least one publication erroneously reported she had been scrapped.

Newhall has hewn strictly to historical accuracy in refurbishing the tug, changing only the steam generators from coal to oil. And she'll use canvas on her voyage to help her go faster than her rated seven knots.

PLANS CALL for the vessel to go from Newcastle to Falmouth, then to St. Vincent in the Cape Verde Islands off Dakar, Africa. From there she'll make the longest single hop of the journey —1,780 miles southwest across the Atlantic to Fortaleza, Brazil.

From Fortaleza, the Eppleton will head northward along the coast of South America, traverse the Panama Canal and finally head up the Pacific Coast to San Francisco.

The arrival of the Eppleton Hall once again will put a paddle wheel tug in San Francisco Bay. The last of these vessels disappeared from the bay in the early part of this century.

On the completion of her journey, the Eppleton Hall will join other vessels on display in the Maritime Museum fleet.

An English newspaper comments: "A fitting end for a fine old ship, but a pity it has to be so far away."

Ramos Knocks Out Numata in 6th

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Staff Writer

Mando Ramos retained his world lightweight title in the first defense of the crown he gained last February when he knocked down challenger Yoshiaki Numata four times before the bout was halted at 2:20 of the sixth round Saturday night at the L.A. Sports Arena.

The Long Beach champion started slowly, Numata boasting a slight edge after three rounds, but Mando awakened in the fourth heat then decked the Japanese invader for the first time in round No. five.

The sixth round was plain murder for the Tokyo challenger. Mando sent him spinning to the canvas with a vicious left hook to the body, then no sooner had Numata picked himself off the canvas when Ramos decked him once more, this time with a chopping right to the head.

By now staggering like a landlubber on a rocking ship, Yoshiaki walked into a crunching left to the head that put him down for keeps.

Even before he completed the count of 10, referee Lee Grossman raised Mando's hand in victory. There was no need to count. The challenger laid on the deck for perhaps two minutes before he was assisted to his corner.

A crowd of 15,000 contributed to a gross gate of $180,000. For his initial title defense, Ramos took home a lucrative $60,000 pay check.

Before the lightweight match was concluded, Grossman and judge Rudy Jordan had the fight even at 3-3 going into the sixth round, while judge George Latka favored Ramos 5-1. This observer's card had Mando ahead, 4-3.

The way the Ramos-Numata fight began, it seemed that there was some truth to the report that Ramos had left his fight in the gym and was overtrained.

Numata seemed intent on running off with the crown in the earliest round possible. He slapped Mando with stinging left and right-hand punches from the opening bell. He seemed arrogant from the first round when he dropped his hands time after time and glared at the Long Beach fighter.

Then in the fifth round, the challenger enraged the champion further with a head butt. Mando, on advice from his corner, went into action on Numata's body and that signalled the beginning of the end for Numata.

An interested observer was Panama's Ismael Laguna, whose handlers have offered Ramos $150,000 for a title fight in Panama.

Indian Red Gets Revenge

Ernie (Indian Red) Lopez, hopelessly beaten on points for nine rounds, finally caught up with Hedgemon Lewis to score a knockout victory in the final round of the scheduled 10-rounder. The fast-punching Lewis piled up a decisive margin on points throughout the fight, using a sharp left hook and beating Lopez to the punch.

Purdue's Gamble Pays Off

2-Point Conversion Nips Injuns, 36-35

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) —Mike Phipps hurled a record five touchdown passes, the last with only 3:03 left, but his biggest heave was a two-point conversion pass to Greg Fenner which pulled Purdue to a 36-35 cliff-hanger victory over Stanford Saturday.

The victory was the third in as many games for the eighth-ranked Boilermakers and snapped Stanford's two-game winning streak.

The Indians had their heroes, too, including Jim Plunkett, who hurled four touchdown passes of his own. But two of his throws were intercepted and the final theft, picked off by defender Mike Renie with 2:40 left, spelled curtains for Stanford.

It was a passing show from start to finish before 65,000 fans in 80-degree weather.

Phipps completed 28 of 39 passes, including his last 12, for 429 yards, also a single-game school record. None of his throws was intercepted. Plunkett connected on 23 of 46 for 355 yards.

Three times the score was tied, including 21-21 at the half, but then Plunkett found his receivers for two touchdowns to give Stanford a 35-21 lead going into the final period.

However, Stanford was shut out in the final stanza while Phipps' deadly passing accounted for two scores, and the pass-conversion spelled the difference.

Phipps first touchdown pass in the fourth period went to fullback John Bullock for 21 yards. His second, good for 14 yards, was to Stan Brown. It came right after Phipps had fired a 65-yard throw to Randy Cooper. Both Brown and Bullock scored twice.

Oh, Deer! Troy On Target, 31-7

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

CORVALLIS, Ore. — More than 175,000 hunters prowled the sunny, wooded hills of Oregon Saturday in search of deer.

But the most accurate marksman of the day was USC quarterback Jimmy Jones, who fired three touchdown passes as the undefeated Trojans overran Oregon State, 31-7 for their third victory.

It was a mercy killing accomplished with the aid of slashing running from Clarence Davis and clutch plays from Terry DeKraai.

Most of all, the victory was achieved by a suffocating defense and an offensive line that blew the Beavers out of Parker Stadium to the astonishment of 33,013 Oregon State Boosters.

So complete was USC's mastery, Oregon State got past midfield only once after its touchdown, which was achieved in the first minute and 43 seconds of the game.

USC's win was the most one-sided over Oregon State since a 34-0 crusher in 1954.

Davis continued to amaze friends and foes.

The junior halfback from East L.A. College ripped the Beavers for 181 yards in 29 carries, only eight yards shy of O.J. Simpson's effort against Oregon State in a 3-0 upset two years ago.

Davis still is running ahead of the Wonderous One in total yardage after three games.

DeDraai gave the Trojans several lifts when they needed them badly.

With USC trailing in the second quarter, DeKraai ran a continuing pattern on a broken play and snared Jones' rifle shot for a 12-yard touchdown.

Then, with 38 seconds left in the half, the former Long Beach City College end recovered Larry Rich's fumble at the Beaver 22. Then he nabbed a 14-yard pass from Jim Fassel to put the Trojans in position for Ron Ayala's 21-yard field goal that gave USC a 10-7 halftime lead with four seconds left.

Davis and DeKraai were selected back and lineman of the game.

USC achieved total domination of the action in the third quarter, moving for two touchdowns that sent the Trojans out of reach of the Beavers.

USC achieved total domination of the action in the third quarter, moving for two touchdowns that send the Trojans out of reach of the Beavers.

Davis was given excellent fullback help from Mike Berry and Lou Harris, who added 66 yards between them. Total rushing yardage for the day from Simpson's old position was 247.

Coach John McKay threw the credit to the Trojan offensive line.

"This is the best blocking line we've had," he said in the dressing room.

Referring to injured flanker Bob Chandler, who was left home and may miss several more games, McKay observed: "He's home from the hospital and listened to the game. He's probably running around and jumping up and down."

Beaver coach Dee Andros bemoaned mistakes by his team in the first half.

"We gave them everything they got in the first half but they earned everything they got in the second half," he said.

And then, with a sigh, the Great Pumpkin added: "Great teams make the

49ERS LOSE PARKS FOR SEASON

Valley Shocks Cal State 32-21

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

Valley State scored 20 points in the second half Saturday night to ruin Cal State Long Beach's Veterans Stadium debut, 32-21.

The loss was the second in a row for Jim Stangeland's troops and was a costly one.

All-America end Billy Parks had to be helped from the field last in the fourth quarter when he suffered a broken shoulder. Parks will be out for the season.

The 49ers took a 14-12 halftime lead on touchdowns by Bryan Shaw and Leon Burns, but could do little right after the intermission.

Valley took the lead midway through the third period on a 3-yard pass from Steve Hartman to Paul Goodwin and then extended it to 26-14 two minutes later when Dale Hewitt ran 55 yards with an intercepted Shawn McKinney pass.

Early in the fourth quarter the 49ers closed within five, 26-20 when Burns scored on a fourth down, 4-yard run but Valley iced things with 18 and 28-yard field goals by Danny DeMonbrun.

The 49ers had only one sustained drive in the first half and that enabled them to take a 14-12 intermission advantage.

Stangeland's troops blitzed 74 yards in four plays for their second TD after Valley had taken a 12-7 lead with 1:12 remaining in the second quarter.

McKinney sandwiched completions to Riggen (12 yards) and Turner (seven yards) around an incomplete pass before calling a screen to Burns.

McKinney set things up perfectly, lofting his toss over a fierce Matador blitz, and Burns took things into his own hands, blazing down the west sideline for 55 yards and the TD, getting key blocks from Sam Redd and Parks.

Don Evans' second conversion made it 14-12.

Valley, which dominated first-half play, took a 6-0 lead early in the second period when Forrester culminated an 85-yard drive with a one-yard scoring run.

Long Beach failed to mount anything which resembled a sustained march, moved into the lead with 7:24 to go in the half when Shaw stepped in front of a Valley receiver to steal a Moorman pass and ran 40 yards for State's first defensive TD of the year.

After an exchange of punts, Valley drove 25 yards to regain the lead when end Paul Goodwin scored a two-yard reverse.

Bruins' 'Home Run' Barrage Buries Northwestern, 36-0

By DAVE LEWIS
Staff Writer

EVANSTON, Ill. — Scoring four touchdowns and narrowly missing another in the final 10 minutes of play, UCLA's Bruins finally routed Northwestern, 36-0, Saturday to achieve what they came to do — register their fourth consecutive victory.

However, it took two "home run" plays within a period of a minute and 24 seconds late in the third quarter to produce 14 quick points and a third quick thrust midway in the final to break the backs of the Wildcats, who had given the Bruins a nervous time of it up to then, before a hometown crowd of 41,015 in Dyche Stadium on the shores of Lake Michigan.

UCLA was leading by only a 10-0 margin going into the final moments of the third quarter when Dennis Dummit passed 58 yards to George Farmer for one touchdown and Mickey Cureton followed it up with a 61-yard run to make it 24-0.

That was the signal for coach Tommy Prothro to start playing his reserves, but Cureton came back in later to break loose for another TD on a 75-yard run.

Cureton's two scoring jaunts were the longest runs recorded by a Bruin back so far this season. His total of 179 yards on 11 carries also marked his biggest day in a UCLA uniform.

His previous best game was against Washington State as a soph last year. He gained 106 yards in that one.

The Bruins got off to a shaky start and, although they did manage to gain a little breathing room with a 10-0 lead at intermission, they suffered through a very nervous first half.

Twice in the first 10 minutes the Bruins had to fight off Northwestern scoring threats. They didn't record a first down for 11½ minutes and required almost 13 minutes to produce their first score.

After dropping behind 7-0, Northwestern came back in the second quarter to move into UCLA territory three more times, reaching the 36-31 and 30-yard lines before being turned back by the Bruins.

UCLA's initial first down came on a 37-yard pass from Dummit to Gwen Cooper and set up the first score, which was registered by Greg Jones on a nine-yard burst over right tackle.

Up to that time the Bruins found themselves with their backs to the wall fighting off the Wildcats.

Northwestern had the Bruins trapped in their own territory during the opening minutes of play and gained excellent field position on UCLA's first two punts by sore-legged Zenon Andrusyshyn.

On the first, Northwestern put the ball in play at the UCLA 45. With the Bruin defense set up for a passing game, the Wildcats countered with a running attack which carried them to the five-yard line before stalling. On fourth down quarterback Dave Shelbourne tried to pass for a TD on a fake field goal play but missed his intended receiver.

On Andrusyshyn's next punt out to midfield, the Bruins unintentionally committed a piling-on foul and the 15-yard marchoff

Vikings Land First Victory, Clip Winless Mt. Sac, 21-7

By DAVE DANIEL

WALNUT — Long Beach City College finally played like coach Paul Chase said it could by defeating Mt. San Antonio College, 27-7, before a sparse crowd Saturday night.

The Vikings put together their best offensive and defensive game of the year to chalk up their first win of the season. Mt. San Antonio is now 0-3.

Lenny Gaeta, rushed for 119 yards on 24 carries to lead the Viking attack. Jim Kirby rushed 103 yards on nine carries, including a 71-yard touchdown run in the fourth period.

Lenny Gaeta tried to single-handedly whip the Mounties in the first half as LBCC took a 13-0 lead to the dressing room.

Gaeta, "the roadrunner" from Wilson High, rushed for 73 yards on 15 carries and added 37 on five pass receptions in the opening two periods while scoring both Viking touchdowns.

LBCC took the opening kickoff and marched 72 yards in 12 plays. Gaeta gained 56 yards off LBCC's 57 on the ground drive, including the final five for the score.

The second touchdown was set up when cornerback Wendell Brooks intercepted a Don Gray pass on the LBCC 30 and ran it back 62 yards to the Mountie 8 before being pushed out of bounds.

Three plays later Gaeta scored on a screen pass from Terry Widel from four yards out.

The Vikings totaled 140 yards on the first half to MSAC's 76. The Mounties were held to only nine yards rushing, thanks mostly to big defensive end Drew Taylor, playing his best game of the season.

The Vikings picked off three passes with Gary Carter adding a pair sandwiched around Brooks' theft. The first one came on the LBCC 10 and thwarted the deepest penetration of the opening 30 minutes by the Mounties.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

Executive Sports Editor

Hate to Say I Told You So . . .

'Tis the season to rejoice!

No mistletoe, no holly. . .'tis far too early for that enjoyment. But 162 games ago when the natives were tossing darts and sundry other items in this gentleman's direction after they read his crystal balling of the major league baseball races, the poor souls couldn't comprehend the logic of the Hollingworth Handicap.

Now, 162 games later, the unbelievers are ready to be baptized.

And with sound reason. The Hollingworth Handicap predicted correctly the outcome of three of four major league divisional races. Sorrowfully, the lone loser was in the National League's Eastern Division, where the St. Louis Cardinals fell to the junk team from New York, the Mets.

But, then, NOBODY picked the Mets to win their division, let alone finish ahead of the Cardinals.

To refresh your memory, we'll cite our handicap of April 6.

THE HOLLINGWORTH HANDICAP tabbed Baltimore to win its division, even though Detroit had made a shambles of the American League the year before. The preseason analysis read this way:

'This pick does seem strange since Detroit triumphed so easily last season. However, few A.L. teams repeat since the Yankee dynasty, and the Orioles have excellent balance — fine pitching, plus such craftsmen as Frank Robinson, Brooks Robinson and Boog Powell."

Any questions from the audience?

The Minnesota Twins were given the nod in the American League's other division, with this reflection:

"There's not too much to beat in the Twins' division, and the hunch persists that fiery new boss Billy Martin will light a fire under this club and shake it from its usual state of discontent."

Billy Boy indeed did light a fire. He gave the one-two to a recalcitrant pitcher named Dave Boswell, a native of (get this) Baltimore, and from that point the Twins were home free.

WE CALLED the National League's Western Division a tight race, which indeed it was. The problems were threefold — San Francisco (most everybody's choice), Atlanta and Cincinnati. We gave the Dodgers a pass, figuring them to be fourth. That's the position in which they repose today.

The April 6 report was recorded this way:

"Why Atlanta instead of the Giants? "It's the considered opinion here that Hank Aaron, Orlando Cepeda, Felipe Alou and Rico Carty are ready to put it all together this time with the help of solid pitching from Phil Niekro, Milt Pappas, Pat Jarvis and some fine youngsters. Sure, the Giants have their M-squad (Mays, Marichal, McCovey), but they've had them before and been unable to find the winner's circle."

Our one loser of four (St. Louis) had its problems. Anytime a second-rate announcer (Harry Caray) and over-the-hill players attempt to dictate a managers' moves, a club has to be in trouble. Boss Red Schoendienst, signed to a new contract, will correct that problem fast. My backup quarterback for that information is Stan Musial.

THE QUESTION asked at every Pine Ave., Broadway and Ocean Blvd. intersection is: "What happened to the Dodgers?"

My answer is simple: "They were outclassed, they had too many young kids and they were damned fortunate to stay in the race as long as they did."

Don't go away angry. Could you expect such as Ted Sizemore, Bill Sudakis, Willie Crawford and Bill Grabarkewitz to play daily on the same level as McCovey, Marichal, Aaron, Mays, Carty, Perry, Cepeda or Bonds?

The Dodgers figured to be fourth in their division. The stimulus of that grand, old man, Walter Alston, kept the juveniles in contention until the final weeks.

Now, the question: How can the Dodgers advance — even with their youngster potential — against the Braves, Giants or even Cincinnati?

One not within the inner sanctum makes this simple report:

"The Dodgers need more people like Andy Kosko. He hits at the right time, though not for a great average. A healthy Wes Parker is an asset. The little kid at second base (Ted Sizemore) is terrific. Willie Davis could be outstanding, but Willie always thinks that Willie is the greatest. No good for team morale.

"Willie Crawford could be a good one, but he makes too many mistakes. He might learn, but I doubt it. Tom Haller is getting old but still is the best catcher in the business, outside of Cincy's Johnny Bench. The Dodgers' best man is Claude Osteen. That man has done so much with such little help that it's impossible to believe.

"Bill Singer could be a real great pitcher. Don Sutton, I don't know. He's got too much temperament. Manny Mota is fine and the Dodgers should exploit him more. The same with Len Gabrielsen, Maury Wills has the guts, but when you reach 40 (Maury professes to a mere 38), you just don't have it. Ask Jim Gilliam.

"To me the Dodger problem, if there is any, is simple. Play your best men every day. Don't horse around putting (Jim) Lefebvre at second base one night, then at third, then at first base. I know what Alston's trying to do now, but it's still bush league."

THE ANGEL SITUATION is less delicate. The Halos finished higher in the standings than the Dodgers, albeit considerably more games behind the pace.

Which leads to a point. Since Lefty Phillips was given a new contract (which we advocated the last two months), how will the malcontents react?

Color the Angels pure white, and that wasn't meant in the vein of player personnel. Old baggy-pants will dispose of the troublemakers and his every trade will be to the Angels' advantage. Anything — anything at all — is a step in the right direction.

LONGHORNS STAMPEDE, 56-17

Texas Runs Navy Aground

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Fourth-ranked Texas used an awesome ground attack paced by two touchdowns each from Ted Koy and Eddie Phillips Saturday night to overpower hapless Navy, 56-17, for its 12th consecutive win and Darrell Royal's 100th victory as the Longhorn coach.

	Navy	Tex
First downs	15	24
Rushing yardage
Passing yardage	254	72
Return yardage	66	3
Passes	17-47-1	7-10-1
Punts	9-31.1	1-26
Fumbles lost	3
Yards penalized	26	62

Phillips, a sophomore quarterback, scored on keepers of 15 and seven yards and Koy, a senior halfback, got his on runs of one and three yards as Texas ground out a whopping 523 yards on the ground.

Former President and Mrs. Lyndon Johnson were among those who watched the game.

Jim Bertelsen ran 43 yards for a score on Texas' first offensive play, then Koy added his two scores and starting quarterback James Street ran in from the six before Royal turned the game over to reserves midway through the second quarter.

The 56 points was the most ever given up by a Navy squad and was the biggest point output for a Texas team since 1949.

Navy could muster only 34 yards on the ground but picked up a respectable 254 through the air as Mike McNallen tied a Navy school record for hhe most passes attempted in a single game with 45.

Navy came out throwing from the opening whistle but couldn't make an offensive showing until the last half when Texas' starting teams were on the bench.

Texas Tech Corralled by Okla. State

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI) — Oklahoma State's high-riding Cowboys came alive in the second half Saturday to corral Texas Tech, 17-10, and pull of their second consecutive upset victory of the young season.

The Southwest Conference Raiders controlled the first half, with Miles Langehenning crashing through the OSU line from the one for a score during their first possession.

Sanders came back in the second quarter with a 34-yard field goal and the afternoon was beginning to sadden for Cowboy fans.

But in the fourth quarter Robert Cutburth squirmed out of the hands of several Raider defenders and tossed a seven-yard pass to Bobby Cole for the final touchdown.

3rd-Ranked Razors Romp, 24-6

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Quarterback Bill Montgomery connected with split end Chuck Dicus on touchdown passes of 73 and 63 yards, Saturday to give third-ranked Kansas a 24-6 Southwest conference win over Texas Christian.

Montgomery, who was injured in the last quarter, hit on 10 of 21 passes for 170 yards. He stunned an inspired TCU team, which had lost 62-0 the week before to No. 1 Ohio State, with his 73-yard toss to Dicus with 11:56 remaining in the first half to start the Razorbacks rolling.

Arkansas' other touchdown came on a one-yard scamper by tailback Bill Burnett and a 38-yard field goal by Bill McClard.

TCU was plagued by three fumbles and a pass interception but managed to score on field goals of 21 and 22 yards by Wayne Merrilt.

Penn State Fights Off Kansas St.

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI) — Kansas State, once the doormat of Big Eight football, proved Saturday it can play with anybody. But, the Wildcats did it losing.

K-State reeled off more first downs and made more yardage than Eastern power Penn State, the nation's No. 2 ranked team, but the Wildcats also made the most mistakes and the latter proved the difference as the Nittany Lions escaped with a 17-14 victory.

It was Penn State's 14th consecutive win and 22nd in a row without a loss, but even Lion coach Joe Paterno admitted there wasn't much difference between his team and Vince Gibson's.

OHIO STATE, 41-14

Top-Ranked Bucks Rip Huskies

SEATTLE (AP) — Rex Kern, a master of fakery, confused the enemy with strikes by land and air Saturday to lead the Ohio State Buckeyes to a 41-14 intersectional football victory over Washington, before an overflow crowd of 58,000.

Kern scored two touchdowns himself and sent fullback Jim Otis plunging for three more before turning the game over to the reserves in the final quarter.

Stubborn at times in the face of the awesome offense mounted by the national champion Buckeyes, Washington still fought back to score touchdowns in the second and fourth quarters.

Bill Urbanik, Ohio State defensive tackle, set up his team's first touchdown when he recovered a fumbled Washington handoff early in the first quarter. Kern plunged for a yard and then turned, faked a handoff to John Brockington, but cradled the ball in his own right arm and circled through right tackle for 64 yards and the touchdown.

The Buckeyes showed they could grind out yardage, too, crunching 57 yards in 11 plays to their second tally. They got the third one early in the second quarter, slashing 52 yards in only six plays.

Washington managed to avoid a first-half shutout with a 54-yard drive of its own, quarterback Gene Willis diving the final yard with just 50 seconds left.

Otis punched a yard to score early in the third quarter and Kern once again rambled over on the fullback fake from the four-yard line to make it 35-7 with a quarter left.

A Washington fumble, again recovered by Urbanik on the Washington 22 set up the final Buckeye touchdown. Ron Maciejowski goutz over on a keeper from the side. Washington struck back at once with a 73-yard drive climaxed by Buddy Kennamer's seven-yard dash.

Wash. State Rally Fails, Oregon Wins

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — The University of Oregon grabbed a thrilling 25-24 Pacific-8 football conference victory over Washington State Saturday behind the passing of quarterback Tom Blanchard and the running of sideback Bobby Moore.

Moore, a 6-foot-2, 218-pound speedster, scored twice on runs of eight and two yards.

Blanchard threw a 38-yard touchdown pass to split end Bob Newland in the second period as the Ducks raced to a 19-6 halftime advantage.

However, the Cougars excited a Dad's Day crowd of 21,092 by making a brilliant comeback late in the final quarter after trailing 25-12.

Golden Bears Score Late, Stun Underdog Rice, 31-21

BERKELEY (AP) — California scored twice in the last 53 seconds, once on a 19-yard touchdown pass and again on a 29-yard interception return, to stun underdog Rice 31-21 in an intersectional football game Saturday.

The Golden Bears trailed 17-7 late in the third quarter but fought back to trail only 21-17. Reserve quarterback Steve Curtis then tossed to end Jim Calkins in the end zone.

Surrounded by defenders, Calkins leaped high, made a spectacular catch and fell in scoring territory for the go-ahead points. Seconds later, Rice went to the air and Cal's Paul Martyr intercepted and ran it back all the way for the clincher.

Rice, a 19-point underdog, took their 21-17 lead on two quick touchdowns in the third period.

Quarterback Stable Vincent flipped a pitchout to sprinter Dale Bernauer who skirted right end for a four-yard score. Then, after Rice defensive back Dave Keys recovered a fumble by Stan Murphy on the ensuing kickoff, Vincent scored himself on a five-yard run around the left side.

In the fourth quarter each team fumbled twice and Cal missed a chance to score when the Owls held on the one-yard line. Rice moved the ball out to its own five, then punted.

Mizzou Explodes, Routs Wolverines

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Ron McBride highlighted a 24-point Missouri second quarter with a pair of short touchdown runs Saturday which carried the ninth-ranked Tigers to a 40-17 upset win over Michigan.

The Tigers held a 24-3 halftime lead over the 11th-ranked Wolverines favored by one point on their home field for this intersectional battle, but a pair of one-yard plunges over right tackle by fullback Garvie Craw in the third quarter put Michigan back in the game 24-17.

However, junior Mike Bennett broke through to block a Mark Werner punt and Missouri recovered on the Michigan 12, enabling Henry Brown to kick his second field goal of the day from 24 yards out.

Theismann Guides Irish Past Michigan St., 42-28

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Fiery quarterback Joe Theismann pitched three scoring passes and scooted to a fourth touchdown in leading aroused Notre Dame to a 42-28 victory over arch-rival Michigan State in a free wheeling football game Saturday.

It was the first setback for the 14th-ranked Michigan State after victories over Washington and Southern Methodist.

The Irish, last week belted by Purdue out of the nation's top 20 ranking, loosed a devastating, well balanced attack to twice break ties at 7-7 and 14-14. Scrappy Michigan State joined in an all-time scoring high in the ancient Notre Dame-Spartan rivalry.

BROADWAY JOE A FIXTURE, BUT . . .

Consider Mike Battle playing pro football for the Jets and you decide that one of these days he's going to get killed. If so, Mike feels, New York is a great place for it to happen.

"I'm having a pretty good time," he says. "New York City has anything you want. Of course, I've gotta play football, too . . ."

Ah, there's the catch. Battle, an all-America defensive back and crack kick returner at USC after a brief but brash career at Long Beach City College, has the marks of a lamb being fattened for the slaughter.

"I'm on seven of the eight specialty teams," he says, fully aware that a member of a specialty team ranks with a test pilot as a n insurance risk. "I'm on the kickoff team, the kickoff receiving, punt team, punt receiving, field goal blocking, PAT blocking and I'm second-string defensive back. I'm not on the placekicking team, like when we're trying a field goal. That's mostly big people."

"I thought I could make it, for sure, but that's just because I'm a little cocky. I think I can make anything." — Mike Battle.

Battle, is not big people, although he has muscled his 6-1¼ beanstringer up to 180 pounds, 15 more than he weighed as a Trojan, but he doesn't worry about it.

"I figure if they give me a shot I'm gonna make it somewhere," he says. "If they want an idiot running down on the kickoff I'll do it, because I want to make it so bad. I was never scared. I was actually anxious to get into it."

On the defensive platoon, he is playing behind Bill Baird, as eight-year pro who, Mike admits, "knows about 18 times as much as me. But Billy Baird can't play forever, you know, and when I get my shot I'm not gonna let anybody else have it."

BATTLE WAS a 12th-round draft pick of the Jets, almost a grab bag selection, and he says, "I thought I would go lower than I did. I was just lucky to be chose by the Jets. They were world champions and there are lots of opportunities in New York."

MIKE BATTLE
Plays Football, Too

You may not have noticed, but the subject just changed from football.

"I either wanted to get drafted by a Texas team or a New York team," says Battle. "I've been in California all my life. I wanted to see what the other half's like."

So far, Mike likes what he has seen. He has taken an apartment in Manhattan: "The address is 305 East 40th St., a real nice area."

Some of the other Jets live there maybe?

"Well, uh, no . . . about 360 airline stewardesses. I happened to get a pretty good deal."

Battle's roomie is a lawyer from California and together they haven't missed much of the big city's swinging scene.

"Two or three nights before a game we have a curfew. The rest of the week you can do what you want but you really don't want to get into too much trouble. I've hit just about every place, seen 'em all. I've been introduced to most of the maitre d's and the managers. Ballplayers usually get half-price anywhere they go and that makes it nice."

Presumably, "too much trouble" would put Joe Namath's original Bachelors III off limits, but Mike says, "They just have a meeting and tell you not to frequent the place. I've eaten there. It's a real nice place. Great food and, uh . . . alcoholic beverages."

Battle (Manhattan Mike?) has even acquired a fondness for the proprietor himself.

"I've been out with Joe a couple of times. He's a great guy. He has his own thing, of course, but I'll tell ya, he loves the game and we love him. I mean when he's in the game, geez, you can't believe how much confidence there is. I mean, we're gonna score, damnit, you know what I mean?"

Battle, who hasn't played organized ball since he graduated at Lawndale High, is never in the game when Namath is hurt, adds. "I'm watching from the sidelines and hopin' nobody hits him."

MIKE, 23, LIKES the prospects of his new career, which certainly beats, say, collecting garbage, which he did last summer before reporting to the Jets.

"I just did that to get in shape," he says, "and I'll tell ya, that'll get ya in shape. I was called the swamp rat. You sit next to the driver. All he does is drive and you push all the barrels in and pull the bins and so forth. I did all the work and he did all the driving. I'd rather play football."

RICH ROBERTS

Battle now finds himself an opponent of O.J. Simpson, his teammate for the previous two seasons. Like other sidewalk critics, Mike was impressed by Simpson's acting debut on Medical Center but isn't sure he could do it himself, effervescent personality notwithstanding.

"O.J.'s a talented human being. He can do just about anything. If I got an opportunity I might, but I wouldn't want to be an idiot. I wouldn't want to do something I couldn't be good in. I don't know if I could act."

Mike, who appears on TV at 10 a.m. today with a supporting cast of Jets and Boston Patriots, plans to make the most of his personal independence and the fun opportunities offered in New York.

"I don't think I'll get married for awhile. I'm gonna wait and have a lot of fun first. I'll tell ya, there's a lot of women out there in New York and they're a lot of fun. New York's too much. I'll tell ya."

Is New York City Ready for Manhattan Mike?

RAMS ROUGH ON QB'S

One Statistic That Hurts

"Ouch," grunted quarterback Bob Berry as he was dumped behind the line. "Ouch, again . . ." he said when he bounced the second time.

This plaintive song was heard ten times in last week's game when the Rams' powerful front four poured through Atlanta's line to clobber the quarterback. Some Sundays it doesn't pay to get out of bed.

COMPUTER CORNER

According to the Sports Computer, the defensive line is more important than the offensive line in winning games. The average NFL team clobbers the opposition passer 2.5 times each week, or about 9 per cent of all pass attempts. Considering the fact that Berry was smashed 10 times last week he had reason to yell, "Ouch."

The Sports Computer poured the season statistics into our Univac 1108 sports analyzer to measure how the AFL-NFL front fours compare on this important passer tackled percentage:

NATIONAL	Pct.		Pct.	AMERICAN	Pct.		Pct.
Cleveland	2.0	New Orleans	7.0	Oakland	3.0	Houston	10.0
Rams	3.0	Washington	7.0	San Diego	3.0	Miami	11.0
Minnesota	5.0	New York	8.0	New York	5.0	Buffalo	14.0
Baltimore	6.0	Chicago	9.0	Kansas City	6.0	Denver	15.0
St. Louis	6.0	Pittsburgh	12.0	Boston	9.0	Cincinnati	17.0
San Francisco	6.0	Green Bay	14.0
Detroit	7.0	Dallas	32.0
Philadelphia	7.0	Atlanta	48.0

San Diego's front four had the equalizer in Saturday night's game against Cincinnati. The Bengals quarterbacks, Greg Cook and Sam Wyche, had been clobbered four times as often as Hadl of the Chargers.

But on a fourth-and-one try for a first down from the 23, Shelbourne was hit on the line of scrimmage by Floyd Reese and the ball popped out of his arms. Defensive back Dennis Spurling recovered in the air and returned to the 44-yard line. From there, the Bruins struck for their first score.

A second Dummit-to-Cooper aerial, this one good for 27, set the stage for a 34-yard field goal by Andrusyshyn.

The Bruins, whose play in the first half was rather lethargic, came out for the final 30 minutes in a much more aggressive mood.

They seemed headed for a touchdown the first time they got the ball, but after gaining a first down on the Northwestern 38 Dummit fumbled. It marked the 12th fumble UCLA has lost in four games.

It took almost eight minutes after that before the Bruins regained their momentum and Dummit spotted Farmer behind the Northwestern secondary. The Long Beach star hit him with a perfect pitch.

The Wildcats still hadn't recovered from this bomb when Cureton broke through right tackle on a quick opener, cut to the right sideline and barreled 61 yards for a TD.

Jim Nader and the Bruin second string then took over and produced a Bruin score early in the final period after Maury Daigneau fumbled trying to get off a pass and Jim Berg recovered on the Northwestern 22.

Nader passed 12 yards to Rick Wilkes of Long Beach to put the ball in position for Bill Bolden to roll six yards around right end for a TD.

BALTIMORE, 4-3

Blair Bunts Birds to First Playoff Win Over Twins

BALTIMORE (UPI) — "You can't beat a perfect bunt."

With that comment, Minnesota manager Billy Martin, always the realist, covered Paul Blair's 12th-inning bunt which resulted in a 4-3 victory for Baltimore Saturday in the American League's playoff opener.

"It was a very good play," Martin said, giving credit where credit was due. "Blair is a good player."

The Orioles' centerfielder delivered his game-winning bunt with two out and Mark Belanger on third. The bunt was such a perfect one that neither pitcher Ron Perranoski or catcher John Roseboro could make a play on it.

"Ron charged in and just couldn't get to it," Martin said.

Blair had been up four official times previously without a base hit.

"I hadn't been able to get a hit so I thought I might as well try to lay down a bunt," Blair said.

"Boy was I nervous. I haven't been so nervous in a long time," he continued.

Oriole manager Earl Weaver said he wasn't surprised when Blair laid down the bunt on a 1-1 count.

"Killebrew was playing in awful close and I didn't think he'd have room to do it." Weaver said. "I wouldn't have done bunt."

Braves Collapse, Mets Win Opener

ATLANTA (UPI) — "I think," mused a bitter Luman Harris Saturday, "that when you get five runs off Tom Seaver, you've got to beat him then."

Atlanta got its five runs, but a shaky defense gave the light-hitting New York Mets and their ace right-hander a 9-5 win over the Braves and a 1-0 lead in the best-of-five National League championship series.

Harris, the normally easy-going Atlanta manager, mumbled at newsmen after the defeat, but was easily audible when he spoke of the pitching of his ace knuckleballer, Phil Niekro.

Niekro gave up all nine runs, but only four were earned.

"Phil deserved a lot better fate than he got in that game," said Harris, remembering the New York eighth when five runs crossed the plate on only four hits and two errors and another mental error.

In today's game it will be Jerry Koosman (17-9), the Mets' big lefthander and the other half of their Tom and Jerry team, against Atlanta's Ron Reed (18-10).

big plays — USC did and we didn't."

It was a shocker of sizeable proportions for Andros, who had rallied his team to impressive victories over Iowa and Arizona State after an initial 37-0 embarrassment against UCLA.

From the time Andros charged through a paper hoop to lead the charging Beavers onto the field, it was apparent a fire had been kindled.

And it didn't take long for the burn to sear the Trojans.

A low, booming opening kickoff was fielded by

Troy fullback Charlie Evans, who fumbled when hit at the USC 34. Oregon State's Mel Easley came up with the ball during a huge pileup.

The Beavers scored in four plays. Quarterback Steve Endicott hit end Steve Scheele for 14 yards and Billy Main made 14 on a pitchout for key plays.

Halfback Bryce Huddleston scored from the one at 1:43.

As it developed, this was the extend of Oregon State's domination.

Once they got their bearings, the Trojans moved efficiently, especially when good opportunities were presented.

The touchdowns were scored thusly:

— Oregon State's Mike Nehl, third among Pacific-8 punters, kicked a moon shoot midway in the second quarter and the ball traveled only 25 yards to set up USC at the Beaver 33. Jones, slightly off the mark on his passing earlier, hit Evans on a 10-yard pass to set up USC at the 12. On a second-down pass attempt, Dekraai appeared covered in the corner of the end zone but kept sprinting toward the middle and Jones threw a bullet for a touchdown. Ayala's kick tied the score at 7-7.

— In the final minute of the first half, Rich's punt reception fumble set up USC at the Oregon State 22. The Trojans moved to the Beaver 8 on DeKraai's 14-yard reception of Fassel's pass. An offside penalty against the Beavers moved the ball to the four.

Injuries, Clemson Gang Up on Tech

ATLANTA (UPI) — Quarterback Tommy Kendrick celebrated a personal homecoming Saturday, firing two touchdown passes to halfback Ray Yauger, to lead Clemson to a 21-10 comeback win over Georgia Tech.

In scoring their first victory over the Yellow Jackets since 1945, the Tigers took advantabe of a Tech letdown when both first and second string quarterbacks were sidelined by injuries. Down 10-0 at the half, Clemson rammed over three second half touchdowns.

Kendrick, a sophomore from suburban Stone Mountain, Ga., hit Yauger with five-and 10-yard scoring passes, and the hard running tailback also accounted for the third Clemson score by plunging two yards.

Tech, which won its first two games with last-second heroics, ran up its 10 points with a 54-yard field goal, a school record, by Johnny Duncan, and a five-yard pass from Charlie Dudish to end Steve Foster.

Soph Triggers Gator Triumph

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Sophomore quarterback John Reaves rifled a pair of touchdown passes to flanker Carlos Alvarez before a record 63,957 fans Saturday as Florida defeated arch-rival Florida State, 21-6.

While defensive tackle Robert Harrell dogged and dumped FSU quarterback Bill Cappleman all afternoon, Reaves ran his touchdown pass total to 10 for the year as he hit Alvarez with scoring tosses of 30 and 10 yards.

Florida State's touchdown came on a 22-yard scoring pass from Cappleman to flanker Don Pederson late in the first half. Florida led 7-6 at the half before Reaves threw a 30-yarder to Alvarez in the third quarter and halfback Tommy Durrance cracked over from the one-yard line in the second half.

A raft of personal fouls, four against Florida, marred the Gator's third win of the season without a loss. Florida State is now 2-1.

Kentucky Thrashed By Auburn

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI) — Sophomore quarterback Pat Sullivan passed for four touchdowns and a veteran Auburn defense limited Kentucky to a field goal Saturday as the Tigers clobbered the Wildcats for a 44-3 Southeastern Conference win.

Sullivan hit another sophomore, Terry Beasley, with two of the scoring touchdowns and tossed to Connie Frederick and Mike Currier for two other scores.

Running back Mickey Zofko ran the ball for 115 yards and a touchdown and junior fullback Mack Crawford scored on a one-yard plunge.

Kentucky, which upset Mississippi 10-9 last week, made its lone score on a 37-yard Bob Jones field goal.

DeKraai Is Hailed After Trojan Win

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

CORVALLIS, Ore. — Terry DeKraai had caught a touchdown pass and set up a field goal and another touchdown with key receptions.

He also had recovered a fumble.

It had been the former Long Beach City College pass-catching star's biggest game at USC.

But in the Trojans' dressing quarters after USC's 31-7 victory over Oregon State Saturday, DeKraai preferred to talk about his blocking.

"I got in some good hits today," he grinned. "That's just as good as catching passes."

Trojan coach John McKay concurred.

"I thought Terry had a great day," he said. "I don't think I've ever seen a guy hit as hard in my life as the time DeKraai blocked No. 44 (Beaver linebacker Wally Johnson).

"It seems as though he gets in some good blocks every game. I'll tell you, as long as our split ends block, we'll move the ball."

DeKraai explained his 12-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter which pulled USC even with Oregon State.

"It was a broken play," he said. "I just turned at the corner of the end zone and kept heading for the middle. Jimmy (quarterback Jimmy Jones) saw me and put the ball right in my hands."

In their first experience with wall-to-wall football, the Trojans performed well. They came off their first experience on Astro-turf with few bruises but many skinned arms, elbows and legs.

"I thought we started off a little cautiously—as though it would be different playing on artificial turf," said McKay. "We wanted to make as few changes as possible.

"We didn't put on stockings or anything like that. We just wanted to play our game and forget about the turf."

Oregon State coach Dee Andros observed that he felt that he had seen Trojan tailback Clarence Davis somewhere before.

"He's a lot like Mike Garrett," said Andros. "He has the speed and ability to find daylight. And that Jones . . . he has great poise to go along with the ability he has."

Agase Rates USC, UCLA 'Even'

By DAVE LEWIS
Staff Writer

EVANSTON, Ill. — Alex Agase barely had time to take a deep breath after his hapless Northwestern Wildcats had suffered their third lopsided defeat in a row, 36-0, when reporters were asking him to compare crosstown rivals, UCLA and USC.

The Trojans overwhelmed Northwestern last week, 48-6.

"I rate them almost dead even," Agase declared. "Both can beat you with the long gainer and they both can throw the bomb. In fact, they'll probably trade bombs when they play each other."

As he continued his comparison, the Northwestern coach pointed out that both have tremendous team speed, but UCLA's is a different kind than USC's. "UCLA has 'finesse quickness,' whereas the Trojans have 'power quickness,'" he said.

"I'd have to say both teams are about on a par at quarterback. I couldn't rate Dummit or Jones over the other. They're both very good.

"I'd have to give an edge to USC on defense," Alex went on. "The Trojans stopped us cold. We ran the ball very well against UCLA."

Meanwhile, UCLA coach Tommy Prothro said, "Ninety per cent of our trouble was that we weren't ready to play a big game. In the first half, I was frustrated, yes, but not worried. I felt the boys would be able to handle the situation all right.

"Northwestern played real good in the first half, particularly so considering their first two games. They have a brutal schedule," Tommy declared.

Agase agreed. "Who plays Notre Dame, USC and UCLA in a row? Could anyone else do it? Would anyone else do it?" Dummit himself blamed the slow start against Northwestern to "probably being a little flat. We weren't up for the game. Then, too, when you play on the road against a team which hasn't done very good and you have only your teammates cheer for you, it isn't as easy."

Pittsburgh Ends Victory Drought

— Pittsburgh got two first half touchdowns Saturday on passes by quarterbacks Jim Friedl and Frank Justine and then held off a Duke rally to snap a nine-game losing streak with a 14-12 victory.

Friedl threw a five-yard scoring pass to fullback Tony Esposito in the first period. Justine, a second-stringer, threw a 30-yard bomb to end George Medich with six minutes left in the half.

The Blue Devils came back late in the third period following a pass interception by Bernie Jackson on the Pitt 32, getting on the scoreboard on a six-yard pass from Tom Hart to split end Wes Chesson.

The First Century: Radio, TV, Thorpe

It was rather fitting that Rutgers should defeat Princeton last week in "The Centennial Game" of this centennial year of college football.

For it was Rutgers which posted the first victory in the game that launched football back in 1869.

It was not football as we know it now. You undoubtedly know by now that it was played under soccer rules with 25 men on each side. Rutgers won, 6 goals to 4.

What is not generally known is that Rutgers was in on another major "first" 20 years later . . . defeating Pennsylvania, 10-0, in the first game ever held indoors.

It was played in Madison Square Garden almost 70 years before anyone even dreamed of building an indoor stadium like the Astrodome for football and baseball.

Many facts are being presented from time to time in this centennial year, but probably the most amazing is that there are only about 100 more colleges playing football today (338) than at the turn of the century 69 years ago, despite the great population growth.

The popularity of football can best be told by the attendance figures. Only a couple of hundred spectators, mostly friends of the players, witnessed the Rutgers-Princeton game in 1869. Since 1952, there has been an increase in attendance at college games every year. Last season, 27 million fans attended the contests . . . and millions more watched on television.

EIGHTEEN YEARS AFTER THE FIRST GAME, football still was played in the form of soccer or rugby.

But a student writing for the school newspaper at Notre Dame made a most accurate observation after Michigan's rugby team defeated the Irish, 8-0, at South Bend. He stated that "the game has started an enthusiastic football boom."

The first radio station to broadcast a game was KDKA of Pittsburgh which aired the 1921 Pitt-West Virginia contest. By the end of the 1920's, radio was bringing football to fans all over the country and produced such celebrities as Graham McNamee, Ted Husing and Bill Stern.

The first game ever televised was the Fordham-Waynesburg affair in 1939 in New York.

It was estimated that about 2,000 persons watched the game on 1,000 sets. They saw Fordham gain an easy 34-7 victory.

Nobody dreamed then that one day college games would be watched by as many as 60 million fans across the country.

THE TWO MEN WHO PERHAPS had the most influence in the development of football as we now know it were Walter Camp and Amos Alonzo Stagg.

Camp generally is remembered as the one who picked the first all-America teams and historians call him "the father of American football." He was the moving force in reducing the team total to 11 players, standardizing the length of the field at 100 yards, putting the ball in play from scrimmage, using quarterback signals.

Stagg played and coached for 74 years and was responsible for such innovations as the huddle, backfield shift, quick kick, center snap, halfback pass and many, many others which have become a vital part of the game.

In the 1920's, Knute Rockne of Notre Dame played a major role in popularizing the game. Many call him the greatest coach of all time, others say that he would best be described as football's "greatest salesman."

THE FIRST MAN TO GIVE FOOTBALL fan interest on a national scale was the immortal Indian star, Jim Thorpe.

Despite the fact more words have been written about him than any other player, fans know little of some interesting details about Jim.

He was one of twin boys born in a one-room log cabin in Prague, Oklahoma, on May 28, 1888. His twin brother died at the age of 8.

Jim's Indian name was Wa-Tho-Huck or "Bright Path." His grandfather was an Irishman while his mother was a granddaughter of the famed Sac and Fox warrior, Chief Black Hawk.

In 1907, at the age of 19, he entered Carlisle Indian School, an institution that met the best in football although it rated only as a high school academically. It offered no classes above the 12th grade, but its students generally had the physical maturity of college men.

One of his greatest performances came against Army in 1912. Thorpe took the opening kickoff and raced 95 yards to a touchdown only to have it nullified by a penalty. Army kicked off again. This time Thorpe caught the ball on the goal line . . . and promptly ran 100 yards to a TD.

A cadet by the name of Dwight Eisenhower was on the Army team that day.

JIM WAS A NATURAL IN ANY SPORT. When he won both the pentathlon and decathlon in the 1912 Olympic Games in Stockholm, King Gustaf V of Sweden told him, "Sir, you are the greatest athlete in the world."

In 1950, the halfway mark of the century, the AP conducted a poll to determine the greatest athlete of the first 50 years. Thorpe was the winner.

Despite his success in football, Thorpe always said that he liked to play baseball best of all.

He played briefly in the major leagues but couldn't hit a curve ball consistently. However, he played nearly 10 years in the minor leagues, finally finishing up at Akron in 1928 at the age of 40.

Saints, Acting Like Devils, Take Shot at Rams Today

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

For the New Orleans Saints, the Titans keep coming — Rams, Cleveland and Baltimore, in that order — but after the first two games it may not be like charging Iwo Jima with a broomstick.

The Saints march into the Coliseum today the loser by close margins in two previous NFL games. The Rams are unbeaten and 16-point favorites, which prompted their long-ball pass receiver, Jack Snow, to observe:

"Every football team wants to knock off the leader, an undefeated team. That's the one they point for, and in this league . . ."

Snow didn't have to finish the sentence. The Saints will be pointing for the Rams in this inter-division contest which is expected to attract 55,000 or more for the 1:05 kickoff.

The Rams, who hold a one-game lead over Atlanta and two-game bulge over Baltimore and San Francisco, whipped the Colts, 27-20, and Falcons, 17-7.

Failures in the exhibition season, Tom Fears' Bayou Boys showed the NFL — and Washington and Dallas — they were alive and angry, even though falling 10 points short.

Fears, who has his Saints playing like devils, dropped a 26-20 decision to Vince Lombardi's Redskins and last week led the Cowboys, 17-14, until midway in the final period at New Orleans. Dallas won, 21-17.

This is only the second league game between the Saints and Rams. George Allen's forces won the initial encounter, 27-13, in Cajun Country in 1967.

The Rams remember it well because John Gilliam electified the huge Sugar Bowl crowd with a 94-yard opening kickoff run. Guiding the flent on the field that day was quarterback Bill Kilmer, a fellow well remembered as a star at UCLA. He's still at the Saints' helm.

"Kilmer," said Allen, "is the kind of quarterback who can give us trouble. He has a quick release which can nullify a good rush."

Kilmer may have to have an extra quick release if he is to escape the fate of Atlanta's Bob Berry. The Rams dumped him 10 times for 74 yards in losses attempting to pass. Two other sacks were nullified because of penalties.

Kilmer has had only two passes intercepted but Roman Gabriel of the Rams has gone two games without a theft. The first pass Gabriel throws today will give him the club record for most aerials attempted.

Gabe and Dutch Van Brocklin share the club record with 1,897 career passes. Gabriel, who has tossed 4 touchdown passes this season, is 17 short of Van Brocklin's club mark of 118.

LARSON'S LINE:
Rams 27, Saints 14

Today's game with New Orleans has special meaning for Les Josephson. "The pre-season game with the Saints last year marked the end of the season for me, though I didn't know it at the time," the Rams' fullback remarked. It was on the following weekend, standing in the Coliseum tunnel waiting to be introduced for the Cleveland game, that Josie sustained the first of two freak accidents that were to sidelline him for a year with a torn Achilles heel.

The Saints activated defensive back Bobby Thompson, filling a void created when Carl Ward was placed on the injured waiver list. In a surprise move, the southerners also dropped punter Tom McNeill, No. 3 in the NFL this season, and activated wide receiver Dile Cordill, who also punts.

Miami Ties Oakland on Late Kick

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Rookie Karl Kremser kicked a 39-yard field goal to give the winless Miami Dolphins a 20-20 tie with unbeaten Oakland Saturday night before an American Football League crowd that included President Nixon.

Beaten 20-17 in a heartbreaker at Oakland two weeks before, the gritty Dolphins faced an identical fate until the lithe kid from Tennessee knotted the score at 5:41 of the final period.

The Raiders, now 3-0-1, used a break to take the 20-17 edge before an Orange Bowl gathering of 35,614. Bill Laskey intercepted a Bob Griese pass at the Miami 48 to ignite a touchdown drive.

Hubbert's 3 TDs Propel Chargers

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Fullback Brad Hubbert ran for three touchdowns, the last breaking a fourth-quarter tie, to give the San Diego Chargers a 21-14 revenge victory Saturday night that knocked the Cincinnati Bengals out of the American Football League Western Division lead before 52,748 fans.

Hubbert, recovered from a year-long knee injury, cracked eight yards over right tackle in the first quarter, two over center in the second and one over center in the fourth to set a Charger touchdown record.

His final run came after he scampered 24 yards around right end to the one with the score tied 14-14 with 9:55 left in the game.

The loss knocked previously undefeated Cincinnati into second place behind Oakland, which was tied 20-20 by Miami.

Vanderbilt Tire Guarantee

Every Vanderbilt tire is guaranteed for the life of the original tread, against manufacturing defects and workmanship, and against all failures from road hazards. If tire fails, we will — at our option — repair it at no cost, or in exchange for a new tire, charge only for the tread used. The amount charged will be on a pro-rata basis against the current selling price at time of adjustment plus Federal Excise Tax.

Every Vanderbilt tire is guaranteed against wear-out for the number of months specified. If tread wears out within stated period (less than 2/32") return the tire to any auto center selling Vanderbilt tires. We will exchange it for a new tire, charging the current selling price at time of adjustment plus Federal Excise Tax, less a stated allowance.

4TH-QUARTER PASS DECISIVE

Texas A&M Outmaneuvers Surprised Cadets, 20-13

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — Texas A&M split end Ross Brupbacher took a short pass from Rocky Self and outmaneuvered two Army defenders for a 27-yard touchdown play midway through the final period Saturday that clinched a 20-13 victory.

A&M had taken a 13-10 lead into the fourth quarter on Self's one-yard plunge and Mike Bellar's field goals of 24 and 22 yards. After A&M's Dave Elmendorf intercepted an Army pass on the Cadet 37, Self scrambled for 11 yards on the second play, then two plays later found Brupbacher in the clear in the right flat.

Powerful Army fullback Lynn Moore, who gained 118 yards in the first half, returned the kickoff 80 yards to the Aggie 10 immediately after the catch by Brupbacher had put A&M in front, 20-10. But the A&M defense, which held Army to 14 yards and no first downs in the third quarter, stiffened and Cadet kicker Arden Jensen booted his second field goal of the game from 26 yards to close out the scoring.

Richey Surprises Ashe at Berkeley

BERKELEY (AP) — Cliff Richey upset top seeded Arthur Ashe, his U.S. Davis Cup teammate, and Stan Smith stopped Thomaz Koch Saturday to move into the final round of the Pacific Coast International tennis tournament.

Richey, of San Angelo, Tex., rallied to beat Ashe, the No. 1 amateur in the nation, 9-11, 6-4, 6-4, with a steady game. Though close to putting Richey away in the final sets, Ashe, from Richmond, Va., could never break service.

This was the first time Richey had beaten Ashe in tournament competition.

Smith, of Pasadena, won the other finalist berth by beating Koch of Brazil, 11-9, 10-8.

The finals will be played today for $4,000 first-prize money. Ashe and Koch will play for $1,100 third-place money. Second place is worth $2,000.

In women's play, favorite Margaret Court of Australia defeated Patti Hogan of La Jolla, 6-3, 6-2. Mrs. Court has lost only 10 games in three matches in this tournament.

Gaining the other finalist spot was Scotland's Winnie Shaw, who had her first easy victory of the tournament, beating 19-year-old Australian Leslie Hunt, 6-0, 6-4.

Kings Down to Final Club

VICTORIA, B.C. (Special) — The Kings will show their "varsity" roster to three Western Hockey League opponents in a whirlwind Northwest tour starting tonight.

The Kings, missing three veterans — injured goalie Wayne Rutledge and unsigned defensemen Bill White and Larry Cahan — but bolstered by three bright rookies — forwards Dennis Hextall and Ross Lonsberry and defenseman Dale Hoganson — meet Seattle tonight, then play at Vancouver Tuesday and Portland Wednesday.

They open National Hockey League play at Montreal Saturday night.

The roster:

Forwards: Bryan Campbell, Bill Flett, Dennis Hextall, Ted Irvine, Ed Joyal, Skip Krake, Ross Lonsberry, Jimmy Peters, Leon Rochefort, Eddie Shack.
Defensemen: Dale Hoganson, Brent Hughes, Noel Price, Dale Rolfe, Bob Wall.
Goltenders: Gerry Desjardins, Claude Hardy.

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Lunkers Planted for Late Fishing

If you are one of those late vacationists who didn't have to worry about getting the kids back into school and who likes the Indian summer that often is encountered in the Sierra Nevada country in October and early November, there may be an old eight-pound rainbow waiting for your bait or lure under a rock in one of a score of lakes.

The Department of Fish and Game ended its trout-planting program in Inyo and Mono Counties last week by planting 18 lakes and the Lower Owens River. There will be no more trout plants this year, but last week's stocking was a real finale.

The DFG had 2,000 surplus rainbow brood trout weighing from 2 to 8 pounds in its Hot Creek Hatchery. DFG officials in the Sierras decided to plant those fish on the same ratio as the one which the regular season catchable-trout allotments are based. In addition, the DFG planted the last of its regular catchables.

The week's program brought to 1¾ million catchable-size rainbows and ¾ million subcatchable rainbow and brown trout, all of which came from Hot Creek and the other hatcheries maintained by the DFG.

These were the lakes that got the last plants, including some of the big ones: North, South, Sabrina and Pleasant Valley in Inyo; Bridgeport, Twin Lakes (Bridgeport), Twin Lakes (Mammoth), Convict, George, Grant, June, Gull, Lundy, Mamie, Rock Creek Silver, all in Mono. The Owens River from Big Pine to Pleasant Valley Reservoir also was planted.

THE DFG ALSO ANNOUNCED LAST WEEK that two lakes and two streams in Southern California had been returned to the trout-planting program now that the summer weather has cooled sufficiently to permit trout survival. Those were Big Tujunga Creek in Los Angeles County, Rose Valley Lakes in Ventura County and the North Fork of the Ventura River.

If temperatures continue to drop, these other Southland waters will be placed back on the trout-planting program this month: (Santa Barbara County), Casitas and Piru (Ventura), Little Rock, Puddingstone and Legg (Los Angeles County), the Colorado River at Needles and Doane Lake and San Luis Rey and Santa Margarita Rivers (San Diego County).

Meanwhile, these were the plants that were made last week: LOS ANGELES COUNTY — Big Rock and Upper Big Tujunga Creeks, East and West Forks of the San Gabriel River, Crystal and Jackson Lakes. RIVERSIDE — Fulmor and Hemet Lakes. SAN BERNARDINO — Main and South Forks of the Santa Ana River. VENTURA — Reyes Creek, Rose Valley Lakes, Upper Sespe Creek and the North Fork of the Ventura River.

It still is legal to take 10 trout — if you can find 'em — in Southern California waters, and will continue that way through Oct. 31 when the limit drops to five fish. The limit already has dropped to five in both San Diego and Orange Counties.

NEW PUBLICATIONS — Charles Melville Scammon, who died in 1911 after living for 86 years and who wrote "The Marine Mammals of the Northwestern Coast of North America," published originally in 1874, lived through the 1906 San Francisco earthquake and fire and saw most of his volumes destroyed in that disaster.

Now Dover Publications, Inc., 180 Varick St., New York, N.Y. 10014, has borrowed one remaining volume from Stanford University and has reissued the book in paperback but unabridged form at $3.75. I might add that if you have an original of this book, it's worth more than $100.

Another Dover unabridged publication is "The Moth Book," by W. J. Holland, at $5 is undoubtedly the most complete book of its kind, with black-and-white and color plates of the principal moths of the world. The late Mr. Holland studied 1,500 species of moths representing 43 families. You might have thought that the moths which get into your closet are the only ones of the world. Far from it!

Harold F. Blaisdell, author of the famous best seller, "Tricks That Take Fish," has done another book, "The Philosophical Fisherman," ($6.95), which is extremely different that his other publication, but as interesting, perhaps more so, and I highly recommend it for pleasant reading. Houghton Mifflin Company of Boston is the publisher.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — Betcha didn't know that you can't shoot a gun in Georgia on Sundays. However, the state's General Assembly, knowing that somebody might want to kill a rabbit or something, passed a law which permits hunters the right to use bow and arrows for Sunday hunting. Oddity about the situation might be that Georgians coming to California can fire guns, but can they find anything at which to shoot?

A large portion of Great Western Exhibit Center, where the International Ski and Winter Sports Show will be held this week (Oct. 9 through 12) will be turned over to Southern California ski clubs for their annual "swap meet." Articles may be swapped or purchased outright. Show hours are 4-11 p.m. opening day, 2 to 12 p.m. Friday, 1-11 p.m. Saturday and 1-9 p.m. Sunday.

If you wish to try for ducks on Otay, Barrett, Morena or Sutherland Lakes in San Diego County, call (714) 236-5532 for information and reservations. Those three are the only lakes which will be open Oct. 18 through Nov. 26.

This belated report to my desk is worth a congratulations to a six-year-old girl, Laura Buxton, who lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne H. Buxton, 3723 Locust Ave. The Buxtons climbed to the top of Mt. Whitney just prior to Labor Day, camping at Trail Camp the first night and then going on to the peak. Laura went along, right to the peak without any assistance.

SCOTT DISQUALIFIED FOR BUTTING

Benvenuti Keeps Ring Title

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — World middleweight champion Nino Benvenuti retained his title Saturday night in a roughhouse brawl when Fraser Scott of Seattle, Wash., was disqualified in the seventh round for repeated illegal use of his head.

Scott was warned and cautioned several times by referee Tony Gilardi of Italy before being sent to his corner in one minute of the seventh round.

It was the second consecutive successful defense of the middleweight title by Benvenuti in Italy against Americans within 10 months. He scored a 15-round decision last December over Don Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah.

The fight, held in an open air soccer stadium, drew a crowd of about 45,000, many of whom paid as little as $1.60 to see Benvenuti fight the red-haired American who turned professional only 16 months ago.

It was never much of a fight because the two men never mixed it up. But Benvenuti did score several times with sharp left jabs and bloodied Scott's nose in the fifth round.

Benvenuti just barely made the weight, registering 159 pounds, 15.9 ounces.

Scott came out rushing Saturday night — as he had warned he would — but he could never penetrate Benvenuti's defense and the Italian kept him at arm's length.

There were no knockdowns but both men fell to the canvas in the seventh round when each missed an overhand tab. There was no count.

Benvenuti was guaranteed $61,000 while the No. 1-ranked challenger earned $30,000.

Toomey Sets U.S. Mark But Falls Short of Goal

Olympic gold medal winner Bill Toomey cracked the American record for the decathlon Saturday, scoring 8,277 points, but he fell short of his announced goal of setting a world mark.

Toomey, a 31-year-old Santa Barbara schoolteacher, broke the 3-year-old record of 8,230 set by Russ Hodge of Los Angeles, who was third Saturday with 7,394. Second was Jeff Bannister of the University of New Hampshire with 7,668.

It was to have been Toomey's final decathlon after six years of competing in the 10-event, two-day test. He came within 42 points of the world record of 8,319 set two years ago by Kurt Bendlin of West Germany.

But Toomey said he hopes to compete once more in hopes of breaking the world mark.

He ran the 110-meter high hurdles in 14.5 Saturday, then hurled the discus 150-11 and pole vaulted 13-2.

His javelin was only 210-1, 15 feet off his best and his 4:28.4 for the 1,500 was not enough.

High hurdles—Toomey, 14.5, 903 points; Bannister, 14.9, 859; Hodge, 15.3, 812; Kenward, 15.7, 777; B. King, 16.3, 703; record, old mark, 8,230, Chuck Hinger, 1967. Discus—Hodge, 164-6; 50.14 meters; King, 150-11, 45.8; 800, Kenward, 149-7, 45.6, 792, Bannister, 132-6, 40.39, 693; G. King, 103-11½, 31.69, 512.

Pole vault—Toomey, 13-2, 4.01m, 809, Bannister, 13-2, 4.01m, 809, Hodge, 12-5½, 3.83m, 754, B. King, 11-9½, 3.58m, 700. (No height for Kenward or G. King, both receive one point for attempting the event.

Javelin—B. King 213-8½, 65.14m, 823, Toomey 210-1, 64.04m, 810, Kenward, 186-4, 56.91m, 721, Bannister, 179-7½, 54.75m, 695, Hodge, 173-11½, 52.61m, 665, G. King 165-0, 49.48m, 620.

1500-Bannister 4:25.3, 622, Toomey 4:28.4, 600, B. King, 4:55.1, 435, G. King, 5:22.6, 291, Hodge, 5:31.2, 130, Kenward, 6:38.4, 5.

Totals—Toomey, 8,277 (American record, old mark, 8,230, Chuck Hinger, 1968); Bannister, 7,668, Hodge, 7,394, B. King, 6,963, Kenward, 6,761, G. King, 5,961.

U.S. Trails World Cup Golf 'Suana'

SINGAPORE (AP) — The Formosan team, placed by Hsieh Yung Yo, ignored the sweltering heat and established a two-stroke lead over the Americans going into the final round of the World Cup golf tournament.

Hsieh, who leads the individual phase of the competition, fired a 2-under-par 69 in the third round Saturday and his partner in the two-man competition, Hsu Chi San had a 70 for a total of 139.

That gave them a three-day total of 416 while the American duo of Lee Trevino and Orville Moody fell one stroke further back with a 140 for 418. The two Texans had trailed by one stroke going into the third round.

Trevino, who complained that a light rain had turned the hilly Bukit course "into a suana bath," had a third-round 69 while Moody, the reigning U.S. Open champion, had a 71.

Colony Scared; Sailors Romp

Maybe top-ranked Anaheim isn't invincible, after all. Huntington Beach came within a couple of minutes of knocking off the Colonists Friday night in the Sunset League opener for both schools.

When the final gun sounded, coach Clare Van Hoorebeke's perennial powerhouse had a 14-7 victory, but it took the running of George Fraser and Tim Thorn to finally beat down the Oilers.

A short punt helped the Colony set up the winning tally, a 34-yard drive in five plays. Thorn carried four times to the five, then Fraser went over on an end sweep.

Until then, the Oilers led 7-6 as Rocky Cerda's TD and Frank Hanss' conversion kick loomed big.

Anaheim's moment of truth may come Friday when the Colonists take on Newport Harbor, a suprise 34-13 winner over Santa Ana in its opener.

The unbeaten Sailors sent six different players across the goal line, but it was quarterback Bill Shedd who inspired the victory.

Anaheim	0	0	6	8—14
Huntington Beach	0	7	0	0—7

Anaheim scoring: Tozar 15 pass from Frazier, Frazier 4 run. PAT: Rodriguez (pass). Huntington Beach scoring: Cerda 4 run. PAT: Hans (kick).

Friday's Heroes

Herbert Singleton, Compton, passed for three touchdowns and two conversions in 22-6 win ovir Manual Arts. Singleton hit on 14 of 27 aerials for 204 yards.

Greg Goodyear, Culver City, threw three touchdown passes in team's 33-0 victory over Aviation.

Bill Blanciak, Rolling Hills, scored on pass interception, short run and long pass in Titans' 34-12 romp of Miraleste.

Glen Cardarelli, St. John Bosco, ran for 188 yards, passed for 68 and scored once in team's 42-12 win over Pius. He also kicked for two touchdowns.

NO FRIENDLY FACES

Anaheim quarterback George Fraser found only unfriendly faces on this end sweep in second quarter against Huntington Beach Friday night. Jim Haberthur hits Frazer high, Frank Hanss gets him low and Dan Moats (80) and Lee Walters move in for kill.

Titles in Doubt in Bay, Camino

Picking a winner in the Bay and Camino Real Leagues this year isn't going to be easy.

The defending champions lost their opening games Friday night, but a couple of upsets and lopsided scores make predictions precarious at best.

Inglewood, a doormat for years, knocked off Redondo, 19-7, for its third win in a row, but no one is taking the Sentinels too serious in the Bay circuit — at least not yet.

Santa Monica surprised defending champion West Torrance, but the Warriors played without quarterback Rick Petersen. West put its hopes on a two-point conversion and lost the game, 21-20.

Sam Roberson's 126 yards led South Torrance to a 47-16 win over North Torrance, and no one thought the Sparatans could score that much.

In another game, Mira Costa whipped Hawthorne, 20-6, in a battle of also-rans.

Fermin Lasuen, led by Mike Foley's 77-yard kickoff return and 47-yard run, whipped St. Monica, 27-12.

Pasadena Teams Nab Poll Leads

Pasadena schools have assumed the No. 1 ratings in the four-A and triple-A football polls conducted by the I. P-T Board of Athletics.

Blair, a 60-8 winner over Burroughs, moved to the top in the four-A division, replacing Anaheim, which dropped to third behind St. Paul after squeaking by Huntington Beach in the closing minutes, 14-7.

South Pasadena moved ahead West Covina in the triple-A when the latter team was upset by unranked La Puente, 28-14.

Bishop Amat made the biggest gain in four-A advancing from 17th to fifth via a 59-12 win over Dominquez, and Excelsior moved from 11th to fourth in triple-A by knocking off previously fourth-rated Temple City, 14-12.

Honor Compton, Foothill Grids

Herbert Singleton of Compton has been named offensive player of the week and John Fletcher of Foothill the top defender for their sterling performances Friday night.

Singleton passed for three touchdowns and two conversions in his team's 22-6 win over Manual Arts, and Fletcher ran 30 and 33 yards for touchdowns following interceptions in his team's 55-0 romp over Mission Viejo.

Crestview Trio Breezes

Villa Park, Orange and Foothill made it look easy in their Crestview League openers Friday night.

The Knights of Foothill humbled Mission Viejo, 55-0, as John Fletcher twice scored on intercepions, and Bob Blacklidge threw for two touchdowns.

Quarterback Mike Churchward led Orange over Tustin, 26-0, and Dave Medigovich and Bob Rodgers each scored twice in Villa Park's 34-6 rout of Laguna Beach.

Bosco, Excelsior, Rolling Hills Stay High Up in Ratings

There appears to be no doubt that St. John Bosco, Excelsior and Rolling Hills belong in the top 10 in the CIF, triple-A ratings.

The question is, where in the top 10?

The Braves lost to four-A power Poly last week, but they came back Friday to rip Pius X, 42-12, as Glen Cardarelli showed the way.

Excelsior has a 13-13 tie on its record (vs. Kennedy) but the Pilots knocked off highly rated Temple City, 14-12, thanks to the kicking of Bill Manzo.

Rolling Hills is unbeaten in three games, but until Friday they had not won easily. This time the Titans blossomed and routed Miraleste, 34-12, behind the all-round effort of Bill Blanciak.

In four-A play, Compton continued to make a strong bid for recognition as Herbert Singleton passed for all the points in a 22-6 win over Manual Arts.

Griffins Romp but Yield TD

After 11 quarters, a team finally scored on Los Alamitos Friday night, but it didn't matter since the Griffins had already rolled up 45 points.

The 45-6 thrashing of Los Amigos in their Orange League opener made the Griffins a title contender along with Katella and Sonora, which played Saturday night.

Juju Predisik was the Los Alamitos star, scoring four touchdowns.

Rhett Bray's touchdown gave Valencia a 6-0 win over Saddleback in the other Friday game.

Favorite Turns Bookies Blue

Combined News Services

Favorite Prince de Galles won the Cambridgeshire Handicap Saturday, made fortunes for persons all over the world and cost the bookies untold thousands of dollars.

Prince de Galles, the 5-2 favorite in the field of 26 and ridden by England's Frank Durr, took the lead one-quarter of a mile from home and won the 1⅛ mile test by four lengths.

Grandrew, a 40-1 longshot, was second with Kamundu two more lengths back in third. Mayella was fourth.

The race carried Irish Sweepstakes tickets sold in about 100 countries. Holders of tickets on Prince de Galles, a 3-year-old bay colt owned by Arthur Swift of Britain, won $120,000.

Prince de Galles' victory was worth $13,353 to his owner and broke bookie hearts. One legal bookmaking firm said the favorite's victory had cost him more than $240,000.

Gallant Bloom easily moved to the front at the halfway mark and pulled away to a seven-length victory over favored Gamely Saturday in the $100,000 Matchmaker Stakes for fillies and mares at Atlantic City. Singing Rain was third.

It was Gallant Bloom's seventh consecutive victory this year, and in addition to the $30,000 first prize her owners have first choice of the stud services of Sea-Bird, Dr. Fager or Nearctic.

Canadian-bred Tudor Queen further confused the battle for the 2-year-old filly championship by scoring a decisive win in the 22nd running of the $138,025 Frizette Stakes Saturday at Belmont Park.

Scoring her fourth consecutive victory for John H. Stafford, Tudor Queen completed the mile 1⅛ lengths ahead of Shelter Rock Stable's Cherry Sundae, with Edward M. O'Brien's Repoise third and favored Cold Comfort ninth in a field of 11.

The Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe, the race Europeans think is the world thoroughbred championship, will have its 48th running on the up-and-downhill turf course at Longchamps today with Prince Regent the favorite.

Honest Story Logs Upset

Eddie Cobb, who drove Adios Butler to the track record here nine years ago, showed that he's lost none of his taste for speed when he directed Honest Story, a son of Sdios Butler, to a 2¾ length upset victory in the $10,000 Continental Pace Saturday night at Hollywood Park before 19,421.

The five-year-old pacer, who arrived at the Hollypark stable area only two days ago, sped the mile in 1.58 3-5, fastest of the meeting, while upsetting heavily-favored Sunnie Tar.

Longshots Arnie Blaze and Smart Eddie combined for a $1,383.60 nightly double at Hollywood Park Saturday.

OPENS TUESDAY

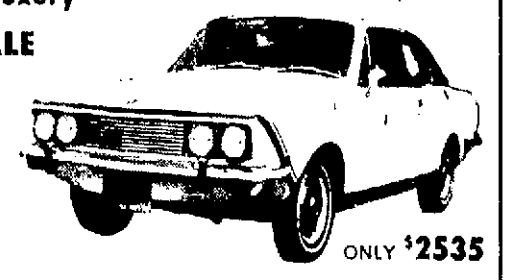

Shoe Rides at Oak Tree

Jockey Bill Shoemaker will continue his comeback Tuesday when he rides Tell in the $25,000-added Autumn Days Stakes, opening-day feature of the Oak Tree meet at Santa Anita.

The 3-year-old stakes star is probably favorite in the 6½-furlong event on the hillside turf course.

The meeting is scheduled for 20 days, Tuesday through Saturday, first post at 1:30.

Mich. State Students Asked to 'Demonstrate'

By BARBARA CRANHAM

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Officials at Michigan State University are hoping students dissatisfied with things as they are will march on a tiny office in the student services building this fall.

This group of "demonstrators," expected to number about 10,000, will not be carrying picket signs or planning a sit-in.

They will be volunteers to work with underprivileged and retarded children, teach English at a Spanish-American migrant labor camp, be a "big brother" or "big sister" to children without parents, and handle a variety of other assignments to help others.

"The student may be frustrated because he cannot find an outlet for his desire to have a voice in the world around him," John Cauley, director of the Volunteer Bureau, said.

"WE CAN MAKE any type of social activity available that any student wants to participate in."

The year-old bureau was begun as an experiment because MSU educators feel the Now Generation student is not satisfied with a football game weekend brand of social life. This same student is no more content with volunteer work that is menial, Cauley said, adding:

"We try for projects that last an entire term. We don't find one-time shots and we refuse to have anthing to do with them. And we won't find volunteers for jobs like clerical work and stuffing envelopes.

"How are you going to convey to a student that stuffing envelopes is meaningful?

In its first year, the bureau fielded requests for volunteer work from 9,000 students. This year, with improved recruiting procedures, it hopes to raise that figure to more than 10,000.

MOST STUDENTS apply for occasional work, but from 3,000 to 5,000 are scheduled for at least five hours each week.

One of the programs the department assists calls itself Scope. Volunteers help children from 3 to 15 with school work. They get to know them better through recreation.

tion we take the children to our apartments and teach them some things to cook. Otherwise, we go to the park, or the pool to swim," Mary Lou Cantrill said. She is the head of Scope, a senior in the MSU School of Education, and has helped design programs for children for two years.

With their own money, earned from car washes and similar activities, Scope volunteers leased a small building from an East Lansing church and fashioned it into a playroom. Childish paintings are tacked on the walls and, while in operation, every bit of floor space swarms with scrambling 8-year-olds.

THE STUDENTS who volunteer for projects such as Scope are asked to give a firm commitment of the time they will donate and are made completely aware of the work expected of them. This cuts the dropout rate, Cauley said.

What type of student is a volunteer and do "protesters" become involved?

"A significant number have done volunteer work in high school," Cauley said. "Many are majoring in social work, sociology and education.

"But the protesters are too busy protesting to do anything constructive. We do have some who list SDS (the militant Students for a Democratic Society) as an activity. They are on the fringe of this organization, though, and like to become involved in inner city projects."

Sleeping Sickness Danger Diminishes

Concern over a repetition of the 1952 epidemic, when 50 fatal cases of "sleeping sickness" occurred, led Gov. Ronald Reagan to authorize $500,000 in state emergency funds to combat the crippling disease this spring and summer.

Hunger Walkers Hindered at Schools

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

Youthful organizers of a 33-mile walk against hunger in Long Beach say they have been barred from spreading printed word of the walk on city schoolgrounds.

Word of the ruling against leafletting on city campuses — "our major area for recruitment" — came Friday from Neil W. Phillips, assistant to the associate superintendent of schools, organizer Randi Gottlieb, said.

"He said it would make the schools liable, quote unquote," explained Jo Ann Volland, another member of the walk committee who spoke with Phillips Friday.

Purpose of The John F. Kennedy Memorial Walk Against Hunger, scheduled for Nov. 22, is to raise funds.

It is conducted under the auspices of the American Freedom From Hunger Foundation.

The Long Beach walk, like nearly 40 other such activities which have taken place around the nation, depends on high school and college youths as the majority of participants.

"We were also told we couldn't use the schools because they have a policy that they don't get involved in any solicitation except with the Red Cross," Miss Gottlieb said.

She added that, while walk organizers had been informed earlier they would not be able to use schools for "checkpoints" during the march, they had not been led to anticipate problems with the distribution of literature.

Through conversations with both Phillips and Vernon A. Hinze, associate superintendent of schools, walk committee members had learned they would have to submit copies of leaflets for approval by junior and senior high school principals, said Miss Gottlieb.

Miss Volland Friday informed Phillips that Hinze had not objected to plans for distributing the leaflets, she said.

"He told me in so many words that Dr. Hinze didn't have anything to say," she added. "But I understand that Dr. Hinze has a higher position."

"I wouldn't be surprised to find out that Dr. Hinze wasn't aware of Neil Phillips' decision," she said. "I really don't understand how passing out papers on campus could make the schools liable."

Despite the acknowledged setback, walk committee members say preliminary work will be stepped up Monday when they move into new headquarters at 1030 Long Beach Blvd.

"We'll be looking for participants at places like the YMCA and at churches, as well as just outside of schools," said another organizer.

Participants in the walk receive pledges of funds from "sponsors" — neighbors or business associates for certain distances covered.

"We'll have to stick to the sidewalks," said Miss Gottlieb, "but we have our police permit behind us, so we're legal."

She explained that funds donated during the walk will be split between local and foreign recipients, with a percentage going to the national foundation for its projects.

Walks conducted under the national foundation have been praised by President Richard M. Nixon, who said he was filled "with hope that by working together we may succeed in satisfying the most basic human need."

District Smog Limits, Bar to Industry Urged

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

A leading environmental scientist said Friday the Los Angeles area would do well to consider shutting its borders to new industry if its air pollution isn't soon brought under control.

Dr. Arthur Alkisson, director of the Institute of Health and Urban Ecology at the University of Texas, told an air pollution conference in Pasadena that "uncontrolled growth" had brought the area to its present state of pollution. And unless that growth is controlled, the result could be catastrophic.

"A friend asked me recently whether Los Angeles can be saved, and I couldn't bring myself to answer him," he declared.

The scientist spoke to more than 400 members of the League of Women Voters at the Huntington-Sheraton Hotel, where, if the smog wasn't too apparent Friday, and air of anger and frustration was.

MEMBERS OF THE LEAGUE, who came to hear panelists from government and industry speak about pollution abatement, made it plain through questions and comments from the floor that their patience with government and industry was wearing thin.

When an oil industry spokesman — James W. Daily, public relations representative of Standard Oil Co. of California — said the industry was continuing to study the possibility of modifying the chemical composition of gasoline with a view to making it less smog-producing, Mrs. Katy Connolly retorted: "How many thousands of more years is it going to take?"

Earlier, Mrs. Connolly, a league member, enlivened the proceedings by getting up and asking Daily and an auto industry representative: "How can you face so many people with so much hogwash?"

Daily was a member of a panel that included Gary Dickinson, manager of General Motors' California Vehicle Emission Laboratory in El Segundo; John A. Maga, executive officer of the California Air Resources Board, and Louis J. Fuller, air pollution control officer for Los Angeles County.

AT ANOTHER POINT in the conference, one of the league women, suspicious of Daily's claims, asked Fuller to say whether he agreed oil refinery emissions no longer constituted a serious source of pollution. Fuller said he did, and explained that while the emissions had not entirely been eliminated, they nevertheless met the standards set by law.

He and others agreed the automobile remained the greatest single source of pollution in the area, and said paints, thinners and solvents were also heavy contributors.

Maga and Atkisson agreed the time had come for area emission standards that would establish limits on how much pollution could be in the air in the entire South Coast Basin — one of 11 such basins in California. The basin takes in Los Angeles and Orange counties, and parts of Riverside, Ventura and San Bernardino counties.

Right now, Atkisson explained, there are source emission standards, but these apply to individual plants

Pollution Dispute Centers on Edison

Orange County will become the battleground over the issue of whether steam-generating — and air pollution producing — plants can operate in the Los Angeles basin to meet mounting demands for electric power.

William Fitchen, the county's air pollution control officer who said he disapproves of Edison Co. plans to triple power output of its Huntington Beach generators, said that the dispute will be tested before "every available legal agency, and finally in the courts."

He said that Los Angeles County has "turned thumbs down" on plant expansions, "so the company is seeking permits in both Orange and Ventura counties."

He said that he thinks "should be phased out" in the Los Angeles basin — including Orange County.

Fitchen claimed that the Edison set up in Huntington Beach contributes heavily to air pollution, and that the company has no methods of improving output of contaminants except by changing fuels to heat its boilers.

Pollutants released into the atmosphere not only affect Orange and Los Angeles counties, but also parts of Riverside, San Bernardino, Ventura and Social progress must take place within the framework of "law and order," State Sen. George Deukmejian and Dist. Atty. Evelle Younger told apartment house owners in separate speeches in Long Beach Saturday.

He addressed the evening banquet of the California Apartment Association at the Edgewater Inn Hyatt House and Deukmejian spoke before a morning session.

"No youngster ever got an education carrying a sign on the sidewalk in front of his school," Younger said. "No one ever improved an educational institution by burning down the buildings on campus."

Fair Housing Laws Are Explained

By BILL GAGNON
Staff Writer

"Selection without discrimination" is the key to compliance with Fair Housing laws, delegates to the 28th Annual California Apartment Association convention in Long Beach were told Saturday.

A summary of Fair Housing laws was made to the group by Robert W. Robinow, counsel for the multi-family builders, Building Industry Assn. of California, Inc.

Assisting in interpretation of the laws were Mrs. Carol Schiller, director, and Steve Silvern of the Fair Housing Division of Housing Opportunities Center of Greater Los Angeles Inc.

WALTER J. CONN of Charles Dunn Co., Realtors, of Los Angeles, described how his firm has handled integration of rental property and the experiences in doing so.

"We have had darn few tenants move out of an apartment building handled by us just because we rented to a minority person," Conn said.

"However, you should make a thorough background check on any prospective tenant — whether he is white, black, brown or yellow — and if he meets all your standards and you rent to him, the chances are you won't have any trouble," Conn added.

"People realize that if they are going to live close to downtown, the chances are it's going to have to be in an integrated building," he said.

Robinow said eviction laws apply to all and that any who breach conditions of a rental lease are subject to them, regardless of race, color, religion, ancestry or national origin.

It was also his opinion that "hippies" are not covered under Fair Housing laws as such.

The basic policy of Fair Housing laws does not restrict or prohibit "selection" based upon factors other than those cited above.

"So long as he is selective across the board with all applicants, an owner may refuse to rent to those whose earnings are below a certain amount, or are single, or have children or pets, or otherwise fail to qualify under the established, nondiscriminatory standards," Robinow said.

MRS. SCHILLER TOLD the delegates they have every right to refuse to rent an apartment to a mother receiving Aid to Dependent Children if she fails to meet the standards required of all other applicants.

She also explained—much to the surprise of all—and was supported by Robinow, that in all Fair Housing cases which go to court, both parties have to pay their own attorney's fees.

However, Mrs. Schiller said other out-of-pocket fees, including court costs and assessments, become the obligation of whichever party loses the case.

Mrs. Schiller also pointed out that in Fair Housing cases the burden of proof is on the complainant to show

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

BEND, Ore. — Assorted notes from the carbon monoxide trail:

It's amazing how some people can fight off customers and still stay in business.

Like the gent who runs a roadside lunch spot between here and Portland.

Weary from the cross-mountain journey, we saw his place ahead and decided to stop. We turned in and, each way we turned, were confronted with NO PARKING AND DON'T PARK HERE signs. By the time we had spotted a PARK HERE sign out in the weeds, we were done with that one and took to the road again.

"Next place," I muttered, "won't have such a negative-minded operator."

I was wrong.

Parking was easy at that spot, but once inside we were confronted with a raft of verboten and warning signs, such as:

NO CHECKS CASHED.

DON'T ASK FOR CREDIT.

NO PETS ALLOWED.

NO MENU SUBSTITUTIONS.

NO LIQUOR ALLOWED.

NO LOUD TALK.

Some of the signs posted over the lunch counter were cleverly insolent, such as: IF YOU WANT CREDIT GO TO HELEN HUNT FOR IT. (Read that one out loud.)

Fearful and trembling, we placed a very short order, were glad we weren't bawled out for it, and got out of there as quickly as possible. "Why didn't you ask for credit?" said my cute wife as we hit the road.

OUR road led through the Warm Springs Indian Reservation where the Indians are an enterprising breed and operate a number of businesses, including a very elaborate resort called Kahneeta.

We stopped at a restaurant, where there were no "no-no" signs and the atmosphere was warm and cordial.

We told the Indian waitress we'd like to have coffee before she served the other dishes.

"Right away," she said.

Five minutes later she returned with the coffee, flashed a shiny-eyed smile and said:

"Right away, Indian time."

IT'S getting late in the season and they're thinning out a bit, but there are still a lot of campers and travel trailers on the roads. Sometimes you think the whole population has taken to living on the trail in assorted vehicles.

These are the people who fill the campgrounds and state parks in midseason, to the discomfiture of the natives. They tell some tall tales about arrogance and discourtesy of Californians and other outsiders.

One I heard today was about a California trailer man whose overnight hook-up spot was beside the main trail to the communal restrooms in the park. After a while he got fed up with the steady traffic by his place, so he fashioned a fence out of rope and blocked off the trail!

VISITORS aren't entirely to blame for litter, despite what they say. I saw members of one party, in a car with an Oregon license, empty ash trays and throw some other trash on the ground in one of the viewpoint stop areas.

Litterers come in all sizes shapes and state categories.

Firemen Plan Special Week

By TONY CILLO
Staff Writer

The careless smoker can be blamed for most fires in the United States and for about a sixth of the fires annually in Long Beach, Fire Chief Tullio J. Rizzo said them, regardless of race, color, religion, ancestory or Week, today through Saturday.

The week is set aside each year to emphasize the dangers of fire and to stress fire prevention.

In Long Beach, the special week will be marked with the announcement of winners in the second graders' fire safety coloring book contest as well as a "fire show" on Saturday.

THE "FIRE SHOW" will be at 1 p.m. Saturday at the city department's drill school, 2249 Argonne Ave. The show is free and Chief Rizzo invited the public.

During the show, firefighters will demonstrate the use of ladders, life lines, life net, fighting a building fire and other techniques.

A pre-show display will be ready for public inspection at 12:20 p.m. It will include a pumper, rescue apparatus, an aerial ladder, antique apparatus, Explorer search and rescue equipment, fire alarm equipment and fire prevention demonstration and displays.

According to the chief, the leading causes of fires are cigarettes and matches. Nationally, about 162,000 fires a year result from improper use of them.

In Long Beach, for 1968, there were 522 fires out of 3,778 which could be directly traced to cigarettes.

Chief Rizzo pointed out each day in the United States, fires claim an average of 33 lives, 1,510 homes,

Doves hover closer over battlefield

PRESSURE is growing, and from responsible sources, for faster withdrawal of all U. S. military personnel from Vietnam.

Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., has introduced a bill to bar spending for maintenance of armed forces in that country after Dec. 1, 1970. Special authorization would be required for use of even noncombat personnel after that date. The bill would permit continued shipments of supplies and equipment.

Goodell's proposal has drawn a mixed reaction, but it does set the stage for another series of hearings before Sen. J. William Fulbright's Foreign Relations Committee, which has done more than any other official agency to generate anti-war feeling in this country.

SIGNS OF impatience are distinctly visible in President Nixon's own party. Sen. Hugh Scott, the Senate's new Republican leader, has publicly favored taking half the troops out by the end of 1970 and the remainder by the end of 1972. A former assistant secretary of the Navy under President Eisenhower, J. Sinclair Armstrong has urged that Congress hold back the $25.7 billion sought by the President for the war, pending a new estimate based on "planned, phased, complete withdrawal."

Among the Democrats, hawkish Sen. Richard B. Russell, chairman of Appropriations Committee, offered the most surprising comment. He said, "I just think we might be able to get out before that",, meaning Goodell's deadline.

The New York senator's proposal, though attacked by Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, is sure to send new waves for peace bearing down on the White House.

President Nixon said a fixed deadline for withdrawal would undercut his efforts for peace, which he hopes will end the war next year.

ONE MUST recognize Mr. Nixon's terrible dilemma. He knows he must yield to the popular will; yet it is his duty in the name of humanity to prevent, if possible, "the most terrible bloodbath in history"—Sen. Russell's vision of the danger in an overhasty withdrawal.

The Goodell bill is indeed too inflexible. This country must close out its self-imposed combat obligation to South Vietnam at a rate and with a tactical skill that will not doom that unhappy little nation's hope of avoiding chaos or domination from the North.

But the Saigon regime must abandon its own inflexible insistence on unconditional victory, or give way to new leadership. And it must prepare itself for our leaving.

We have compounded enough mistakes in Vietnam, killed and destroyed and suffered more than enough in a futile effort to police a distant corner of Asia. As the stirring in Congress discloses, public opinion with rising emphasis commands an end to a tragic chapter in the history of U. S. foreign policy.

Supervisors tuned in on Carmelitos

COUNTY SUPERVISORS deserve praise for their quick and sympathetic response to grievances presented by tenants in the Carmelitos Housing Project.

Most of these complaints are not new. At least one of them — the lack of recreational facilities — has been a sore spot for a dozen years. Others have been simmering in the Tenants Union for many months.

The group did not appeal to the County Board without first going through channels. Last February Alex K. Millar, the County Housing Authority's executive director, agreed to look into the grievances and "see what we can work on."

ACCORDING TO the union spokesmen, they still need play equipment and play areas, better street lighting, control of speeding traffic, covers for trash bins, removal of dangerous debris from yards and streets.

Millar conceded that some of the requests are reasonable. But he blamed the tenants, especially children, for much of the apparent neglect. No doubt this is factual. Was there ever a low-income public housing project without such problems? But the innocent suffer along with the guilty.

From the record, though, it is apparent that the administrators of the project have shown laziness and insensitivity toward improving conditions.

THE THREE supervisors present responded much more warmly. It is now their responsibility to make good on Chairman Ernest Debs' promise, "You're going to see some changes out there . . ."

While it may not be feasible to place a tenant on the County Housing Authority board, as proposed by a representative of the Legal Aid Foundation, the Carmelitos families are entitled to better lines of communication to the policy-making officials. This is the first step to more responsive management and more responsible tenants.

Help for war kids

EDITOR:

One of any country's most important assets is its people. South Vietnam is no different.

The school children of my hometown, Long Beach, have never witnessed the horrors of war, have never been awakened by the blast of Viet Cong mortars or rockets slamming near their homes.

What do these children know of Communism or Democracy, of freedom or slavery? They learn from what they see.

There is much more to this war then defeating the enemy on the battlefield. We must win the hearts and minds of the people of South Vietnam.

Our command has a Civic Action Program and my newspaper, as small as it is, is starting "Operation: We care," in order to assist Da Nang's school children.

They are in dire need of school supplies such as, pencils; chalk; erasers; blank or lined paper; paper pads, grease pencils and crayons.

The supplies can be sent to me and I'll see that they are turned over to the children. I'll be happy to send photographs of the project to your newspaper in order that the people of Long Beach can see what is being done with their gifts.

'It ain't no monkey'

Chance to cool atomic race

HUBERT HUMPHREY

AMERICA'S priorities in the 1970s are not the ABM, MIRV, SST or trip to Mars.

The priorities of America are winning the war on poverty, destroying biogtry, intolerance, and discrimination, expanding education and health opportunities, rebuilding our cities to make them livable, ending the pollution of the air, rivers, streams, and lakes, and above all, stopping the costly and dangerous arms race which consumes both our physical and spiritual resources.

In the coming months, the United States will have a rare opportunity to put a lid on the next spiral in the arms race. It could lead to the saving of billions of dollars, increase our sense of national security, and reduce the level of danger always present in an arms race.

What is needed is a declaration by President Nixon that we are prepared to halt the testing of the MIRV offensive nuclear missiles. This can break the impasse which has held up discussions on both the ABM defensive missile and the MIRV offensive missile.

There is precedent for such a move.

In 1963, President Kennedy declared he would stop all further United States nuclear tests in the atmosphere as long as the Soviets refrained from tests of their own. He coupled his action with an invitation to Moscow to negotiate a test-ban agreement.

I believe President Kennedy's move was a key to getting the talks started and the nuclear test ban treaty concluded.

President Nixon can assume the same leadership in halting the arms race and moving the nation toward true national security.

If an agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union stops MIRV deployment by both sides, we finally will be in a position to turn back the arms race.

WHAT IS involved is this.

Each American or Soviet missile now carries one nuclear warhead. Each side has been able to estimate the other's missile strength, and the use of spy satellites and sophisticated electronic equipment has enabled both the United States and Russia to become increasingly confident of their intelligence estimates, thereby reducing the need for on-site inspection.

MIRV stands for multiple independently targeted reentry vehicles. Instead of one nuclear warhead per missile, MIRV could mean up to 10 warheads per missile, with each of the 10 nuclear weapons aimed at different targets. MIRV thus introduces an area of uncertainty into each side's estimate of the other's nuclear capacity.

It is crucial, if both sides are to feel secure, that each be able to accurately estimate the other side's nuclear capacity. This is the foundation of the concept of mutual deterrence.

While we consider our nuclear strength to be defensive in nature, we must remember that the Soviet leaders fear a first strike from us, just as some of our spokesmen have feared a first strike from them. They feel secure only as long as they think they can absorb an American first strike and then inflict heavy damage on the United States by a retaliatory second strike.

Both sides must be confident they know the other side's nuclear capacity. As long as there is that confidence, each side can build a nuclear arsenal sufficient for a second strike capacity, preventing the enemy's first strike from ever taking place.

I BELIEVE this relative feeling of security is necessary if agreements limiting the further spread of nuclear weapons are to be negotiated. It is the only way to break the cycle.

What must now happen is serious negotiation — the strategic arms limitation talks, or SALT talks — which already have been delayed too long.

The SALT talks were to have started last year — extensive preparations had been made. But then the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia chilled East-West relations, and caused a postponement in the talks.

Finally in June, President Nixon authorized his representatives to begin making arrangements for the SALT talks. He suggested the talks being in August in an acceptable neutral city.

By then, however, President Nixon's safeguard ABM system had become a major issue. When I visited with Soviet leaders in Moscow during my July trip, I found they had followed our ABM debate very closely. The congressional authorization of the safeguard ABM plus claims of American superiority in MIRV development gave encouragement to the Soviet hardliners, who were pushing for the testing and deployment of their own multiple reentry nuclear weapon.

BOTH COUNTRIES, the U.S. and the USSR, are adding to the nuclear arsenal only to find that we have both expended billions of dollars in new weaponry and achieved no greater security. Rather, we have raised the level of danger and denied ourselves valuable resources needed for the betterment of our own peoples. Make no mistake about it: nuclear weaponry is costly, dangerous, and wasteful, particularly when it adds to further security.

I think the Soviets want arms control and that they, too, want to invest more of their national resources in improving the lives of the people.

We are now at a point where both sides can negotiate in confidence, both sides can negotiate from strength, with both sides gaining mutual benefit from achieving a ceiling on nuclear arms and, ultimately, a phased balanced reduction in those weapons.

Kilpatrick issues call for action

WASHINGTON — Several hundred leading conservatives gathered at the Sheraton-Park this weekend to take the waters and toast the Republic. The occasion was an awards dinner sponsored by American Conservative Union, Human Events, National Review, and Young Americans for Freedom, honoring Sen. John Williams of Delaware and Congressman H. R. Gross of Iowa.

JAMES KILPATRICK

The sponsors of the clambake invited me to make a few remarks. I am not at all certain that this is what I said, but it is what I had in mind to say:

On the record, gentlemen, our cause goes well. In both the House and Senate, the number of conservatives gradually increases. The same modestly encouraging picture may be seen in statehouses across the land. Our peerless leader in the White House may not be a true-blue conservative — not as true-blue as Messrs. Williams and Gross — but he is far more congenial to our views than, say Hubert Humphrey. He is as conservative a president as we had any hope of electing, and we are lucky to have him.

YET THE conservative cause, if it would continue to prosper, must in some fashion overcome its image as the negative party. Dammit, gentlemen, when will conservatives apply their talents to affirmative answers to American problems?

One of the most serious problems in American society goes to the quality of life in the world around us. Our rivers and lakes are dying of pollution. Our greatest cities stifle in smog. Our littered streets insult the eye. Concern mounts at the residual damage done to man's environment by such pesticides as DDT. Year by year, our loveliest countrysides are yielded up.

The problem essentially is a problem of conservation — of conserving some of the greatest values of America; and conservatives, of all people ought to be in the vanguard of the fight. Yet if one were asked to name quickly the political figure most identified with water pollution, it would be Muskie of Maine. If beautification of the highways is identified with a single person, it is identified with Ladybird Johnson.

WHERE LIES the leadership in preserving wild rivers, redwood forests, wilderness areas? Gentlemen, it is not to be found on our side of the aisle.

Ours is the party most identified with commerce, business and industry. We defend their interests well. But isn't something more demanded in the name of an affirmative conservatism? Why do we let Ralph Nader monopolize the duties of right conscience? Do we not have an obligation to wage our own war upon exploitation of the poor?

What are we doing — really doing — about our cities? Where are our leaders in relieving racial tension? If I had only one political wish, conservatively speaking, I would wish to see us translate broad conservative principles more frequently into specific, affirmative action.

Drugs, booze and bull-heads

From Our L.A. Bureau

SEN. HAROLD HUGHES, as he made plain here a few days ago, gets impatient when he encounters demands from high places for tougher punishment for narcotics users.

"I am particularly concerned about our young people," the Iowa Democrat said. "Drug use, illicit under our laws, is widespread among our youth and is rapidly increasing. Excessively severe — almost sadistic — levels of punishment do not deter a young generation determined to 'turn on.'"

That was from the prepared text which Chairman Hughes read as his U.S. Senate subcommittee on alcoholism and narcotics opened its two-day hearings in Los Angeles.

But he said some things that were not in the text.

OUR PRACTICE, he said, is to lock up more and more people for longer and longer terms, and the penalties don't make a dent on the spread of drug addiction. And he talked about how easy it is for prisoners to get narcotics in jail.

How, he asked, does punishment solve addiction problems?

Locking up the big-time pushers is another matter. Hughes is for that. But the business of his special subcommittee is something else. "It is important," he said, "to recognize that our purpose is to help human beings in need and to protect society — not to punish sick people harshly."

BILL MAYER

And he spelled out what he meant by sick.

"We must recognize that drug use is a symbol of the deep-rooted disquiet and revolt among our young. Somebody needs to be in their corner. Somebody must do something constructive about helping kids who are getting their lives busted up and their futures destroyed by smoking a reefer or passing one on to another kid."

HUGHES WOULD like to see some serious research on marijuana. The law, he said, classes it as a narcotic, but it is a hallucinogen, something on the order of LSD. And there is little research, Hughes believes, "because of our bull-headed prejudice as a society about something we do not understand."

Alcohol, of course, is seen quite differently. There is research, and the problem drinker is considered the victim of a disease, and there is a vast effort to lead him to some kind of treatment.

The subcommittee approaches alcoholism as it does narcotics. It takes the view that the man who can't stop drinking is actually caught in an addiction trap.

Hughes called alcohol "the most widely abused drug in the world."

THE SUBCOMMITTEE heard testimony on narcotics one day and on alcohol the next because it was more convenient. But what it is after is new law to bring the federal government full-tilt into the field of medical aid for all who are addicted, and no matter to what. It proposes to combine this with the work of the policeman.

"It is obvious to any one conversant with the subject," Hughes said, "that treatment, rehabilitation, research and education are inextricably interwoven with law enforcement in the drug field."

'So I said to her, anyone stupid enough to smoke is a no good . . .'

If you've seen one roll-call you've seen them all, Bert Bond believes

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK
By DON BRACKENBURY

"THE GREATEST sacrifice is the sacrifice of time," said Plutarch. Benjamin Disraeli, some centuries later, said, "He who gains time gains everything."

Councilman Bert Bond thinks the Long Beach City Council can gain a little time by eliminating some of the roll-call votes on council issues.

Not all his colleagues agree. When the council asked its rules committee to look into the matter, it was by a 5-to-3 vote.

"I see no reason to change the rules," said Councilman Raymond C. Kealer, one of the three dissenters.

BASICALLY, the present council rules provide that if an agenda item is merely to be received and filed, or referred to some department or committee, no roll call vote is taken. After receiving a referral motion, the mayor just says, "Is there any objection? If not, it is so ordered."

If, however, a motion is made to authorize some specific action — such as approving a contract, determining a policy or adopting an ordinance — the city clerk is directed to call the roll, and each councilman votes "aye" or "no."

Off and on, for many months, Bond has suggested that a councilman might offer a motion to approve several agenda items at one time, have only one roll call, but have the times "spread separately on the minutes."

IN OTHER WORDS, the councilmen would know that they actually were voting on all of the items covered by the motion, but the minutes would list each item separately, with the roll-call result indicated after each item.

Bond has offered the procedure to save the time of numerous roll calls — possibly 30 to 50 at a normal meeting.

Each time he has brought up the matter, however, there has been a lot of discussion, but not action.

The main stumbling block undoubtedly has been that individual councilmen want to be recorded in the minutes as being the one who offered certain motions — particularly ones involving their own council districts.

ONE SUGGESTION has been made by some observers that would solve this objection, but still eliminate repetitious roll calls on items where the council obviously is unanimous in its intent.

This suggestion is that a separate motion still be offered for each item, but that the mayor handle such motion as he now handles the "referral" motions.

If, after a motion to approve a contract, for example, the mayor merely asked, "Is there any objection?," any councilman wanting to vote against the issue could object, and a roll call would be taken.

If there were no objection, the mayor would interpret this as meaning that all councilmen were voting "aye" on the motion, and it would be so recorded in the minutes.

Inasmuch as only a handful of motions at any council session ever result in split votes, this procedure would mean that almost all of the roll calls would be eliminated.

The time saved would not be any great amount, but at least the procedure would save a little wear and tear on the clerk's voice.

A rule is a rule in the U.S. Senate

By ROY McGHEE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate elder interrupted floor debate the other day to sound a note of concern about senators of one committee poking around in the affairs of another committee.

There have been jurisdictional squabbles in the Senate since the very start of the committee system but, generally, they have been of a housekeeping nature, quietly resolved.

What made this incident noteworthy was that the senior member, courtly Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., felt impelled to put the matter on the public record. And the subject was the Selective Service System.

Stennis is chairman of one of the most powerful and influential committees of the Senate — Armed Services. And with his high reputation for integrity, when Stennis speaks, the Senate listens.

LAST YEAR the Senate passed draft reform legislation to allow the President to fill military manpower needs by a lottery draft if he wished, but the House never acted on the proposal.

Now President Nixon is again asking for congressional authority for a random selection draft system. There are about a dozen bills pending in the Armed Services Committee to reform the draft, but Stennis was tied up for months this year guiding the $20 billion military procurement bill through the Senate.

He has had no time for conscription hearings. He has promised them early next year. But if the House acts first and sends to the Senate a lottery bill, Stennis has promised action.

Enter Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., impatient for draft reform. He serves on neither the Armed Services Committee nor the Senate Appropriations Committee but is chairman of a judiciary subcommittee on administrative practices and procedures.

Broadly interpreted, that post gives Kennedy jurisdiction over how the laws of Congress are carried out. He wrote Stennis he planned to investigate the Selective Service.

THIS WAS WHAT prompted Stennis to take the subject to the Senate floor. "First, the record should be unmistakably clear that the committee which has jurisdiction over Selective Service legislation is the Committee on Armed Services," he said.

"Second, I would only observe that if caution is not exercised, there could be an erosion of the committee system. I am certain that no one intends this result but I think that all committees and subcommittees must exercise the rule of reason lest there be complete duplication of effort within the committee system."

Stennis then made the standard Senate disclaimer — that he was not imputing any such motive to Kennedy. He added pointedly that Kennedy's letter "makes clear that his subcommittee will restrict itself to a review of the administrative interpretations of the various regulations."

Stennis' speech was little noted in news accounts that day. Yet it signaled a stiffening by the Senate elders against youthful incursions against their power that has marked this session of congress.

Other examples:

— Senate freshmen breaking tradition by making floor speeches and interrogating witnesses at hearings, instead of remaining mute for their first year or two.

—First termers successfully challenging committee chairmen handling legislation on the floor by forcing unwanted and usually liberalizing amendments.

— Young Republicans trying, and almost succeeding, in electing a first termer as floor leader.

Let's hope it's loaded

Up with the down elevator

WHEN THE WRITER some time ago became involved with letters to the editor he was reminded of the tribulations of a gentleman named Oval Quist, who long was Letters to the Editor Editor for the Register & Tribune in Des Moines.

Oval was a square little man with a square hat perched squarely on top of his head as he entered the inner sanctum of the editorial writers department in the R & T tower. He strode briskly past the rows of Constant Readers who were seated around the perimeters of the reception room carpet. It was Oval who had to deal with the inventor of Lawsonomy, who disposed of the soft-coal smoke problem by designing a tunnel to pack the stuff in; Joe Ellison, who was waiting for a patent on perpetual motion, and Fred Langensmith, who had solved the insoluble farm problem. Fred's plan was to have the U.S. buy all the farms and pay itself not to raise corn.

IN THESE surroundings Mr. Quist maintained a remarkable calm, but it was, from time to time, strained by a fellow employe, an editorial writer named Rob Blakely. When he was not writing about the sociological implications of the New Deal or the threat of student rebellion at Iowa State College, Rob was given to pranks.

A single example of what gave Oval Quist heartburn will do. On a particularly hot July day when the reception room was jammed with inventors, prophets and those who listen to silent music, Rob materialized at the doorway to the inner office, carrying Mr. Quist's black umbrella as a sunshade. He was dressed in his under-shorts and shoes. In his right hand he carried a watering can. Solemnly he navigated around the outer borders of the carpet, watering each of the pale red roses woven into the wool.

"Would you mind?" he asked, aiming the spout perilously close to the shoes of the waiting ones. Dutifully they lifted their rubber soles as he passed.

NONE OF THEM smiled, or protested. One, a particularly amiable originator of a parlor game he called Miniature Polo, offered to water the south side of the carpet. Rob waved his left hand imperiously, sloshed an extra rug-quenching libation over the gamester's toes, completed his rounds, and padded softly back to his desk.

Again, it was Mr. Blakely who one day spied a girl elevator operator having a quick Coke in the Bluebird coffee shop on the first floor. He immediately became her unofficial understudy. The fact that he had never before operated an elevator did not cause him any qualms.

In the bank of elevators, Elevator No. 2 suddenly became a yo-yo. There were those in the lobby who, recently returned from lunch, wished they had downed only two bourbons. The floor-indicator arrow was whirling like a weather vane in a hurricane. It rotated to 9, back to 4, up to 7, down to B and, for a time, seemed to have settled somewhere between 4½ and 6½.

NUMEROUS prospective passengers were discommoded by No. 2's gyrations. On the sixth floor a copy boy loaded with a stack of cartoons three feet high pushed the down button with his elbow. When the elevator door opened he was confronted with the grimacing face of Mr. Blakely. The face did not appear at eye-level. It appeared sideways at the edge of the door, approximately two and one-half feet from the floor of the cage.

"Sorry," a disembodied voice squeaked up at the teetering boy. "You'll have to wait for the people elevator. This one's for midgets!" The door clanged shut, catching a half-dozen spilled cartoons on the way down.

At the Executive Suite level on the eighth floor a pink-cheeked, silver-haired gentleman had been observing with growing mystification the erratic behavior of No. 2. With a gloved finger he firmly pushed the button. After only five minutes the door opened. It closed almost before it opened. Mr. Blakely had at a glance recognized the quizzical features of Gardner Cowles, the publisher.

TWENTY-TWO SECONDS later Elevator 2 came to a shuddering halt and the fact it was 18 inches above basement level did not deter the operator from exiting.

On the following Monday morning at 7:30 a.m. identical signs appeared in all the elevators. The lettering was still wet. The signs stated:

ALL REGISTER & TRIBUNE ELEVATORS MUST BE OPERATED AT ALL TIMES BY OFFICIAL REGISTER & TRIBUNE ELEVATOR OPERATORS HIRED FOR THE EXPRESS PURPOSE OF OPERATING THE ELEVATORS. ANY EMPLOYES CAUSING EXCEPTIONS TO THIS RULE WILL HENCEFORTH BE CONSIDERED FORMER EMPLOYES.

At 10:15 a.m. a passenger in No. 2 elevator read the sign. Below the block letters were two initials:

UNITED CRUSADE ACCEPTS DONATION
Betty Crosby Hands $1,000 Check to Robert Leyhe

Bullock's Force Donates Early

Employes of Bullock's Torrance store have pumped the gun, contributing $1,000 to the United Crusade before the official opening of fund raising, crusade spokesmen have announced.

The donation, from the treasury of employees of the "Del Amo" store, was made to the Harbor Area division of the crasade, as the initial contribution towards a $150,000 area goal, according to Frank Borelli, campaign chairman.

The check was received by Robert Leyhe, United Crusade Loan Executive from Mrs. Betty Crosby, employee representative.

Leyhe, recently retured, donates his time seeking funds from large firms for the United Crusade.

SILVERN CITED SEVERAL cases in which the Housing Opportunities Center intervened on behalf of the apartment owner when its investigation disclosed the tenant's complaint was not justified.

"Any time that you have a problem with a tenant which you believe is unjustified, and that which you believe he intends bringing to our attention, by all means come to us—we'll give priority on our time in looking into the matter and determine whether or not it is a justifiable complaint," he said.

Silvern also said they have had a high measure of success in convincing Caucaians not to move from an apartment house just because a unit has been rented to a minority group member. He said this is accomplished by having clergymen, Fair Housing officials and other leaders in the community contact such tenants and talk over the situation.

The convention is being held at the Edgewater Inn Hyatt House.

and factories, and are not tied in to the overall level of permissable pollution in the area.

SHOULD A TOTAL EMISSION level be set, he said, authorities would be able to keep additional industry — and presumably cars — out of the basin, an idea that was favorably received at the conference.

"If you say you won't tolerate more emissions," said Mrs. Jackie Berman of Westchester, commenting on the proposal, "industry will leave, and people will go, too."

Atkisson and Maga admitted that once an area emission standard were set, the difficult task would remain of apportioning responsibility among the various sources, including cars, factories and homes.

"There would be a complicated breakdown of standards," he declared, but he said he thought it could be managed.

FIRE PREVENTION

167 apartments, 23 schools, 10 churches, 21 hospitals, 149 farm buildings, 126 industrial plants and 208 stores, restaurants and offices.

From the Los Angeles County Fire Department, starting Monday, firemen and trucks will go out to visit some 60,000 youngsters in elementary schools.

Youngsters will have the opportunity to see the fire truck and talk with the firefighters. The youngsters will be given a "pledge" sheet and be asked to sign, declaring they will not play with matches and they will help prevent fires.

The seven-day observance of Fire Prevention Week began in 1922, following the recommendation of a committee of the National Fire Protection Association. Earlier, in 1911, the anniversary date of the great Chicago fire, Oct. 9, was set aside as Fire Prevention Day at the suggestion of the Fire Marshals Association of North America.

Fire Sweeps Paint Shop

A $30,000 blaze heavily damaged a Torrance car painting shop and destroyed or damaged 24 autos early Saturday.

Nine fire units battled the blaze at the One Day Paint Center, 21081 S. Western Ave. They contained the fire in 20 minutes.

Firemen said 12 cars in the building were heavily damaged and another 12 were damaged by smoke and heat. Cause of the blaze was under investigation.

Cerritos Tops Construction

From Our L. A. Bureau

Building has slipped spectacularly all over Los Angeles County, but not through any sluggishness in Cerritos.

The little city showed applications for building permits in September running to an estimated value of $4,786,800, far higher than any municipality issuing permits through the county.

The next best in Southern Los Angeles County was Carson, with $1,577,300. But even with the $1,582,150 figure from what County Engineer John Lambie calls unincorporated Carson, the total — $3,160,459 — falls far short of Cerritos'.

But building is down, Lambie's building and safety division handled a county-wide [illegible] of $24,179,097 in September. In August, permits reached an estimated $32,784,855. Even then the federal government's anti-inflation fight seemed to be taking its toll of the industry. The September, 1968 figure was $36,852,338.

THE STATISTICS are totals for the 30 cities contracting for county building services and for all unincorporated territory.

"The valuations," Lambie said, "seem to be reflecting the slowdown in building generally attributed to high interest rates."

But Lambie added that the analysis did not extend to industrial and commercial construction.

"Housing," he observed, "with permits for 711 new dwelling units, was well above the 294 recorded in September, 1968."

The county issued 1,097 permits in its 30 contract cities in September, and 1,447 in unincorporated areas.

Cerritos was responsible for 224 of them. Of its building total of $4,786,800, housing accounted for $4,348,000.

Incidentally, September was a comeback month for Cerritos. The city led all others served by Lambie in seven of 1969's nine months, but slipped in August to an unimpressive $600,000.

In most months it was over $4 million.

September performance for contract cities other than Cerritos and Carson in the southwestern end of the county follows:

Norwalk, $884,158; Paramount, $597,100; Lakewood, $360,581; Bellflower, $125,940; Hawaiian Gardens, $14,250, and Avalon, $8,797.

Santa Barbara counties, Fitchen said.

For "clean air" standards prescribed by the state, these areas are now "a geographical region."

Fitchen said that "we're exceeding" the state pollution standards.

The air pollution control officer said that the public Utilities Commission, which may hear Edison's application for plant expansion next month, "should deny it a permit."

If it does approve, he said he will act to block the expansion by denying a permit to operate.

Fitchen said he could be overruled by the Air Pollution Control Hearing Board. It is comprised of George F. Holden of Anaheim, former county counsel; Jay Stoddard, a chemical engineer who was mayor of Newport Beach; and Rodger Howell, a Santa Ana attorney.

The hearing board could grant a variance against his objection—and Fitchen could appeal. If it does not grant the permit, Edison could appeal to the courts.

$35 Coins Taken

Donald D. Snyder, 3223 Gaviota Ave., told Long Beach police Saturday that burglars who entered his home through a side door stole more than $35 in coins.

Scott Carpenter to Lecture Here

Commander M. Scott Carpenter, one of the pioneers who assisted in placing a man on the moon, will be the lead-off speaker in a series of community lectures at Cerritos College. He will speak at the Student Center on Oct. 16, at 8 p.m.

Following Carpenter will be conservative writer Dr. Russell Kirk, Nov. 6; John Carradine, character actor, Dec. 4; Hal Roth, world traveler, Feb. 18; Ansel Adams creative photographer, March 12, and Ray Bradbury, novelist, April 15.

Tickets are available for individual lectures or for the entire series. Adult tickets are $1.50 and students $1 each.

SCOTT CARPENTER

LAW AND ORDER

generally untrained and completely unqualified to cope and dedication into a massive effort to effect necessary changes" in the educational system.

"There can be no social progress except in an environment where law and order prevails," Younger said.

He cited five ingredients "that produce violence and destruction" in the educational system.

They were "the permissive society in which we live," substandard schools, "administrators who are with the problems they face," highly-educated teenagers with "poor judgment" and "professional troublemakers."

Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, said that "law creates conditions where we can seek individual freedom."

Major threats to law and freedom, he said, are crime and "political lawlessness on our streets and campuses."

"Crime has created a situation where people make choices based on fear," he said. "A recent survey showed 43 per cent of the American people are afraid to go out at night. In ghetto areas, people are afraid to be in their own homes at night."

He defined political lawbreakers as "those who justify crime for a cause."

"We have to tell such people that they can seek redress through legal channels — they can even be militant, if militance denotes peaceful persistance — but they can't break the law with impunity."

HE SAID THAT it's more important to enforce those laws on the books than pass new laws.

And he added, individual citizens must lend "interest, support and concern" to crime problems.

"They must care. They must be committed. They must be willing to donate interest, concern, and, yes, even dollars. A bumper sticker that says you support your local police will no longer suffice."

LBCC Sponsors Color Film, Lecture on Spain

Long Beach City College's Forum Department announces its first, all-color film-lecture in the 1959-70 Annual International Series. "An Old World Culture in Transistion — Spain," narrated by Curtis Nagel will be presented at four high school auditoriums this week. The program is scheduled Tuesday at Wilson, Wednesday at Jordan, Thursday at Poly and Friday at Lakewood High School Auditorium. All programs begin at 8 p.m.

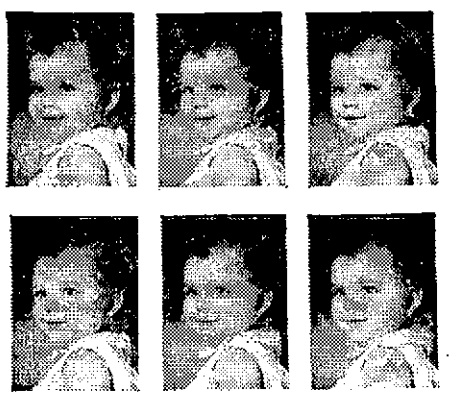

VTJS NAGEL
World Traveler

Nagel, known as one of the world's most traveled men, was also a pioneer of theatrical motion pictures. Teamed with William Moore, another color-cinematographer, he has photographed the world's 80 different countries and every continent. His latest documentary on Spain covers remote villages, the world-famous Prado Museum, the modenr, sophisticated Costa Brava and many other facets of Spanish culture.

ADMISSION IS BY season ticket or by individual tickets ($1 for adults and 50c for children or students). Season ticket books for all seven programs at $2.50 are available at the auditorium the night of each showing or weekdays from the Long Beach City College Forums Office, 1305 East Pacific Coast Highway.

Other lectures from continuing series are: "Rhythmic Devices: The March, Waltz and Latin Rhythms." by Orville R. Foster in the Long Beach City College Auditorium, Monday, 7:30 p.m.; "The Challenge of Photojournalism (On Safari with Hemingway), Tuesday, by Earl Theisen at Boyd High School Auditorium; "Arizona National Parks and Monuments." by Richard M. Heckert, Wednesday, 2?00 p.m., at Boyd High School Auditorium; "Germany's Romantic Road to the Alps," Wednesday, by Giles T. Brown, Ph.D., in the Rogers Junior High School Auditorium at 7:30 p.m.; "Family Communication." by Tom Blade at Bancroft Junior High School Auditorium, hursday at 7:30 p.m.

FIRST LASER-USING CONSUMER PRODUCT

RCA Touts SelectaVision for 70s

By TERRY SATTORIA
Staff Writer

Within the next three years "Man on the Moon," — starring Neil Armstrong — could be a typical 30-minute color television show that a home televiewer will be able to program for himself.

That announcement last week initiated RCA's bid to capture a new consumer market that will permit television set owners to be home broadcasters.

A laboratory model of a revolutionary, low-cost color television tape player built around lasers and holography was unveiled at RCA laboratories at Princeton University.

DUBBING THE development SelectaVision, SV for short, RCA executives believe that by the mid-70s SV will be as much a household word as TV is today.

The SelectaVision player was described by one of the developers, Dr. James Hillier, as a major technological breakthrough.

In commercial form, the tape player is expected to be the first consumer product to use lasers, and will be designed to attach to any standard television set. It will play full-color programs recorded on tapes made of the same clear plastic material used in supermarkets to display sports programs tailored to an unlimited variety of individual tastes.

PERSONALIZED COLOR TV DUE FOR HOMES
RCA's SelectaVision Tape Player Atop Set

At present, SelectaVision tapes are not made directly from life, but rather from movie films, videotapes, slides or photographs.

A color program originating from a color TV camera, or color videotape player is recorded on conventional film.

This film is then developed and converted by a laser to a series of holograms which are then transferred to plastic tape.

The result is a series of hill and valley impressions which represent the original color TV program in coded form.

PLAYBACK OF the tape requires only that the beam from a very low-powered laser pass through it into a simple, low-cost TV camera which sees the images reconstructed by the laser directly, and their colors as coded variations in those images. The playback mechanism the laser and the TV camera are all housed in the SelectaVision player, which is attached to the antenna terminals of a standard color TV set for actual program viewing.

The anticipated price of the player will be less than $400 and the tapes will cost less than $10 for a half-hour program.

Both photography and holography are techniques for recording the image of a subject on film or other photosensitive material. They differ sharply in the way they record that image, however.

In the case of photography, the image is registered as a pattern of intensity variation produced by the subject in the light reflected from it. In the case of holography, the image is registered as optical-interference patterns, which look much like a thumb print.

For this reason, photographs can be made in any kind of light providing the recording material has enough light sensitivity.

HOLOGRAMS, ON the other hand, can only be made in light that has extremely good color purity —what scientitsts call coherent light. Since lasers are the only good source of such light, it is used in holography.

To make a hologram, the coherent light from a laser is split into two beams. One of the beams is directed at the subject to be holographed. The reflected light from the subject is recorded on a photosensitive medium or photographic plate. The other part of the split beam is sent directly to the plate.

Because the first beam undergoes changes in intensity as a result of being reflected from the subject, it interfedes with the second beam. It is the pattern of this interference that is recorded on the photographic emulsion.

KRISTY SCHLAHT

FOR L.A. POVERTY WORK

Lutheran Teen Is Honored

A Long Beach teenager is among six students from Lutheran High School in Los Angeles honored for work in inner-city poverty programs.

Kristy Schlaht, 431 Linden Ave., a high school sophomore and member of First Lutheran Church in Long Beach, was cited for spending 55 hours during the summer tutoring a fifth grader from Los Angeles' Santa Barbara Avenue School.

Miss Schlaht, who hopes to become a teacher or join the Peace Corps, and five fellow Lutheran High students contributed the equivalent of $2,000 in time to the tutorial program sponsoring Crenshaw Coordinating Council officials said.

The summer program, co-sponsored by the federal government, augmented regular summer school sessions for participating students, bringing aid to grade school children in Los Angeles.

"The right to go tutoring was considered a status privilege by some of the students," said Mrs. Marian Bramble, who led the program.

COMMUNITY PLAYHOUSE

'Wrong' Premiere Turns Out Right

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Drama Critic

New resident director Bertram Tanswell's premiere production for Community Playhouse, "What Did We Do Wrong?," earns top marks in all departments.

Friday night's opener was a very funny, often pointed, mildly earthy examination of the troubles at Generation Gap.

Friday-Saturday performances, 8:30 p.m., Thursday benefits 7:45 p.m., through Nov. 8, 5021 E. Anaheim St.

Tanswell's faultly directed cast — headed by the always delightful husband-and-wife team of Joe and Betty Karbo — carried it off with high professional polish.

WORTHY of special praise are four young people portraying a quartet of college-age challengers of the established order. Whether stummin' a protest song or speechifying against their elders' alleged decadence, these youngsters do a superior job.

As "generation gappers" go, to coin a phrase, WDWDW? strikes a slightly different note. It is, if anything, slightly weighted toward the parents' side. Old Dad even wins something of a moral victory before a satisfying conclusion.

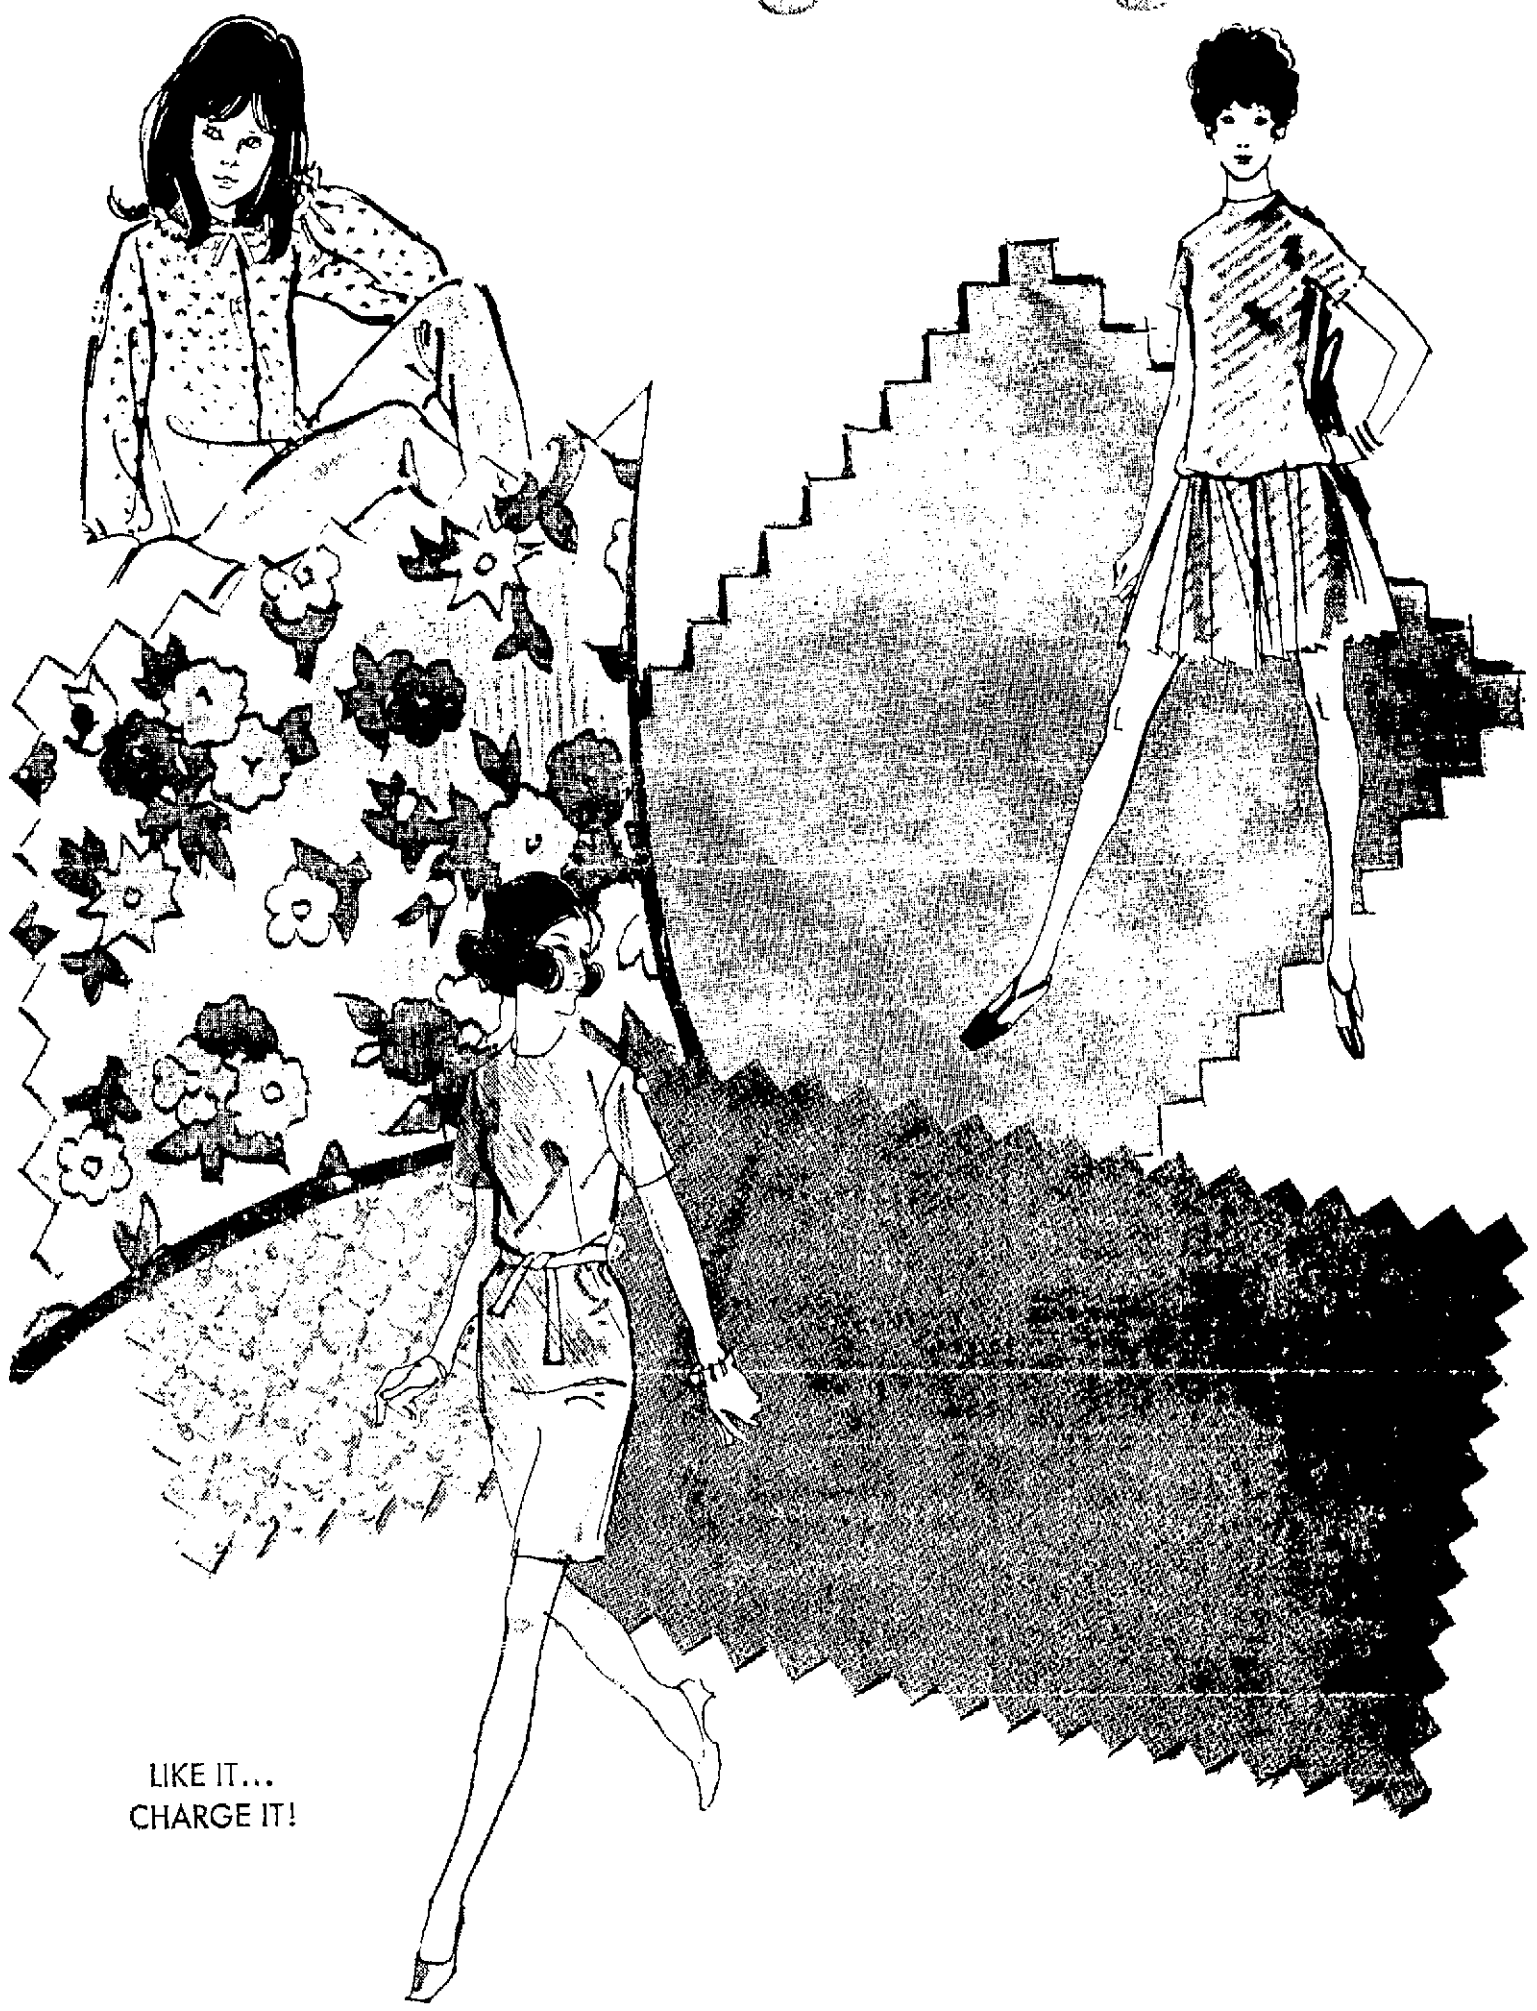

("Satisfying conclusion" is a value judgment, of course, and one based on my inalterable status as a member of the post-30 generation. It satisfied me, as it should my contemporaries. And I dare say that all but totally bigoted juniors will be not too displeased.)

Leading toward this windup is one of the funniest second-acts in recent stage history. In it, Joe Karbo, a solid upper-middle-classer, out-hippies the son and his friend, who had been jailed for assault in their dean.

Give this 3½ stars and a general recommendation ing their dean.

Eye Tests Offered for Children

Free eye checks for school children aged 5-18 will be offered at four locations in the Long Beach area Sunday, Oct. 19.

The screening program for vision will be conducted by the Long Beach Optometric Society and Auxiliary, which are affiliated with the California Optometric Association.

THE EYE examinations will be performed from noon to 3 p.m. at Belmont Savings and Loan Association, 5200 E. Second St.; Community Savings and Loan Association, 3901 Atlantic Ave.; Lakewoood Public Health Center, 5110 Clark Ave.; and West Long Beach Boys Club, 1835 W. Willard St.

Dr. Saburo Takeshita, president of the Long Beach Optometric Society, said the vision checkup is intended to uncover the more obvious visual defects and is in no way intended to take the place of a thorough visual examination.

Optometrists say that 14 per cent of first-grade children and 17 per cent of ninth graders have some vision handicap. They note that this is highly significant since vision is involved in 80 per cent of all educational techniques.

Thief Gets Rifle

A thief took a $95 rifle from a rack at Grant's Department Store, 4550 Atlantic Blvd., while the store was open for business, Long Beach police said Saturday.

Volunteers of Red Cross to Hear Program Goals

New Red Cross volunteers will attend an orientation session Oct. 17 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Red Cross chapter house, 319 W. Broadway.

The volunteers will receive descriptive outlines about the programs of Red Cross which offer volunteer opportunities. Included are service to military families, from Mrs. Barbara Hart; canteen service, Mrs. Marguerite Border, and the blood program, Lola Music.

H. Dale Jacobs, chapter manager, will introduce the volunteers to the Red Cross organization, and Mrs Agnes Fraser, chairman of community programs, will discuss the Red Cross in the community. "What Is Expected of a Volunteer" will summarize the orientation, by Mrs. Thelnore Nichols, chairman of volunteers for the Long Beach chapter.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer is invited to attend the orientation. "Many opportunities exist for the person who wants to be a Red Cross volunteer," said Mrs. Nichols. "Just call the volunteer office in the chapter for more information."

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

FORECAST FOR MONDAY

Your birthday today: Progress this year will be proven in pace and direction. Neglected prerequisites must be filled in somehow. One of the more excitable distractions may be related to romance. Today's natives hold strong opinions, but do not often publish them. Married life is almost never really easy for them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Start your week and your day early. A straightforward effort now should meet no complications. Get your work done on time. Do the appropriate things for children and loved ones.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your plans can go smoothly into effect today including some that met resistance before. Proceed on the basis that everything is all right; go ahead until you reach a natural stopping point. Be sure to avoid haste.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Start early but get yourself a change of pace. Travel and commuting are not favored, possibly complicated by traffic.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money matters fall into line easier today. Although there is not the vigorous turn over and turn around that usually goes with sharply improved financial activity. Defer decisions on ultimate investments of new funds. Add to savings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Much discussion is forthcoming on every subject that interests you. Your views on some past controversy turn out to be validated. Old friends have much interesting news.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Changes and new starts are not favored today. Put your efforts into clearing up leftovers. Dealings with hospitals and other institutions are promising.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Much depends on your choice of companions today. There are many loose ends to be taken care of, many side issues which could just as well remain unstressed. Keep your attention on what is important to you and your own.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Among the neglected items there is a prize this morning. Catch up with the details of your job. This should be a week of sound progress, so get busy promptly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Personal prospects in both money and emotional satisfaction look a bit brighter today. Deferrals consistent effort has its compensation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Now is the time to discover unsuspected resources, hidden assets. Make a search for unused talent. Review insurance, tax situation, accounts due you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Today promises to be uneventful. Cooperation all around is favored. Make the most of it; clear your schedules. Find some serious study tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Now you can press forward to put your plans into action. Full discussion helps group interests. It is a generally fortunate day in which much can be achieved with nominal effort.

The Sinking of the Vessel Magic Isle

By JACK BALDWIN
Marine Editor

At 10 a.m. on Sept. 1, 1969, the 127-foot MV Magic Isle, aground on a coral reef off the island of Pukapula in the South Pacific, slid off the reef and like a marble rolling off a table, dropped into a 3,000-foot deep trench.

Prior to the sale of the 27-year-old former Army boat to a Samoan exporter-importer in July of this year the Magic Isle served as a cross-channel cruise ship and carried more than a half million passengers to and from Catalina Island.

A GRAPHIC and somewhat saddening account of the stranding and sinking of the Magic Isle is contained in the ship's logbook salvaged from the vessel shortly before it slid off the reef and sank in 500 fathoms.

Here are some extracts of the log as recorded by Capt. Ben Moore, master of the Magic Isle. (Times are based on the 24-hour clock.)

Aug. 31,1969:

1635: Arrived off west side of Pukapuka. Sounded whistle and saw people on the beach. Cruising off west reef waiting for boat to come out.

1000: Two boats came out to Magic Isle and 12 men boarded. Waiting moonrise at 2200 to go ashore.

2300: Good visibility. Left Magic Isle with Bill Moore and Isoa Moimoi. Rest of crew to stay aboard and lay off island until we return in morning. As we reached the shore (approx. 45 min. after leaving Magic Isle) the ship began sounding danger signal and sent up a red parachute flare. We turned around immediately and headed back to the Magic Isle. When we got to her she was fast on the reef. Henry Simpson jumped out of the small boat and swam the last 20 or 30 yards to the Magic Isle as there was a moderate swell running next to the reef. I stayed in the small boat to take a line from the stern and possibly by using the right combination of engine maneuvering and pulling with the small boat, free her from the reef, but she would not come off."

IN AN ACCOUNT of what happened, the Magic Isle's first mate wrote:

"About 15 minutes after the small boat had left for the island the wind began to shift to the West from Northeast. The Magic Isle began setting toward the reef. I notified the engineer of intention to get way on the ship and I gave a bell for one third ahead on the port engine. When the engine failed to start I went to the engine room to see what was wrong. Isoa Moimoi told me that there was no (compressed) air. I told him to get air up as fast as possible as the wind was setting the ship toward the reef. It took about 10 minutes to start the engine and when the engine was finally started by Salomona Patu the Magic Isle was already on the reef."

AFTER unsuccessfully trying to pull the Magic Isle off the sharp prongs of the coral reef with the small boat, Capt. Moore boarded the listing vessel.

"I told the crew to start getting as much of their personal things together as they could. Magic Isle was listing to port and just a few feet off the reef the depth drops to 500 fathoms. The small boat was sent ashore and returned about 2 a.m. to take us off. The Magic Isle was listing very badly and beginning to take on water," the captain wrote.

"WE STAYED ashore the rest of the night. When daylight came we returned with two small boats. The Magic Isle was ready to fall off the reef at any time. She was completely flooded and the port side of the main deck was awash. We were able to spend about three hours throwing off what we could. Several hundred people were standing on the edge of the reef trying to save what we could get off."

"About 0900 the stern lurched to seaward and fell below the surface. Shortly before 1000 the Magic Isle fell off the reef and sank in 500 fathoms of water. We who were still aboard jumped off the forward end and swam across the edge of the reef and walked ashore."

MV MAGIC ISLE NOW RESTS ON OCEAN FLOOR

'That's My Bag!' Colorful, Original Off Broadway West Presentation

By ROBERT BECKMAN

The program for Off Broadway West's new show, "That's My Bag!" is colorful and — in content presentation — quite original.

It serves as a not so gentle hint of side-splitting things to come; then it might as well be forgotten.

THE GENE CASEY-directed satirical revue at the Grand Hotel, Anaheim, in no way follows the script, and no one in the opening night audience cared.

Elmarie Wendel, Patti Cope, Jerry Grasse and Dale Phillips (The Company) are the zaniest quartet romping into Orange County in some time.

Their "Ode to Trading Stamps" — delivered in solemn choir loft tones — comes off as the top hit of the evening. Their scarlet choir robes add to the laugh-provoking adulation of the Blue Chips.

Miss Cope and Grasse team for an outstanding song-and-dance presentation, "Escape from Reality," during which flicker lights emphasize their fluidity of movement.

PATTI COPE
Featured Role

MISS COPE, who has appeared in both off-Broadway and on-Broadway successes, is a lovely blonde who dances, sings and acts with equal ease. Her deadpan delivery of "I've Got That Switched On Feeling" (Some day next week I think I'll paint the town . . .") gives the Off Broadway West laugh meters a real test.

Grasse introduces in this show his own song — and one you should be hearing for some time: "The Day After Tomorrow," voicing a young men's remorse after losing his sweetheart.

The dancing in "Do You Remember the Forties?" is superb.

So are the countless short comedy situations interspersed between acts.

THE TOTAL show is backgrounded with a vaudeville era curtain with the thick-jowled countenance of Mao Tse-tung scowling at the words above: "That's My Bag."

As the show sputters into its opening — purposely, of course — and the hard-working four-man company immediately soft-shoes into its "Goodnight" number, it seems Mao adopts a ghost of a smile.

After Grasse and Phillips turn Miss Cope's fanciful dance in "Joan, the Milkmaid" into a farce, Mao seems to chuckle.

At a skit in which a company executive who deals out riots for a fee thanks his caller, "Mayor Yorty," you are sure Mao laughs aloud.

EXCLUSIVE FEATURE

An excursion into fantasy ends abruptly when Mick (Malcolm McDowell) discovers the "realness" of his own blood. "If . . .", a Paramount release in color is now playing an exclusive engagement in Long Beach at the Plaza Theater.

Earl Wilson's Broadway

Critics of Film Appal Bob Culp

NEW YORK — Bob Culp shocked this interviewer by declaring he was "appalled" that "some respected members of the Fourth Estate permitted themselves to be tricked by their pre-misconceptions" and therefore "missed the meaning" of the movie "Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice" in which he plays Natalie Wood's husband.

He was referring to some critics who didn't like the film, especially the end when B.C.T & A are in bed together.

"I'm appalled," he repeated, "at these critics' lack of comprehension. A 12-year-old child could understand what took place and didn't take place but some critics didn't."

The 6-foot-1 TV star and writer — he was on "I Spy" for 3 years — said that some reviewers thought the picture endorsed marijuana, emotional infidelity and sexual freedom — whereas the movie actually showed that the two married couples were decent humans who couldn't go through with their planned adventure.

"I'm getting so steamed that this has become a cause with me." Culp lit a cigaret and took a soft drink.

"This will become known as the best comedy since World War II — but that's not very good company," he admitted.

CULP COULD say this without conceit, for he only acted in it. He readily conceded that his thoughts were those of a man "who, I am told, is very difficult."

"I'm told that. I'm also told I'm uncommunicative, have a bad temper, am terribly opinionated, arrogant, tend to withdraw and be silent a lot, that I'm possessive (which is true), that I have an imperfect understanding of money. That's what I'm told. I don't believe it for a second."

"That is what your wife" (France Nuyen) says?"

"That's what they've all said!"

To Culp, the kids of today are "going back to the values of their grandparents, which are better than the values of their parents.

"SDS or whatever that idea shall become will elect a president and not kill him!" he predicted.

"Will you be part of it?"

"No, I'm too old. I'm 39 and I'm tired.

"My grandfather has much to do with shaping me. My father, I missed him altogether. He wasn't there. I don't mean physically.

"I was terribly lucky to have a grandfather who could do anything a man could do out of doors.

"HE WAS A cabinetmaker, carpenter, he could built you a motel and did, he was a gold prospector, deputy sheriff, game warden, professional hunter for the railroad. In 1886 he came to California from Tennessee with a donkey and a partner. My grandmother came from Kansas in a covered wagon. They went north to the gold fields.

"He quit everything when I was born in 1930. I was with him much more than my dad. He was mean if you weren't fair. He was a hard man to live with, for a woman, because he was a man's man."

Culp — he's from Oakland, was a doctor's son, and a pole vault champion — hopes the kids do return to the values of their grandparents and make something out of this world.

"I don't think we have in this country any leaders who are capable of galvanizing this nation of disparate souls," he said. "Just name anything, and scratch it, and you'll find disenchantment."

Just to cinch it that he's an individual, Culp said he liked "I Am Curious (Yellow)" and "Oh! Calcutta!"

"I find 'I Am Curious (Yellow)' charming and very sweet and handled very beautifully," he said. "As for 'Oh! Calcutta!' the producer Hilly Elkins is a friend of mine. It is very improperly understood. It is brilliant!"

THE WEEKEND WIND-UP .... Arlo Guthrie's fee tripled because of "Alice's Restaurant" . . . Rex Harrison and Rachel Roberts may adopt an Italian orphan . . . Milton Berle will attend the opening of Dangerfield's . . . Jacqueline Susann told producer Mike Frankovich she wants the leading man in her "Love Machine" film to look like broadcaster Frank Gifford . . . Composer Lionel Bart said at 37th St. Hideaway he's working on a musical comedy version of "La Boheme" for Ann-Margret.

Julie "Mama" Gabor dazzled friends at Nepentha by wearing sequined pajamas and turban . . . Las Vegas International is trying to entice Julie Andrews and Maria Callas with record fees . . . Stripper Babette Bardot, Brigitte's cousin, opens there at Circus Circus next month . . .

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Discussing Christine Jorgensen at the Delegate, someone said, "I hear she keeps His and Hers scrapbooks."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Mike Forrest heard Joe E. Lewis was almost floored by a wild punch & it had bourbon, rye, brandy and fruit juice.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: Mother is the name for God in the lips and hearts of little children. — WM. THACKERAY.

EARL'S PEARLS: "I made a lot of money because I'm absentminded." Jesse Kaplan said "I forgot to play the market this year."

Bobby Goldsboro said at the Jiffy Theatrical Copy Center that his hometown library closed for two weeks . . . they're waiting for the book to come back . . . That's earl, brother.

Western Movie Gear to be Sold

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — For more than a half century the late Fat Jones provided livestock, wagon wheels, conestogas, stage coaches and all the other paraphernalia that went into the making of horse operas.

Now these relics of the old west will be auctioned off.

Fat Jones sold his business to a man named Dyke Johnson in 1962, and died a year later.

But Fat was the man producers looked to for authenticity and equipment from the earliest flickering silents to television westerns that are still on the air.

For business reasons, his successor, Johnson, is holding an auction Oct. 10 to unload almost a million dollars worth of western gear and equines, including horses ridden by the stars of "Bonanza," "Gunsmoke," "Lancer," and "The Big Valley."

IT WOULD not be unexpected to find some western stars bidding on their favorite mounts.

For instance, the black and white pinto ridden by Mike Landon in "Bonanza" is as familiar a prop as the Pondersoa ranch house.

Johnson said the rental for horseflesh for "Bonanza," alone comes to $12,000 a year.

The Fat Jones Stables Inc. is located on 10½ acres in the San Fernando Valley, surrounded by suburban homes. The acreage is home to 300 head of livestock.

In the early days Fat and his wranglers would drive the horses to location sites in Newhall, 15 miles away, work them all day, and drive them back after dark when filming was completed. Now they are carted in vans to and from location.

The Akron, in Lakewood, Will Open Wednesday

FINK (L), CATHCART, BARTHE . . . With Akron 'Tiger'

The Akron opens its newest store in Lakewood Center Wednesday.

It marks the arrival of a unique merchandising operation to the Long Beach area.

A Southern California institution since 1954, the Akron has become so closely associated with the western way of life that it has passed into the language, inspired a popular song, and made headline news with its sales of almost everything from full-size Chinese junks to live riding horses.

Local shoppers will discover the secret themselves beginning at 10 a.m. Wednesday as Hal Cathcart, manager of the new Lakewood store, next to Bullocks' in the shopping center, cuts the ribbon to open the latest Akron.

Assisting him will be Hyman Fink, chairman of the board; Bernard Field, president; Fink's daughter, Mrs. Mark Levin, and P. James Barthe, director-real estate and market research.

Neither a department store, a discount house or an import shop — but a sort of combination of all three — the Akron is perhaps most famous for its decorator items and imported quality merchandise, with heavy emphasis on unusual items not found in conventional shops.

GOURMET foods and wines, imported furniture, original works of art, jewelry, and other exotic goods are advertised twice weekly in distinctive newspaper displays.

The Akron also maintains comprehensive lines of staple merchandise such as hardware, clothing, housewares and toys.

Its policy is to make shopping an adventure for the entire family, with dramatically low prices to appeal to the budget-conscious and high-styled merchandise to attract the quality minded.

It is a policy that has paid off brilliantly. Today the company grosses some $30 million a year, representing more than a quarter of a million individual sales each week.

THE AKRON was founded in Los Angeles after World War II by Field and Fink.

> 'The Akron has inspired a popular song, and made headline news with its sales of almost everything.'

Its success was instantaneous, and before long new stores were added. Today there are, counting the new store in Lakewood, 14 locations from San Francisco southward.

At least five more major stores are planned in 1970.

THE AKRON is particularly celebrated for the wide range of merchandise it offers its customers, with almost two hundred new "specials" being advertised each week.

In its time the store has sold live monkeys, Indian temple carvings, life-size suits of armor, precious jewelry, and mink coats.

It was the first to offer first-rate Danish furniture at such low prices that "early Akron" became a familiar phrase to describe a popular style of contemporary interior decor.

In "Billy Barnes' L.A.," a successful revue of 1962, one of the sketches featured a song about the chain and how "middle-class mortals can pass through its portals."

The rest of the lyric might have been a slight exaggeration, but it did suggest the infinite variety that has made Akron a household name in Southern California.

Sol Vista-Fountain Valley First Units Are Open Today

Sol Vista Homes' newest development, a planned 350-home community in Fountain Valley, today opens its first phase with the preview of five model homes, according to Al Solomon, president of the Orange County-based construction firm.

The extensive project will open in several increments with the initial phase consisting of 61 homes and ranging in price from $32,950.

The new community, to be known as Sol Vista-Fountain Valley, is rising at 16300 Magnolia Avenue.

Historically, the 70-acre site has played an active part in the California farming industry.

For more than 15 years, the rich soil produced agricultural crops for Californians. "The surrounding growth centers have molded a new and dynamic picture for Fountain Valley," Solomon said. "Sol Vista is building these quality homes for a new generation of families."

SOL VISTA-FOUNTAIN VALLEY features five model homes, with three, four and five bedrooms. The homes are being offered by the builder with a total of 17 distinctive exterior elevations.

Characteristic of Sol Vista's exterior features in all homes are decorative wooden garage doors and shake, shingle or tile roofs. Most entry doors are fashioned after hand-carved, early California originals and the entry halls are of colorful, contrasting materials and patterns.

Large planting areas, bringing nature closer to home, and wrought iron entry gates are focal points of some models. The homes, ranging to 2,270 square feet of living area, carry their imaginative designs throughout all interiors.

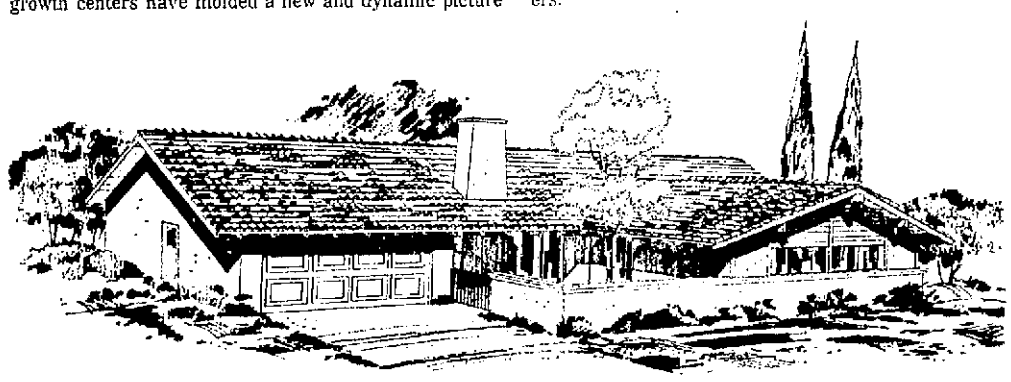

Primed for casual California living, Sol Vista-Fountain Valley homes feature double-door entries which open into expanded living areas.

In some models, huge step-down family rooms and spacious, cheerfully decorated living rooms are completely separated from the formal dining accommodations which provide the extra touch in today's sophisticated living.

SLOPING CATHEDRAL CEILINGS and massive floor-to-ceiling fireplaces of handsome brick, stone or concrete block continue the distinctive appointments in two new designs.

Double-arms-width doorways are featured in the master bedroom suites with huge closets and a spacious master bath for additional convenience and comfort. A five-foot by three-foot shower includes carefully detailed ceramic tiling and convenient dressing benches.

California homemaker kitchens, featuring the most up-to-date appliance innovations, give the feeling of indoor-outdoor living. Each light, bright kitchen interior offers a choice of tile or formica counter-tops and they include pass-through windows to outside serving counters.

SANTA CRUZ MODEL . . . Has Dramatic Entry-Patio Area

Of the five distinctive model homes, two are two-story residences which provide expanded living areas.

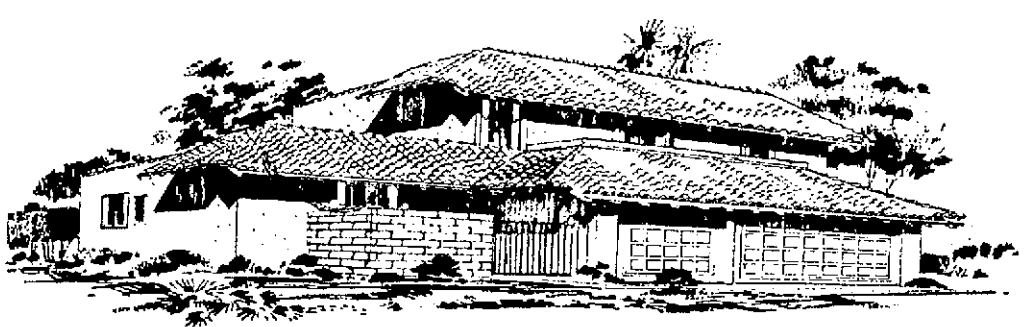

One model offers a unique architectural feature in the form of a "king size" game and family room on the second floor, capable of being converted into three additional bedrooms. This Sol Vista innovation is a huge 17-foot by 33-foot "idea" room.

ADDITIONAL FEATURES INCLUDED in each home are cultured marble pullman tops, extra-large bathroom mirrors and huge storage and closet spaces. Handcrafted lighting fixtures are also keynoted throughout the designer homes.

Located immediately adjacent to the development are clusters of service stores adding to the convenience of the community. Major regional shopping complexes are only five minutes away and Southern California beaches are located less than 15 minutes from the new development.

Furnished models of the new Fountain Valley project are open daily from 10 a.m. to dusk.

To reach Sol Vista-Fountain Valley homes, take the Magnolia offramp of the San Diego Freeway and go north. From the Garden Grove Freeway, take Magnolia south.

BLOOMSTER (L), RUHLEN . . . Directing Gable Removal

FOR POSSIBLE RESTORATION

Old Spanish Mansion Preserved in Crates

Special to the Progress Section

Delicate dismantling of an old Spanish family mansion within the Carson city limits has demolition people raising the roof — literally.

Workers are gingerly removing gabled sections of the house, carefully lifting away porch railings and lattices and removing old doors from the estate house of the George Henry Carson family at 13911 S. Alameda.

Most of the house and its furnishings will be stored temporarily until an appropriate museum site can be located.

The project began in 1967 when the Carson Estate Corporation contacted the interiors department of Albert C. Martin and Associates, Los Angeles, regarding possible restoration of the original homesite as an historical museum.

Because of the decayed state of the house — extensive damage had occurred during the Long Beach earthquake in 1933 — and evidence of a later modernization of the dwelling, the Martin firm recommended that the valuable furnishings of the George Carson period be removed from the house along with sections of the building and stored in a Carson Time Capsule.

BUILT IN 1885, the estate was the homesite of members of the Carson family until three years ago.

Nearby adobe ruins of the first family dwelling go back 200 years and seven generations to the days when Spanish soldiers were founding the first California missions and the presidios or forts that protected them.

The house is located on a remnant of Rancho San Pedro, a land concession of more than 75,000 acres awarded to Juan Jose Dominguez in 1784 for his help in founding early Spanish missions on the California coast.

Today, the cities of San Pedro, Carson, Torrance, Wilmington, Compton and Redondo Beach, as well as the whole Palos Verdes peninsula, stand on former Rancho San Pedro land, once owned by the Dominguez family.

DESTRUCTION of the house did not begin until September.

First, the exterior of the estate building was photographed in detail for a permanent record.

Then the interior division staff of the Martin firm went into the house, photographing the interior and noting and cataloging all pieces to be stored.

Furniture preserved included two Victorian sofas with ornately carved wood trim and two pianos, one a huge grand piano with massive carved legs, said to have been transported around Cape Horn.

Realtors Helped, Not Hindered, by Lending-Truth Laws

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business Editor

New federal truth-in-lending laws have been more help than hindrance in real estate transactions.

This was revealed by a panel of experts last week at the California Real Estate Association's annual convention at the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles.

"For the first time," Melvin Mould, Realtor of Long Beach, explained, "we now have official proof the cost of owning the product we sell is available at the lowest financing cost of any product financed."

He cited the 18 per cent annual percentage rate of interest charged on time purchases of television sets, oil and gasoline and other consumer goods.

In comparison, he pointed to current rates of 7½ to 9 per cent on home mortgages as "still a bargain, even though they are higher now than the public has been used to paying in the past."

Other panelists were Norman D. Kull, attorney with California Federal Savings and Loan Association; Frank O'Bryan, president of Southern California Mortgage and Loan Corporation, San Bernardino; and Don Tarbell, Realtor of Huntington Beach.

James A. Edmonds Jr., of Long Beach, chairman of the CREA Real Estate Finance Division, presided.

KULL SAID THE IMPACT on lenders of the new regulations, which went into effect July 1, has been less than anticipated.

If the law were inevitable, "there is no more propitious time than now for it to come into effect," he commented.

As reasons he cited:

1. The short supply of money and interest rates on loans being at new high levels, causing less resistance from borrowers. (Loan "points" and fees being translated into an additional fraction of a percentage as an annual percentage rate could otherwise cause hesitation.)

2. Conditioning of the borrower "by the bombardment of 18 per cent annual percentage rate disclosures of credit card companies, oil companies, and department stores."

3. The volume of loans being low, "personnel of many lenders now have time to revamp the operations and procedures to accommodate Regulation Z requirements without unduly disturbing the daily work flow."

KULL ALSO REVIEWED necessary forms that must be filled out if a real estate broker comes under the definition of "creditor."

O'Bryan commented that most real estate brokers do not come under that definition. They only become liable to make full disclosure of credit terms when they extend credit, act as loan broker, advertise credit, or are arrangers of credit.

He said they become arrangers when they:

1. Get a fee for arranging a loan.

2. Help prepare loan documents and know the loan's terms.

3. Assist the borrower in filling out a loan application that is a contract between the borrower and lender.

4. Take back a trust deed from the buyer or effectively lend him the commission earned on the sale.

SWEEPING CHANGES IN MORTGAGE financing have caused a revolution in the real estate market and mortgage banking, with more to come, according to Edwin S. Bingham Jr., of Los Angeles, president of the California Mortgage Bankers Association.

Speaking before a financing conference during the CREA convention, Bingham said:

"Consider that only a few years ago the long-term loan at a fixed rate was the mortgage cornerstone of the market. It is not so today.

"Life insurance companies, traditionally one of the nation's chief suppliers of mortgage money, now show a growing unwillingness to commit long-term funds without the potential of additional income over and above the fixed base interest rate."

He said most life insurance companies have already committed the bulk of their available mortgage funds through 1972, earmarking investments largely for commercial, industrial and apartment house properties.

"They have not abandoned the real estate market," he said, "but rather have not taken a new position within it. And the economic pressures they face, both from increased business competition and the unrelenting spectre of inflation, have made such new investment policies imperative."

He speculated that life companies may show renewed interest in non-incentive loans, FHA/VA and conventional single family home loans in the distant future, "if inflation and inflationary thinking can be controlled in the national economy.

"But don't look for such a dramatic reversal of current trends at least until after 1972," he warned.

THE SECOND TRUST DEED is becoming a much more used tool for mortgage financing in the present tight money market, according to a panel of Realtor financial specialists which met during the CREA convention.

Participating were Eric Jorgensen of San Francisco, who presided, Jack Chamberlain of Sacramento, Wally Marinko of San Francisco, Sidney Miller of San Bruno, and Robert Burns of Fresno.

Chamberlain pointed out that there are several new ways of financing being used because of the high cost of money.

"In the past," he said, "many of our investors borrowed from their bank at the prime rate of 6 per cent or 7 per cent per annum and then reloaned this money at 10 per cent. This is no longer profitable as the banks now want 8½ per cent and 9 per cent.

"The lender is regulated by the state usury law to 10 per cent maximum," he explained, "thus making the risk too great for the small margin of profit."

LENDERS ARE LOOKING for transactions that will protect their real estate investments from the adverse effects of inflation, Charles P. Flannagan of Santa Ana, told the CREA conference.

He is vice president and manager of H.F. Whittle Investment Company's Orange County office.

"We are in the midst of a national credit crunch," he said, "that is supported by the Federal Reserve Board, State and National Banks, plus typical lending institutions."

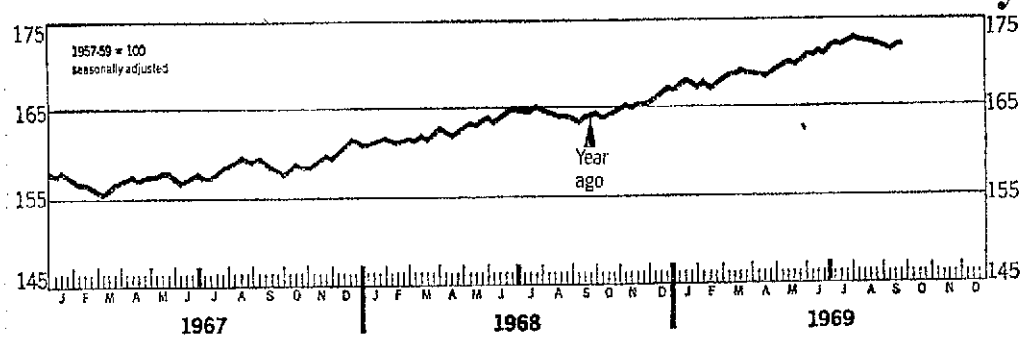

Pointing out that the dollar has eroded at a 6 to 7½ per cent rate for the past few years, he acknowledged that corrective measures are being taken by government, but that "deficit spending government programs ranging from $10 billion to $30 billion per year cannot be sustained."

He said the inflationary cycle has discouraged lenders from investing more money in long-term mortgage loans.

They are looking for "loans with high guaranteed interest rates, loans with attractive interest rates plus participation, and placement of investment capital into equity positions," he said.

The conference, sponsored by CREA's Appraisal Division, was one of several during the six-day conclave to explore the money market implications for real estate.

Steel Production Holds Index Steady

Business Week index

1957-59 average	Year ago	Month ago	Week ago	Latest week
100	164.1	172.3	172.2	172.2

The Index showed no change from its week-ago level, as gains in steel and auto production offset the losses in surface transportation components.

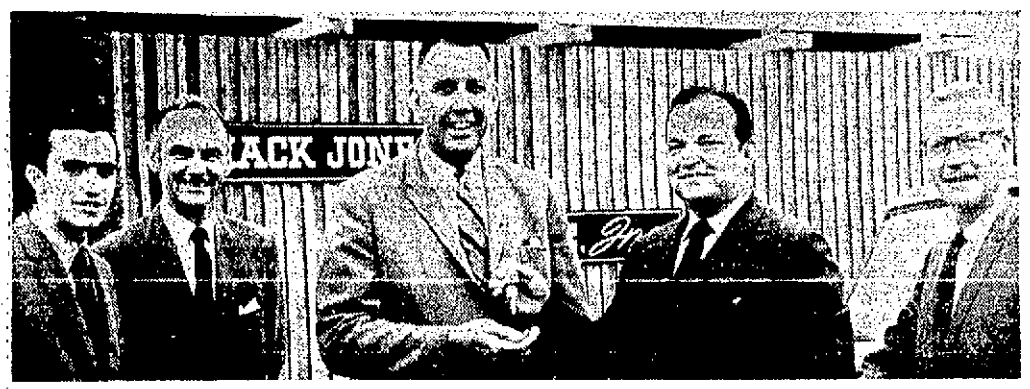

Steel output went up 0.5 per cent, steel orders at present are strong, reflecting demands of auto industry.

Auto output gained 1.4 per cent, in this, the first week of new-model showings.

The power components showed losses in the current week, crude oil refinery runs were off 0.7 per cent; electric power output slipped 0.1 per cent.

Miscellaneous carloadings dropped 2.4 per cent; all other carloadings slipped 2.0 per cent and intercity truck tonnage went down 5.7 per cent.

Paperboard production rebounded from last week's drop and jumped 13.5 per cent in the current week.

LONG BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TRADE TIPS ON THE WORLD MARKET

By REVAN KOMAROFF

Here is a success story in export selling.

It concerns a 20-year-old American girl who competed against six European competitors and beat them all!

Miss X was on her first business trip to Germany. She left the West Coast for Berlin, and after a very rough journey touched down in Hanover about 8 p.m. Her appointment was for 9:30 the next morning.

She was stranded. There were no flights until 11 the next day. She desperately tried to hire a taxi to take her to Berlin and, by sheer fluke, a charming old lady in the cafeteria at the airport said her husband would oblige. He was a dear old man, smelling strongly of garlic, in a very decrepit old Opel.

It was about midnight when they set off and through the whole of the six-hour journey he poured profanity on to the Russians and never repeated himself once!

SHE WAS worried about the guards at the checkpoints and decided to be a dumb blonde, and pretend she couldn't speak German.

The guards were very helpful but at every stop she had to get out of the car, which the guards searched thoroughly.

They unpacked all her samples, checked her personal luggage, and made her fill in innumerable forms.

Did the guards make any remarks about her? You bet they did, believing that she didn't understand German, and as Miss X said with a smile, their remarks about me was good for my morale.

She arrived in Berlin about 6:30 a.m., quickly bathed and changed at the Berlin Hilton and went straight on to her appointment.

There was a buying committee of 26 people, 24 of whom were men. She modeled and showed and sold the whole range of her samples comprising of Ladies' Suede Jackets.

She was competing against six European competitors, but her presentation of the product her firm had to offer was presented with such verve and intelligence that she scooped the entire allocation of a quarter of a million dollars.

Nickel, B.C.

Primitive peoples considered meteoric iron a rare and valuable metal, not realizing it was its high concentration of nickel that made it special. This high nickel content explains the good state of preservation of certain primitive artifacts unearthed by archeologists through the years.

NEW IDENTITY MARK . . . For AM

WORLD OF WHEELS

By ART STEPHAN
Auto Editor

American Motors has embarked on a new corporate-wide identity program, a communications system designed to bring the company, its products and its dealer organization under one highly identifiable banner.

Roy D. Chapin Jr., chairman and chief executive officer, said the new program "reflects the positive plan of action we have instituted for the 1970s and beyond."

The plans were revealed during a news conference at a prototype AM dealership in Grosse Pointe, Mich.

"The new corporate symbol we have adopted provides a highly distinctive link for all elements of our company," Chapin said. "It will give us the visibility and identification that is vital for sustained public awareness of our dealers, our corporation, and our products.

"OUR CUSTOMERS WILL MAKE their purchase in very pleasant environment—one that gives an impression of elegance and importance as befits those making their second largest purchase in terms of major acquisitions."

Chapin said the company's approach to the new identity program was based on four considerations:

—To further the company's communicative and marketing goals by establishing optimum identification for its dealers and the corporation;

—To be flexible enough to be adapted to a wide range of architectural styles and settings;

—To be neat, simple and functional, so that the end result would make a strong statement about the company's new character and the products it sells; and —To be economical to implement and maintain.

The company's new red, white and blue "A-mark," will be used on a new signage program for AM dealers, as well as product identification, advertising, sales promotion aids, display materials and packaging, he said.

Ford dealers reported record number of sales during the 1970 model introduction period. Participation in the introduction at Glen Organ Ford in Compton were members of Ford Division's singing group, "The Going Thing." Glen Organ Ford owner Dean R. Jones, center, joins members of group.

Automation Institute Alumni to Gather

A joint meeting of the alumni of the five Automation Institutes of Los Angeles and Orange County will be treated Tuesday to a presentation of the Apollo II mission at the Proud Bird Restaurant.

The computer school graduates will receive first-hand knowledge on the part their industry played in this historic event.

The in-depth look at the Apollo II mission, together with a background of the Apollo program in general and a look into the future, will highlight a special presentation by Robert H. Eggert from North American Rockwell's Space Division, Downey.

HIS firm produces the Apollo spacecraft command and service modules for NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center and the second stage of the towering Saturn V Moon Rocket.

Eggert is the public relations co-ordinator specializing in radio, television, and motion pictures at North American, where he is directly involved in the Apollo program information efforts.

JIM McCormick, director of the Long Beach Automation Institute, said 500 graduates and staff will be attending the dinner event.

Automation Institutes are educational affiliates of Control Data Corporation, specializing in computer programming instruction.

Color TV Popular in Japan

Entertainment facilities are becoming much more colorful in Japan, as production of color TV sets reached 2.7 million in 1968, double the previous year.

One in every 10 Japanese households owns a color TV set, according to Hiroshi Matsuoka, executive director of the Japan Trade Center in Los Angeles.

THE CURRENT production rate of 345,000 units per month is expected to increase to a monthly output of 560,000 by the end of 1969. Two major electronics firms are likely to top the 100,000 mark each.

Color telecasting was inaugurated in Japan 11 years ago, but it wasn't until after the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo that the production of color sets really became a mass-production industry.

Auto of Past

In 1889, a gasoline-powered automobile made the 900-mile trip from Kokomo, Indiana, to New York without an axle failure — a notable achievement at that time. The car was equipped with one of the first axles of tough, strong nickel steel.

Huggins Is NIAI President

Lyle Huggins, president of Huggins-Dreckman, Inc., Long Beach, was elected president of the National Association of Insurance Agents last week at the association's 73rd annual convention at the Palmer House, Chicago.

Huggins was installed by U.S. Representative Craig Hosmer (R-Calif.) before an audience of 2,000 independent insurance agents and insurance company executives and their wives.

He opened his own business in 1936, and today heads one of the largest general insurance agencies in Long Beach.

HUGGINS has served as president of the Long Beach Masonic Club, Travelers Aid Society, and CVO a Community Chest organization.

He also has served as director of the Chamber of Commerce and the Armed Services YMCA. He has served as president of the board of the Christian Church, director and treasurer of the Community Chest, and is a member of the Long Beach Kiwanis Club.

Following reorganization of the Long Beach Association of Insurance Agents in 1957, Huggins was elected vice president and later president.

After moving up through the offices in the California association, he became president and state national director in 1963.

Subsequently he was appointed to the executive committee of the national.

Frank Hart Declares: 'Home Is Best Buy'

"A home is the best buy an individual or family can make in today's money market."

Frank R. Hart, president of Walker & Lee, Inc., last week made this statement in countering the continuing barrage of gloomy news and about rising interest rates.

"To disprove the prophets of doom and gloom, Walker & Lee is undertaking a record month sales program during October. It is our firm resolve to make this the greatest month in home sales in the entire 28-year history of our firm," Hart said.

WALKER & Lee, through its 500 highly skilled residential specialists, has sold more than 90,000 homes in the Southern California market despite increasing interest costs.

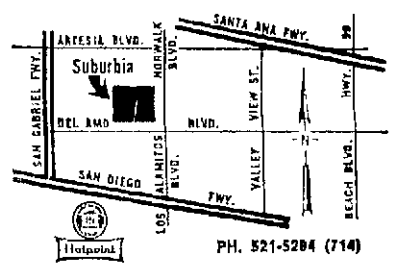

"One of the reasons we have done so well in this field is that we are able to prove to the homeowner that his non-real estate purchases run 18 per cent and up, department stores charge 18 per cent, interest charges on automobile purchases are 11 per cent to 22 per cent and personal loans are saddled with 10.5 to 29 per cent interest rates, depending on buyers' credit," Hart said.

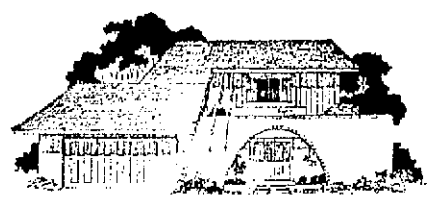

"The prime bank interest rate for the nation's industrial giants is 8.5 per cent. This means that the largest corporations with the greatest borrowing power in the United States are paying 1 per cent more interest than a home buyer purchasing under FHA or VA financing with 7½ per cent interest," he added.

HART said that Walker & Lee is undertaking this program to protect the public interest.

Consider the alternatives...

There are lots of houses in Cerritos. Some are landscaped; some offer carpets; others have low interest rates. Then there's Suburbia-Cerritos — with landscaping, including sprinklers and a tree; with carpeting and draperies and built-ins and cathedral ceilings and fireplaces and concrete drives all included in the purchase price, which starts at $26,950. Far-Sighted Santa Fe Railway Prepares for Future

Trends in railroad industry are toward longer, heavier cars which must be moved over roadbeds at higher speeds.

Santa Fe Railway may have the equipment answer.

The company has built a coaxial train model, to one-eighth scale, which offers interesting possibilities.

It is a low-slung (left picture), low-center-of-gravity train with a platypus-shaped lead unit to produce a desirable aerodynamic effect.

The model also has individually-powered wheels spaced only four feet apart (center photo).

This underframe features a continuous center sill running the length of the train with no coupling devices. The wheels are fastened to the center sill and to a wheel deck.

The main deck, on which container cargo will ride, will be supported by a series of rollers on the wheel decks, allowing the train to easily flex around curves.

The deck on a full-scale version of Santa Fe's coaxial train will be only 24 inches above the rail (right), compared to 42 to 46 inches for the present standard flat car.

This reduced height will produce a low center of gravity and less wind turbulence under the cars, contributing to the unique train's ability to operate at high speeds over existing roadbeds, Santa Fe spokesmen said.

New Bellehurst 'Lays the Ghost'

New Bellehurst at Buena Park has celebrated completion of the final home of those planned for the original development.

Culmination of the Celebration de Verano, as it is known to the community, was a luncheon attended by business and civic leaders of Buena Park and officials of the Boise Cascade Building Co. at the Los Coyotes Country Club.

At New Bellehurst, completion of the final home of the initial phase of the development has a great deal more significance than a similar event at any other residential project, for it finally "lays the ghost" of the old Bellehurst and marks the start of a giant construction program that is expected to make New Bellehurst one of the finest recreation-residential communities in the Southland.

"WHEN NEW Bellehurst was planned originally — under the name of Bellehurst, it was intended to become a showplace for recreation-oriented housing projects," Lee Schiefelbein, regional manager, Orange County Region of Boise Cascade, explained.

"It was the very first community to actually incorporate a country club, complete with a championship 27-hole golf course and a fully-equipped clubhouse, within its boundaries.

"Unfortunately the project encountered some financial problems, and although the club, the Los Coyotes, was recognized as one of the Southland's best, the community surrounding it became practically a ghost town, with empty lots and half-completed homes confronting the visitor in every direction."

TWO YEARS after the R. A. Watt Co., now Boise Cascade Building Co., took title to this unusual development, sales reached in excess of $10 million.

Population of the community has increased by about 75 per cent and all of the derelict homes have been completely refurbished and rebuilt, with the last such home, an attractive one-story dwelling on Brac Burn, completed last week.

"Now that we have brought the original project to the state it was intended, we can go ahead with our other plans," Schiefelbein said.

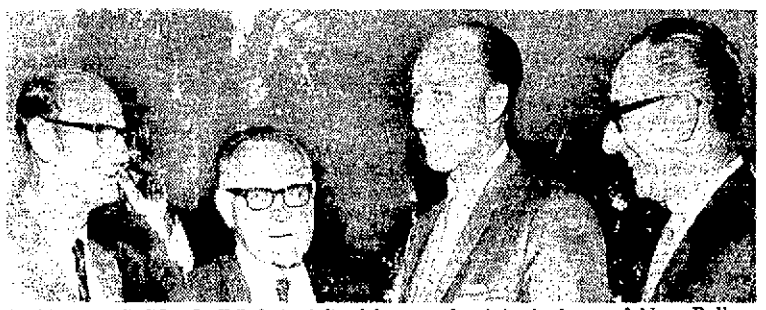

First on the agenda, he said, will be construction of about 100 homes in a previously undeveloped location of the community, followed by another 350 dwellings on the 'Fullerton side' of New Bellehurst.

OTHER PROJECTS include construction of a shopping center near the entrance gates, a plush adult community, improvement and enlargement of the golf course and a number of other projects. Schiefelbein also said a program of custom building will be introduced in the community.

This program is actually under way now with several custom homes, ranging in value up to $300,000, being built or in the planning stages.

Problems that beset the 900-acre project in the beginning have become an advantage, as it is now an established community. Its pleasant, curved streets shaded by full-grown trees that accentuate the feeling of spaciousness and privacy — and create a true environment of country living.

New Bellehurst is in one of the most scenic areas of Orange County, one that has also had its share in the early history of the Southland.

Good Selection Available at Premier Country Kitchen

A complete selection of plans still is available at Premier Country Kitchen in Santa Ana, though more than half of the homes were sold, sales agent Frank McFarland reports, and the sales pace has not diminished.

Builder Bill Rousey adds that homes are still priced $2,500 less than they would cost if he were to begin building today.

Country Kitchen Homes are available in three or four-bedroom plans, all with spacious family kitchens that combine old-fashioned hospitality with up to date convenience and styling.

Wood-burning fireplaces with log-lighters and carpeting in a choice of decorator colors are included. Sliding doors give wide access to patio and play yard.

Rear fencing is included.

RANGE with double oven, dishwasher and disposer are provided by the builder.

Cabinets and pantries are all of select hardwood with durable furniture finish. Counters are topped with handsome ceramic tile.

One model which promises to be a favorite has its fireplace at one corner of the family room, offering an inviting center for family activity.

The carpeted master bedroom has its own bath with deluxe pullman and large stall shower.

Family bedrooms are all served by beautiful main bath with cultured marble pullman. Guest and linen closets, wardrobe and walk-in closets in bedrooms offer generous storage space.

GRADE and junior high schools are within easy walking distance of Premier Country Kitchen community. Bus service is provided for high school students.

Though secluded from the busy section of town, the development is convenient to major thoroughfares which lead to beaches and industrial centers.

Prices are below the medium level.

Entrance is on Euclid Avenue, between Westminster and Bolsa, in Santa Ana.

Landmark Homes Impress Home Buyers

Many of the visitors to Landmark Homes grand opening refreshment party in La Palma were impressed with "Plan 1962," a two-story, four bedroom home.

They liked the idea of having one bedroom downstairs and the others on the second story.

The downstairs bedroom converts to an ideal den or study by the nature of its seclusion from the other bedrooms, said sales manager Dick Sheakley.

Landmark Home's "family ready" concept has already attracted thousands of homeseekers to its La Palma development.

THE FAMILY ready concept has become somewhat of a trademark of the Southern California homebuilding firm of Shattuck & McIlone and has meant thousands of dollars saved by home buyers in after move-in costs.

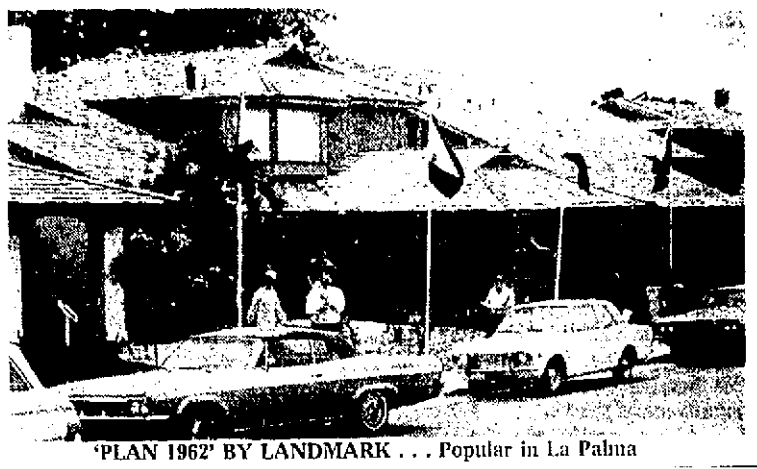

In this completely walled homesite of two-story, four bedroom homes there are three models to choose from with 10 different arrangements designed by R. J. Marvick & Associates.

INCLUDED IN the purchase price (the family ready concept) is nylon carpeting, front yard landscaping and sprinklers, complete rear yard fencing, built-in television antenna, underground utilties and exciting patio kitchens with deluxe equipped range, oven, disposal, hood, fan and dishwasher.

All the homes have three baths and two or three car garages, spacious family rooms and living rooms with dramatic fireplaces.

The models, furnished by Brownie Rowe Interiors of Beverly Hills, are located on Walker Street between La Palma Avenue and Orangethorpe Avenue.

Prices range from just $31,875.

WORLD OF WINGS

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

Encouraged by efforts of the U.S. State Department and the United Nations to put a stop to international hijacking of commercial aircraft, Trans World Airlines has decided to repair the Boeing 707 which was seriously damaged by a cockpit explosion after the passengers and crew were evacuated in Damascus on August 29.

"This is one way for TWA to demonstrate the world's abhorrence for the contemptible crime of hijacking," said F. C. Wiser, the airline's president.

"If abandoned in Syria, the aircraft could become a monument to piracy and lawlessness."

TWA MAINTENANCE PERSONNEL and Boeing technicians will make the repairs at a cost of approximately $3 million, about half the price of a new plane. Although Damascus has virtually no facilities for this kind of work, Wiser estimated the job can be finished in three months.

A new nose section, including instrumentation and control systems, will be manufactured and flown from Seattle in one of Aerospace Lines outsized Pregnant Guppy cargo aircraft for installation at Damascus.

The Guppyliners frequently fly from Long Beach with Saturn-Apollo spacecraft components scheduled for launch at Cape Kennedy.

Wiser also praised the State Department for its work in helping effect the release of four Israeli women passengers aboard the hijacked aircraft, and continued efforts in cooperation with the airline to repatriate two Israeli men, Schlomo Samueloff and Saleh Moualem, who were detained by Syrian authorities.

THE AIRLINE HAS ASSIGNED two top executives, Richard W. Wilson, vice president-international, and John L. Gaiser, experienced in Middle East aviation, to hasten the release of the Israelis through international diplomatic channels.

Readers of these newspapers were spared an earlier first-hand account from the hijacked plane because the writer of this column chose an alternate route through Europe on TWA's recent round-the-world inaugural.

On the day the Rome-Athens flight was diverted, I was flying London-Frankfurt-Athens and missed the biggest aviation exclusive of the year.

TWO DAYS LATER World of Wings interviewed the first of the hijacked passengers to return to Athens.

Eleanor Glenn, a personnel officer in the U.S. Embassy at Saigon, said she had taken two weeks leave in Rome "to get away from the plastic bombs." She also said she would be happy to get back to Vietnam after the Damascus experience.

In addition to the details which by now had been spread over front pages around the globe, the foreign service officer pointed out an irony of the incident. She said four passengers on the hijacked flight were Cuban.

Guess who complained loudest.

Casa Bonita Buyers Now Can Save Money

Plans are under way to break ground for another unit at Casa Bonita Homes, say builders Henry and Myron Riechert, who have joined Swan Constructors Inc., to present Casa Bonita Homes.

Due to steadily increasing costs of building, new models will necessarily cost more than homes presently selling in the first unit.

Buyers who make their selection now will have the advantage of prices that were contracted for prior to current increases in construction and materials cost.

CASA BONITA Homes are in Cerritos, one of the most progressive areas in the Southland.

Models range from three to five bedrooms with three baths. Luxury appointments include dramatic elevated ceilings, decorator lighting fixtures and mirriors, fine qulaity nylon carpeting, approved by FHA.

Patio kitchens feature a full line of top quality Waste-King Universal appliances, deluxe hardwood cabinets and ceramic tiled counters. Deep pantries and broom closets make it possible for the Casa Bonita hostess to have a place for everything.

Pass-through to patio snack bar added extra convenience.

Entrance to Casa Bonita is on Artesia, just east of 605 Freeway. Furnished models are open every day.

L.B. Chamber to Hear NAB Director Speak

Harry Stroud, director of the National Alliance of Businessmen 'JOBS' program for the Greater Long Beach area will speak at the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce breakfast meeting Wednesday at the Lafayette Hotel 7:15.

On full-time loan from TRW Systems, Redondo Beach, Stroud is responsible for the administration of the NAB program in 25 communities.

"JOBS" stands for job opportunities in the business sector and the program received its charter in February 1968 from President Johnson.

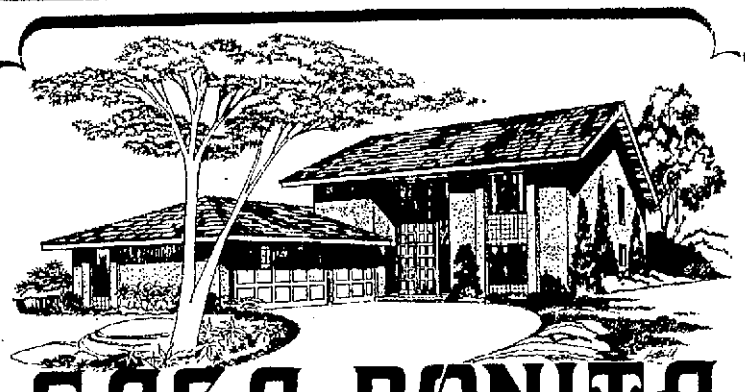

President Nixon has recently expanded it from 50 to 125 metropolitan areas. The task is to encourage private companies to put 614,000 hard-core unemployed on the job by June, 1971.

The government is working closely with the Alliance in support of the program.

Townhouses Topic for Appraisers

"Townhouses" will be the topic for discussion when Colonel E. W. Weeks addresses the monthly dinner meeting of the Long Beach Chapter, Society of Real Estate Appraisers, Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Golden Sails Restaurant.

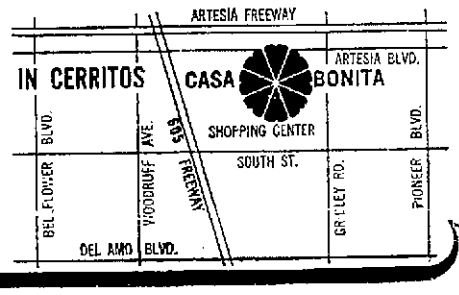

Colonel Weeks is the past regional governor of the society.

Wall Street Briefs

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co. announced in view of the continuing losses of Puerto Rico Brewing Co., Inc., a majority-owned subsidiary, it would not consider any additional substantial investment in the Puerto Rican company. Schlitz said it is hoping to find a buyer for the subsidiary.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense contracts were awarded to four companies: Ryan Aeronautical Co. received a $12.5 million Navy contract for aerial target systems. General Dynamics Corp. was awarded a $10 million Navy contract for standard anti-radiation missiles for the Navy and the Air Force. Litton Systems Inc. won a $9.6 million Air Force contract for F4 aircraft gyroscopes. Hercules Inc. received a $980,000 first increment to a $4.2 million Air Force contract for stage-three motors for Minuteman II missiles and arm-disarm switches.

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Automatic Sprinkler Corp. of America announced the closing by its Bayfield Industries Division of all operations related to production of 105 millimeter cartridge cases. Losses in production of the casings last year led to substantial write-offs, the firm said. The company will sell certain Bayfield assets, including the Shreveport, La. plant where the casings are produced, to Norris Industries Inc. of Los Angeles.

NEW YORK (UPI) — United Corp. said a subsidiary, Univenture Corp., has agreed to acquire a controlling interest in Hugle Industries Inc. of Sunnyvale, Calif., for approximately $3.5 million.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Van de Kamp Holland, a division of General Host Corp. located in Los Angeles, announced it will build a $6 million bakery in the San Francisco Bay Area if a previous marketing effort justifies the outlay. The company makes baked products in the Dutch tradition.

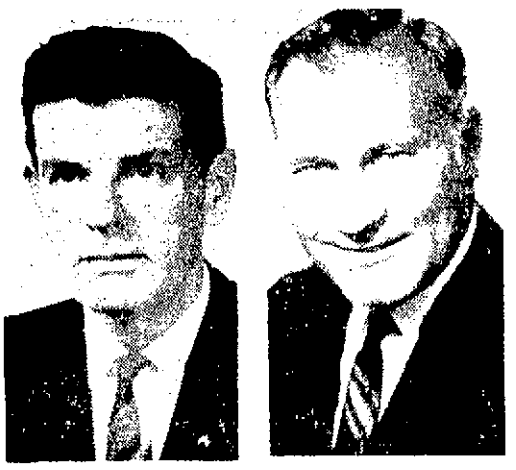

NEW YORK (UPI) — Texaco, Inc., has announced two gas discoveries in the Gulf of Mexico in areas off the Texas Coast acquired in the 1968 lease sale. The first discovery in Federal Block 541 tested flows of 32 million cubic feet of gas daily plus 42 barrels of condensate from two zones. The second discovery has an indicated daily flow of 100 million cubic feet. One well is 22 miles off shore in 37 feet of water and the other 30 miles off shore in 110 feet of water.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Carborundum Corp. announced it is raising prices of coated abrasive products 6.7 per cent Nov. 30.

CHICAGO (UPI) — A tiny computer system to prevent collisions by aircraft converging over or near airports was demonstrated by Oak Brook Electronics Laboratories, Inc., and Statistical Services, Inc. The system is designed for use with the Federal Aviation Authority's existing Vortac stations. The system is designed to improve Vortac mainly by revolutionary filtering techniques and a solid state computer that replaces electro-mechanical devices.

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's Power Ministry is seeking applications from companies desiring to drill for oil and gas in another 140 blocks in the British waters of the Irish and North Seas. The price of the licenses will be $72 a square kilometer.

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. will spend $6.3 million to expand and modernize its tire plant in Indonesia.

Le Gran Expanding Hawaiian Operations

Le Gran Corporation, a Long Beach-based retail merchandising company, has opened its newest jewelry department concession at Pearl City, Oahu, Hawaii, David Grand, president, announced.

This brings to 25 the retail departments the company is operating in a like number of discount department stores in California and Hawaii.

Located in Holiday Mart's new discount store center, Le Gran's Pearl City department will handle various lines of fine and costume jewelry merchandise, as well as silverware, clocks, small leather goods and accessories.

Nickel Aloft

All of the stainless steel components in the experimental plane "Pioneer," built by The Budd Company of Philadelphia, which flew for the first time in 1931, were found to be in excellent condition when the plane was recently rededicated at the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia. The body of the "Pioneer" employed welded nickel stainless steel in the fuselage skin and inner framework. The high-strength metal was also used for the ribs, spars and struts in the wings and tail section and for the wingtip pontoons.

The first Hawaii jewelry department was opened last November at Kailua, Oahu.

TWO additional Le Gran retail concessions in California are scheduled to open this month at the USE discount chain's new South San Francisco store, and the Gemco membership discount department store at Gardena.

Three other openings are set for later this fall at new Gemcos in Cerritos, at Lancaster, and at USE's new Millbrae location in Northern California.

Scott's Anniversary Is Observed

How many of us can remember what radio was like 40 years ago?

If you need information regarding radio during this period, just ask Mrs. Evelyn E. Scott, who along with her late husband, Harold H. Scott, opened Scott's Audio in 1929.

When they opened for business at 222 E. Fourth St., Long Beach, "all-electric" receivers were just being introduced by a few of the more progressive set manufacturers, "single-dial" tuning was hailed as the latest marvel of the radio world and the new "AC" tubes were making an appearance.

THE Scotts opened for business on Oct. 5 in that year with a capital investment of $5,000.

It seemed at first the depression was going to get the best of them; however, just when it looked as if the end was close at hand, sales increased and the doors remained open.

One Sunday afternoon while Scott was at the store catching up on the repair work, a stranger started rattling the door and would not stop until Scott finally admitted him.

The stranger was just out of the Navy and wanted to purchase a Patterson ham radio receiver.

SCOTT later hired this persistent stranger to work in the store and today, after 25 years of service, he is president of both Scott Radio Supply and Scott Audio Corporations.

He is Harold Scott, no relation.

In 1941, the Scotts built at the present location, 266 Alamitos, and have continued to expand since.

Before Scott's death in 1965, he purchased the building next door which

Business Tax Planning Seminar Set at CSCLB

The eighth annual seminar, "Business Tax Planning," will be offered Nov. 1 for business, professional men and tax practitioners by California State College, Long Beach in cooperation with the Small Business Administration, the Internal Revenue Service and the California Franchise Tax Board.

The seminar on Federal and State income taxation will be held in the CSCLB cafeteria from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Recent developments in Federal and State taxation, including tax problems of small businessmen pertaining particularly to Sub Chapter S Corporations, closely held corporations, accumulated earnings tax and protest procedures will be discussed at length.

HIGHLIGHT OF the program will be a session by practitioners to review business tax-saving alternatives; when and how to use them, maximizing capital gains, insurance alternatives, employe compensation, tax-free exchanges, incorporation alternatives, advantageous depreciation methods and leases with options.

A the close of the clinic particular tax problems of the participants will be considered.

W. T. Pickel, professor of accounting, said "the seminar is being held to stress the importance of tax planning. "Today," he continued, "taxes are almost the largest single item in the cost of doing business and should be treated with equal importance to sales planning, production and financial planning.

ALMOST EVERY decision made by a businessman has an effect on his taxes and his profits. Therefore, he should plan now to maximize his tax savings by minimizing his tax bill due next April 15."

A $12 fee covers luncheon and materials. To register or for further information contact Prof. Pickel, Accounting Dept., Cal-State Long Beach, 90801.

Trailer Coach Assn. Exhibit Set in L.A.

Two new mobile homes will be shown by Villa West Division of Golden West Mobile Homes, Fullerton, at the Trailer Coach Association Annual Exhibition to be held in Dodger Stadium Oct. 29-Nov. 2.

One home, a 24-wide by 45-foot long model, will be priced out complete with awnings, skirting, steps and everything necessary for complete set-up in a mobile home park.

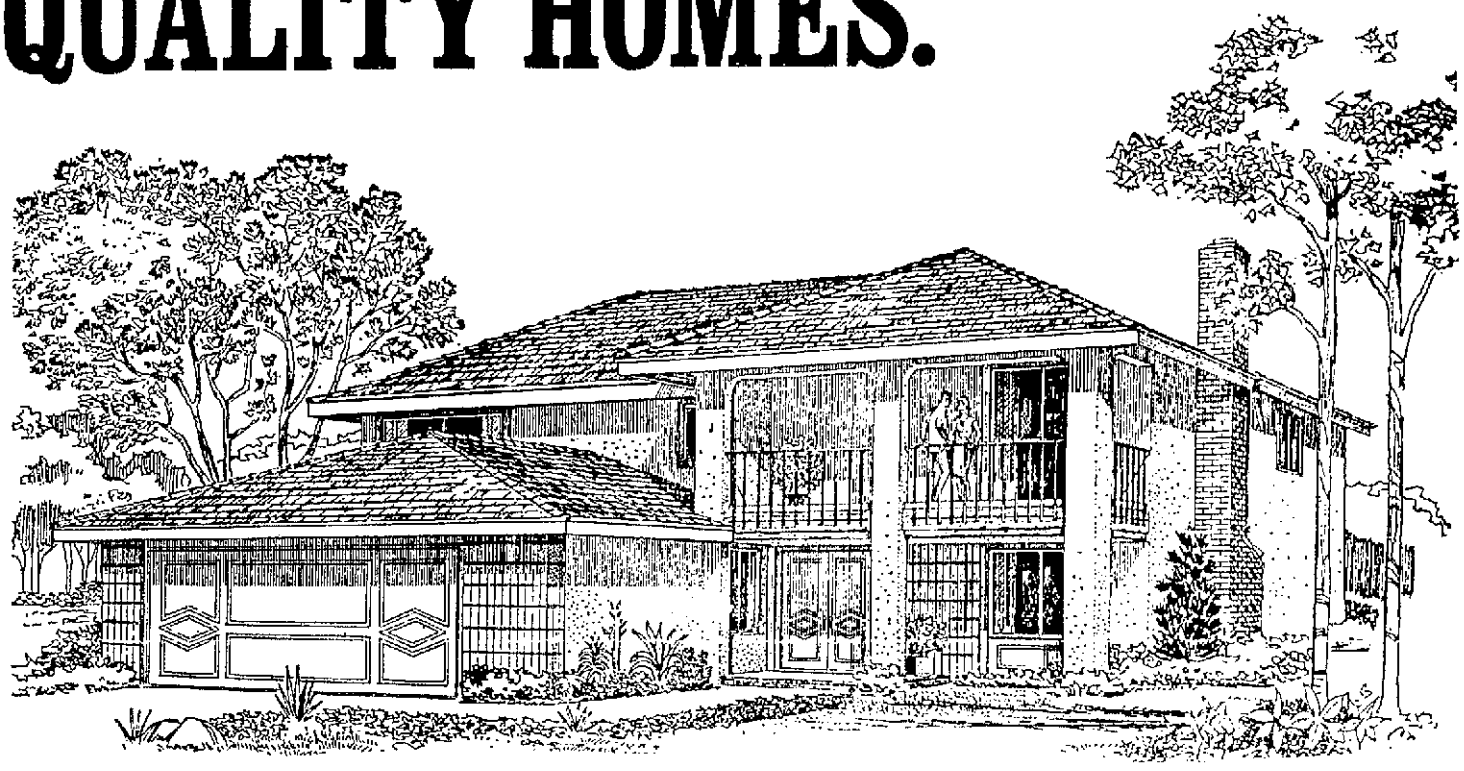

The price, including installation in a park in the Los Angeles area, will be set at $9995.00, or less than $10.00 a square foot for a completely furnished, deluxed home, the firm announced.

A 24-FOOT by 57-foot model will be used to demonstrate the flexibility of modern floor plans. Three rooms, living, family and front room, can be interchanged to suit the needs of a specific family.

Both Villa West homes will have new exterior styling, including new entrance ways.

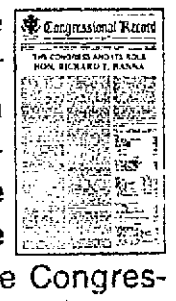

Emphasis by the factory will be on construction features, including Villa West's new Insulwall.

AT ANAHEIM DEVELOPMENT

Century 21 Offers Home Trade Program

GOOD SELECTION OF HOMES . . . At Anaheim's Century 21 Site

Rick Baker, sales director for Century 21 Homes has reported the new "guaranteed trade program" is in successful operation at the Anaheim homesite.

"Selling your home in today's market has been such a tremendous problem," Rick stated, "that we now have a plan that will not only guarantee your sale, but could even leave you with money left over.

"If you now have a home with a 6¼ per cent loan or less, or a VA-FHA loan, we will sell your home for you at "top market value.

"This value is determined by a professional independent appraiser. And you don't lose any equity," Baker added.

"Also, you pay no refinance or loan fees. All of the details are handled by our resale department," Baker said.

"IF THE home does not sell, we will buy it ourselves for cash," Baker advised.

Walker & Lee currently set a national sales record by selling more than 273 homes in a single week and additional homes are needed by the resale department, said district manager Dave Rams.

Anaheim's first zero-side-yard development, Century 21 is continuing the grand opening activities to celebrate the opening of the fifth unit.

THE 103-home community, developed by Bob Solomon, is located on Brookhurst Street, just south of Ball Road in Anaheim.

"This progressive zero side yard innovation places the entire home to one side of the lot, thus eliminating two tiny side yards and substituting one large usable side yard," Solomon said.

The new ideas which have been incorporated in the Century 21 homes reflect extensive planning. The easy maintenance, time saving and comfort features are an important part of each and every house plan.

Some of these conveniences include the Caloric ultra-clean self-cleaning built-in oven with range, patio serving kitchen with laminated plastic countertops for easier cleaning and durability, dishwasher, double terrace sink with waste disposal, and color coordinated vinyl asbestos floors.

AT CENTURY 21 each kitchen also features convenient pantries, and the shadow-free luminous ceiling which is so popular with today's homemaker, added Solomon.

"Since Century 21 is the first lot line development in the City of Anaheim, we hope that more homebuyers will come and look over the new models with us so we can show them the functional and aesthetic use of this type of fenced lot which affords maximum privacy and indoor-outdoor living with room for patios, pools, garden courtyards, recreational and entertainment areas," he added.

CENTURY 21 homes are priced from the medium range with VA, FHA and conventional financing available, concluded Solomon.

Walker & Lee, exclusive sales agents, added that the homesite is close to all modern conveniences and a 23-acre park is immediately adjacent to the homes.

Delivery of Water Urged

The Orange County Mucipal Water District, covering 568 square miles and 86.9 per cent of Orange County's imported water useage, has urged Governor Reagan and the legislature to approve the 1969 Bureau of Reclamation Feasibility Report on the Delta Peripheral Canal.

David A. Boyle, secretary of the board of directors of OCMWD, said the Orange County Municipal Water District unanimously adopted a resolution calling for quick approval of the overland water delivery route.

He said the overland water route would insure future water deliveries to Southern California, with beneficial water supply to Orange County.

THE resolution called on all levels of government in California to exert all possible efforts toward "achieving Federal authorization and funding" of the peripheral canal as an urgent step toward continued growth and prosperity of this area.

Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel has announced approval of the feasibility report, suporting construction of a river-size canal that will transport Northern California water 43 miles around the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta for distribution throughout much of the state.

Congressman Craig Hosmer (R-Long Beach) joined Hickel in support of the trans-delta waterway.

Hosmer said Southern California will get 2 million acre-feet of the water from the $209 million project.

DEDICATED UNITED CRUSADE residential team pushes toward success of door-to-door campaign which begins Monday throughout Greater Long Beach area. Teammates are Charles Allen (left), Lakewood; Henry Byus, Bellflower; Mrs. Ardith Melton, Paramount; Mrs. John C. Azevedo, Artesia; Mrs. Joseph Costa, Cerritos. Residential goal is $75,540.

Team keeps the ball rolling ...for United Crusade

By JOYCE CHRISTENSEN
Women's Editor

When your doorbell rings this week, it will take only a few moments to open your wallet or checkbook, and only a few more moments for a smiling volunteer to write the receipt for your generous donation to United Crusade.

Such efficiency doesn't just happen.

Teamwork on the part of the five residential area chairmen serving the greater Long Beach area and months of advance preparation have gone into "keeping the ball rolling for United Way and American Red Cross."

Deep concern for the welfare of the thousands of people dependent upon social welfare services provided by United Way's 38 agencies and the Red Cross, added to pride of community and desire to do a good job, have been motivating forces.

In Artesia, Mrs. John C. Azevedo is heading that city's second residential drive. A member of the Artesia-Cerritos United Way board of directors, she is aware of the need to expand services into those communities.

Mrs. Joseph Costa of Cerritos is that city's residential division chairman. Of particular significance to her, as a mother of four children, are the youth services and child welfare causes financed by funds raised in the United Crusade.

Henry Byus of Bellflower and Charles Allen of Lakewood, both bankers, have accepted their chairmanship responsibilities not only as a civic duty, but because they recognize that the combining of many appeals is a more efficient and less expensive way of financing voluntary organizations.

Paramount's Mrs. Ardith Melton, immediate past president of the Women's Club and secretary of the Paramount United Way board, is serving for the second time as that city's residential division leader. Her work with Girl Scouts and United Way budget committees has convinced her of the worth of agency activities.

Backing up the five in her position as coordinator of all residential solicitation in the area is Mrs. Norman D. Jaques of Long Beach who has enlisted four chairmen to divide the city's geographic areas: Mmes. Raymond Kealer, Mary McMullen, Robert Burt and Edwin Evans.

RESIDENTIAL goal of $75,540 is a vital part of the $1,684,997 overall goal of the 1969 United Crusade campaign.

Vital because United Crusade dollars are converted to service in so many worthwhile ways.

During 1968, 9,650 health services for children and adults were provided through hospitals, clinics, mental health agencies, speech and hearing centers, visiting nurse and home health care centers, agencies for unwed mothers.

In providing day nursery care, adoption agencies and foster home placement, 1,971 specialized child services were given.

Personnel of family welfare and counseling agencies shared the problems of the area's troubled in 32,282 counseling sessions.

More than 213,000 youngsters took advantage of youth services such as Scouting, Camp Fire, YMCA and YWCA.

American Red Cross offers outstanding assistance through classes in life saving, home health care, water safety, Blood Bank and disaster programs.

Keeping the ball rolling and agency doors open takes more than willing volunteers, however. It takes money.

Will you do your share?

MARY BARELLI GALLAGHER:

Sees Jackie as woman, not goddess

JACKIE ... subject of controversial book

She's the epitome of the perfect executive secretary — dignified, composed, alert and pleasantly impersonal.

But by now a few million people are aware that Mary Barelli Gallagher differs from other women in her profession. As personal secretary to Jacqueline Kennedy for seven years she ended up "telling all" (or almost all) in a just-published book, "My Life with Jacqueline Kennedy," David McKay Co.

Few of her sister secretaries would be guilty of such an indiscretion.

Why, then, is she?

"People didn't understand Jackie as a whole human being," she explained during an interview in her Beverly Hills Hotel room. "I felt the public should know Mrs. Kennedy as a woman, not a goddess."

Silver-haired Mrs. Gallagher had intended to hold off publishing the book until years hence, hoping it would be a historical contribution and a part of the J.F.K. Memorial Library.

Mrs. Kennedy's marriage to Onassis changed the plan. With the Jackie-Ari alliance, the final fall of Camelot occurred in Mrs. Gallagher's mind, and the resultant letdown prompted a swift completion of her memoirs.

She worked four years to compile the manuscript from diaries and memos kept during her years of service with the Kennedys, but after the October Onassis nuptials, speeded up the effort. With the aid of an editorial assistant, Frances Spatz Leighton, the book was finished earlier this year.

When excerpts from the book appeared in two installments in the Ladies' Home Journal this summer, the public was agog reading about Jackie's over-indulgence in clothes, jewels, home furnishings and her orders to have unfinished cocktails served again at parties.

The authoress explains that last command by saying, "Jackie has quite a sense of humor. During one of her economy drives, she facetiously gave that instruction to make a point."

It doesn't quite come off that way in the book. In fact, the book's over-all tone smacks of petty vindictiveness. Both reviewers and readers have bristled over the "keyhole report" and have soundly chastised the writer for her disloyalty.

She sits through it all, widening her large brown eyes in disbelief over all the misunderstanding, and watches the ratings go up. From obscurity, it jumped to fifth place on the New York Time's best seller list last week.

Talking with her, you almost become convinced everyone misinterprets the 336-page volume. She's not defensive, she remains poised and answers questions with rapid-fire dispatch.

But it's her absolute assurance and insistence that she has no bitterness toward Jackie

Former Dior model has designs on U.S. fashion market

By JUDY COOL

American girls are more receptive to high colors in their clothes and are prettier and healthier than their French sisters, according to Victoire, a Parisian fashion designer.

Touring the West Coast to introduce a collection of 64 pieces she has created for J. C. Penney Co., the vivacious, former Christian Dior model has as her entourage, four French models, four assistants and thirty three pieces of luggage.

Highlighted in the store's local outlets are ski outfits, holiday dresses and interchangeable sportswear.

It's our near-addiction to vivid colors that caused her to use lime, orange, sapphire and lemon to flavor her line. And, since she likes fluid fabrics that "come alive," many are worked in knits, slick vinyls and textured cotton.

"The most important thing is to use materials that don't pucker and detract from crisp, clean silhouettes," she explained through her interpreter, Paul Mathias, a former editor for Paris Match.

"Geometrics have been my fashion signature since I started designing eight years ago," Victoire explained. "They will continue to be as I develop a line of jewelry and accessories for Penney's. There's something so youthful and neat looking about them."

Actually, it's the young set this voguish Parisian is catering to. Her entire line is featured in Junior Petite departments at the stores.

SURROUNDED by models showing a few items from her collection is Victoire, (seated) Parisian fashion designer.

LOOKING very feminine for the holidays is Victoire's white velvet and peau de soie dress. At Penney's.

RESEMBLING a teen-ager herself with cinnamon colored corkscrew curls, the stylist, who admits to having seen 30, obviously understands the needs of today's kids.

"They want freedom in their clothes," she advised, "and they want versatility."

There's an abundance of both in her offerings. For instance, her knit separates can be interchanged. This group includes a red knit sailor shirt with laced front and hips. The shirt is long and extends below the hips exposing two inches of the shorts.

Another knit shirt has a white "vest" with blue sleeves, collar and hip tabs. It has blue shorts and either of these pieces can be teamed with the red ensemble.

Tunics predominate as preferred toppings for bell bottom pants.

Among the ski outfits there's a black knit with white "Mongolian lamb" accent; a stunning Valentine red, vertically striped quilted jacket that zips up to the chin; an all black jumpsuit of "lacquered" nylon. There's a plus feature in her ski pants, which have detached zippered bell bottoms for apre-ski wear.

All ski outfits, incidentally, are shown with protective but dramatic motorcycle helmets.

VICTOIRE'S penchant for white is underscored in her holiday collection. Typical of her feminine outlook for evening wear is a short, white velvet dress with over-sized peau de soie bows on the shoulders and a demure peau de soie ruffle peeking out from under the hem.

Hand-sewn white plastic flowers blossom all over a sleeveless, scoop-backed white pique mini dress. And elegant simplicity is emphasized in a floor length white crepe gown with long trumpet sleeves. Prices range from $12.95 to $85.

Asked what predictions she has in fashion design Victoire, (so-named by Dior, her given name is Jeannet said: "Mini skirts are here to stay but finally there will be general acceptance to maxi coats, especially in rainwear and winter versions."

Fortunately for her, she has both kinds in her line.

MARCH OF DIMES

Club leaders bid to seminar

All major organizations in the area have been invited to send representatives to Leadership Seminar sponsored by the Long Beach-Lakewood March of Dimes Wednesday.

The seminar will begin at noon at Long Beach Community Hospital and will feature Dr. Milton Borenstein and Everett O. Bakke as speakers.

A practicing pediatrician, Dr. Borenstein has served as advisor and leader in March of Dimes programs. He will speak on "Birth Defects and Me," emphasizing the breakthrough in prevention of birth defects.

Bakke, coordinator of the immunization program for Long Beach Health Department, will explain plans for Rubella immunization, which begins on a community-wide basis Monday. Rubella, commonly known as German measles, is a childhood disease, which if contacted by an expectant mother can lead to harmful after effects in the unborn child, such as cataracts, deafness, heart defects and mental retardation.

Reservations for the Seminar may be made with the March of Dimes office, 424-0414.

Women's Overseas Service League marks 50th year

Los Angeles unit of Women's Overseas Service League will celebrate its golden anniversary Saturday during a luncheon at the Biltmore Hotel.

Members who served in World War I will be honored guests, with Mrs. A. F. Soderland of Long Beach, area service director for the League, as one of the special guests.

Area residents who served in WW I attending the 50-year observance include Mrs. Agnes Hallam of Long Beach, past national president; Mrs. John Roberts of Seal Beach and Mrs. Beulah Brennan of Garden Grove.

In 1919, a group of Los Angeles women who had served with the armed forces overseas in World War I started meeting on a regular basis with service and fellowship as their goal. Similar groups soon emerged in other cities and in 1921 the scattered clubs sent delegates to Philadelphia, Pa., to organize the Women's Overseas Service League nationally.

Miss Rona tells it like it is in Hollywood

RONA BARRETT

By DIANNE SMITH

"An ugly pall hangs over Hollywood since the Sharon Tate murders. There are few parties anymore and few people go out."

The speaker is somebody who knows the movie world inside and out, revealing her news of the famous and infamous twice daily on local television. She's Rona Barrett, a petite, attractive blonde who's inherited the fame of such greats as Louella Parsons and Hedda Hopper.

Miss Rona, as she likes to be known, fielded questions from members of Los Angeles District, California Press Women, during a dinner meeting at the Greater Los Angeles Press Club.

She lives down the road from the exclusive home where actress Sharon Tate and four others were murdered in August. "I got the call about 9 a.m. that Saturday morning and got there before the mob of reporters," she said. "What I saw was ugly and brutal.

"The police asked me not to reveal a lot of what I saw and I kept my promise not to," she added.

As for sources of information for her show, she said she can't divulge names, but gets very few "bummers" and relies on past friendships and contacts developed through the years.

"Whenever I talk with someone, I remind them not to say anything to me they don't want repeated," explained the soft-spoken columnist, whose televised snoop reports are shown on 41 stations in every major city in the country.

However, she hastened to point out she does respect privacy and confidences. She said she has divorced herself from close personal friendships in order to remain objective.

ASKED WHERE she draws the line between information and invasion of privacy. Miss Barnett replied, "well, I know the difference. That's where my lawyers come in."

Her nightly Hollywood reports were seen on ABC until April when she quit to join Metromedia Television. "I had lawyers sitting on my back all day long," she said. "When I first started, they didn't know me or the accuracy of my news. Sometimes they would kick out my entire program at 4:30 and I'd have to start all over again."

When there were no repercussions from her "tattletales," the lawyers became less stringent, and eventually gave her tips on how to report news in "a safe context."

Has she ever been sued for libel? "Never," she said.

Miss Barrett called broadcasting, "the toughest racket I ever got in to. It's difficult to maintain your femininity in a male-dominated field."

She explained it took her seven and a half years to sell ABC on the idea of televising her news reports. "I was down to my last 47 cents when they agreed."

BORN AND EDUCATED in New York City, Miss Barrett attended New York University and studied both pre-med and pre-law before switching to creative communications. "My parents wanted me to be a doctor," she added.

Admitting to 32 years of age, she began writing at 13 when she got a job with the Milton Blackstone Agency. Later, she joined Asher & Brown, one of New York's top promotion and publicity firms.

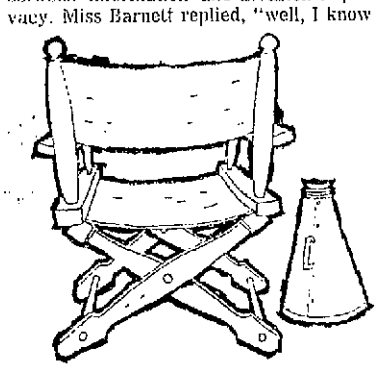

In 1958, she moved to California, where she began a magazine column on inside-Hollywood happenings. This eventually led to her own column in Motion Picture, a leading movie and TV fan magazine with an estimated 2.5 million readers every month. She also wrote a daily and Sunday syndicated column appearing in 125 newspapers.

Her latest writing endeavor involves her own magazine, "Rona Barrett's Hollywood," which will be out Oct. 8.

She said she doesn't like to consider her reports as gossip. "That's an old word. It's not gossip, it's fact," she insisted. "It's news about famous people and other people want to know about it. I'd like to think I tell the truth. I tell it like it is."

Asked about the drug problem in Hollywood, Miss Barrett said there's no more drug experimentation than in any other city.

"The real killer in Hollywood is liquor," she pointed out, sadly.

WEDDING BELLS RING

Formal attire worn by brides

Chamberlain-Swanner

Married Saturday in Los Altos United Methodist Church were Carol Jean Swanner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Swanner, 2226 Fanwood Ave., and James A. Chamberlain of Seal Beach, son of James T. Chamberlain and Mrs. Jeanine Reed, both of Long Beach.

The bride's gown was of organza over lace with empire bodice and sabrina neckline.

Margaret Hanson was the maid of honor, while other attendants included Mrs. Bernard D. Smith, Anita Chamberlain, sister of the bridegroom, and Vickie Payne.

Best man was Hersh Lemke, while ushers were Lars Hansen, Thomas Swanner and James Barsos.

Following a reception in the church lounge, the couple departed for Sequoia National Park and the San Francisco area. They will live in Seal Beach. The bride will be graduated in February from USC and the bridegroom served a tour of duty with the Armed Forces.

Murphy-Eley

More than 200 guests attended the wedding Saturday in Long Beach Community Presbyterian Church of Linda Jean Eley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Eley, 5118 Bixler Ave., Lakewood, and Robert Murphy, son of Roy Murphy of Sunnyvale and Mrs. James Morgan of San Clemente.

A traditional gown with cathedral train was selected by the bride whose matron of honor was Mrs. Robin Munstock. John Murphy, the bridegroom's brother, was best man.

Others in the bridal entourage were Derrill Adkins, Terri Eckels and Camille Eley, the bride's sister, bridesmaids; Robert Captain, Michael Murphy and Daniel O'Malley, ushers; Steven Wales, candlelighter; Tracy Wales, flower girl, and Mathew Leon, ringbearer.

A reception followed in the Golden Crown banquet room. The newlyweds will make their home in Bellflower.

The bride was graduated from Jordan High School and Long Beach City College. She is now attending California State College, Long Beach. The bridegroom attended California State College, San Diego, where he affiliated with Sigma Pi.

Kersey-Howard

The home of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Howard, 2841 Monogram Ave., was the setting Friday for the wedding of their daughter, Martha Sue, and Christopher Kersey. A champagne supper followed the ceremony.

Attired in white lace in Victorian style, the bride was attended by the bridegroom's twin, Mrs. Thomas Pohl. Thomas Pohl attended the bridegroom.

Capistrano Beach was the couple's honeymoon destination. The new Mrs. Kersey was graduated from Millikan High School. Son of Mrs. Nancy Kersey, 3202 Charlemagne Ave., and R. W. Kersey of Norwalk, the bridegroom was graduated from Millikan and attended Long Beach City College.

Poetry Day Festival on tap

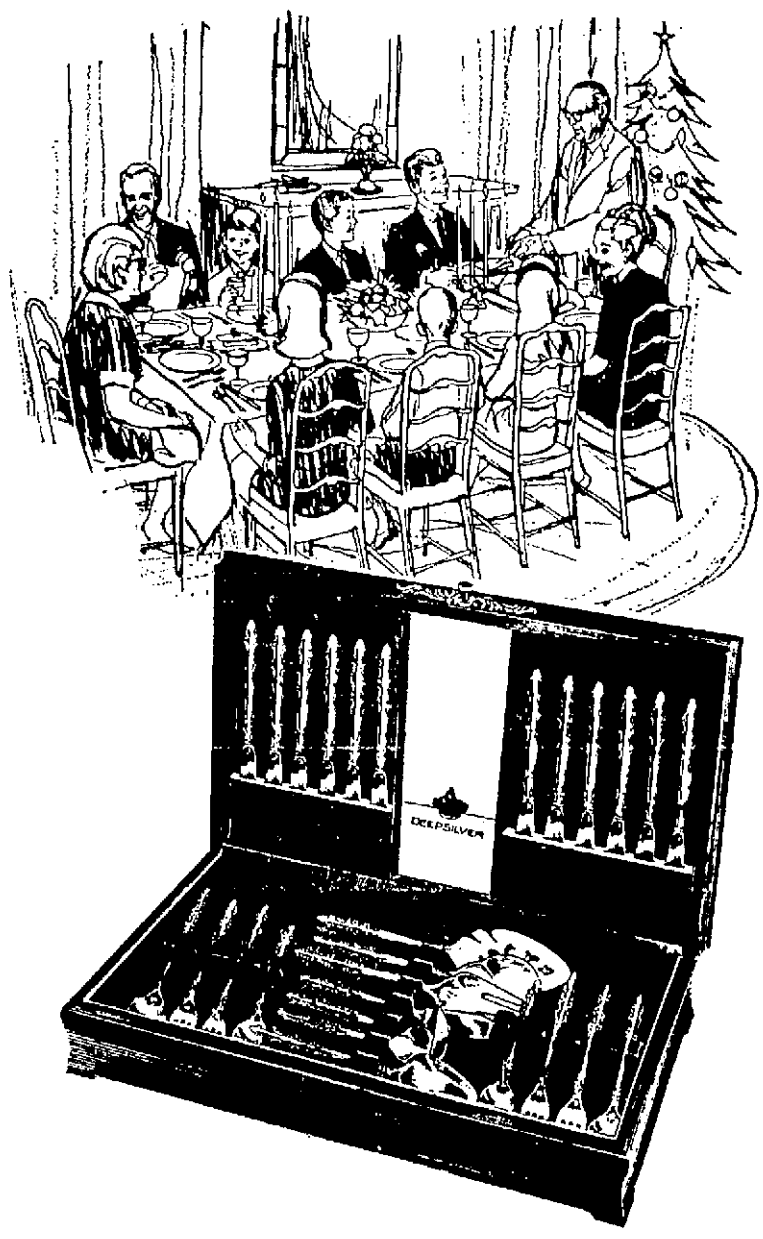

Charles B. Garrigus, poet laureate of California, will be speaker at the Poetry Day Festival next Sunday in Mayfair Hotel, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Lucile Palmer McMillan will be mistress of ceremonies for the 1 p.m. program and award presentation. A noon luncheon will launch the event. Entertainment will be provided by a live band and singers.

Reservations may be obtained by writing to Creative Arts Inc., 3014 W. 12th St., Los Angeles.

Official visit

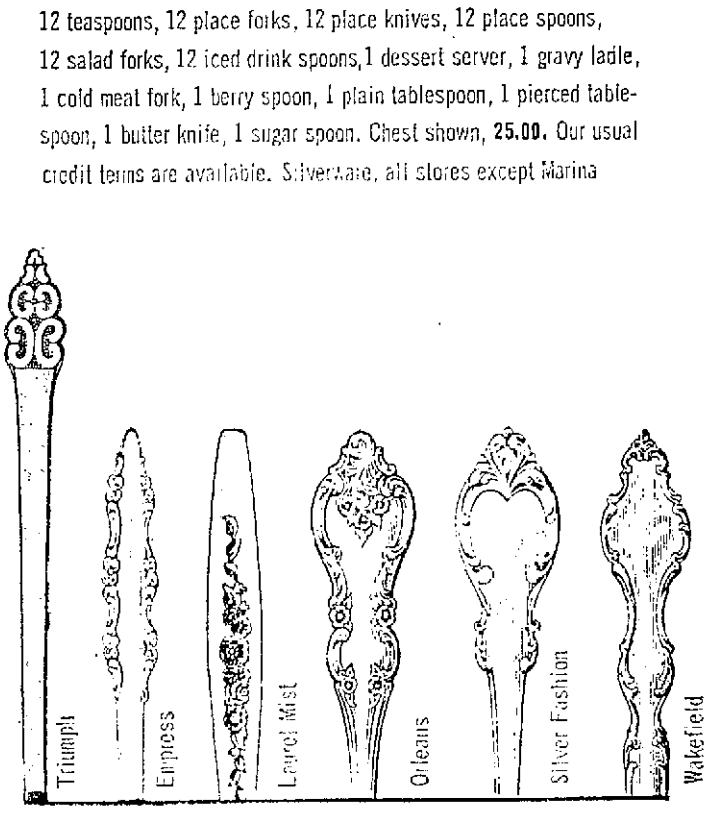

Emily R. Jewell Tent 15, Daughters of Union Veterans, will host Mrs. Addie Campbell, department president, Monday when she makes her official visit to the chapter. Luncheon will be served at 11 a.m. at Veterans' Memorial Building, Broadway at Cedar Avenue.

LADIES' DAY REGATTA

Distaff sailors to race in Bay

It will be ladies day at Alamitos Bay Yacht Club Wednesday when women from yacht harbors throughout Southern California converge for their own regatta.

Racing begins at 10:30 a.m. following a 10 a.m. skippers' meeting, with luncheon to close the activities.

Classes of Naples Sabots, Win'ard Sabots and Lido 14's are eligible to compete with a minimum of three entries required for any other class.

Mrs. James Nieukirk and Mrs. Robert Chubb are co-chairmen of the regatta, assisted by Mmes. Charles Humphrey, Jack Caswell, John Scannell, Dale Kerkihiser, Fred Jacobson and William Smith.

Presenting trophies to winners during the luncheon will be Mrs. Neal Dundas, wife of Alamitos Bay Yacht Club commodore.

Newlyweds to establish homes in Orange County

Monlon-Lapshansky

Rings were exchanged Saturday in St. Hedwig's Catholic Church, Los Alamitos, by Sandra S. Lapshansky of Huntington Beach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Lapshansky of Escondido, and Barry D. Monlon, son of Mr. and Mrs. David E. Monlon of Huntington Beach.

The bride selected a gown of white organza over taffeta with peau d'ange lace trim.

Matron of honor was Mrs. James Haden, and attendants included Mrs. Lowell Newsome, Mrs. Julius Kanasi, Elizabeth Guccione and Susan Strobridge. Lori Monlon, the bridegroom's sister, was flower girl.

Stephen Phillips was best man. The 200 guests were escorted by Peter Radich, Julius Kanasi, James Haden and Carl Salle. Ring bearer was David Tomaso.

After a reception in the Huntington Harbour Club, the couple departed for Mission Bay, San Diego. They will live in Huntington Beach.

Kahn-Waller

A first home in Buena Park awaits newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Alan Kahn (Kathryn Susan Waller), who exchanged wedding vows in a Friday night ceremony at Los Alamitos Bethlehem Lutheran Church.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Waller, 11702 Wembley Ave., was married to the son Edwin C. Kahn of Long Beach and Mrs. Helene Kahn, 12852 Foster St. She was attired in an all lace ruffled gown of scalloped French chantilace, sweeping into a chapel train and featuring beaded sabrina neckline.

Anna Gatti was maid of honor, with Colleen Wiley and Carol Rippee as bridesmaids and Terri Kahn, sister of the bridegroom, as flower girl.

Best man was Steven Esky and the 125 guests were seated by Michael Kahn, brother of the bridegroom, and Robert Waller, brother of the bride. Another brother, David Waller, was ring bearer.

Following a reception in the church hall, the couple left on a honeymoon trip to San Diego.

The newlyweds claim Western High School as an alma mater and both attended Cypress College.

MRS. BARRY D. MONLON

Strader-Reille

After a honeymoon trip in Palm Springs, Mr. and Mrs. Michael H. Strader (Alta A. Reille) will establish their first home in Anaheim.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reille, Los Alamitos, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Strader, 4523 Palo Verde, Lakewood, said vows Saturday in First Nazarene Church before 200 guests.

The bridal gown, fashioned along Victorian lines, was of ivory silk faille with venise lace daisy applique on both gown and train.

In citron faille were the attendants, Andrea Reille, the bride's sister, maid of honor, and Mrs. James Hughes, Stephanie Gibson and Cynthia White.

MRS. J. A. KAHN

Jackie: ex-secretary tells all

MRS. GALLAGHER IS SWORN IN
. . . in January, 1953, she became secretary to then—U. S. Sen. John F. Kennedy.

(despite salary delays that imply Mrs. Kennedy expected a lot for very little) that lead you to believe critics have been mistaken.

Possibly the real problem lies in the fact that Mrs. Gallagher is neither a journalist nor a professional writer. Her often-naive narrative bears this out. And one wonders how much lee-way she really gave her editor, an accredited authoress in her own right, because of the repetition and fragmentations of certain accounts.

AT ANY RATE, she discloses little or nothing new about her subject during interviews. When pressed, she will add enlightenment to specific incidents.

For example, why did Mrs. Kennedy so casually give her secretary an official momento, a solid gold medallion presented in 1962 to the President from the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League, instead of saving it for the Memorial Library?

"I don't know that she really took the time to look at it," Mrs. Gallagher explained. "We were busy clearing up so many things before her move to New York, it was total confusion. I'm sure she just wanted me to have something of the President's."

At this point the reed-slim mother of two boys (Christopher, 13, and Gregory, 12) stressed that she was neither hurt nor angry when not asked by the former First Lady to go to New York with her.

"Mrs. Kennedy knew I was settled in Alexandria, Va., with my family and would have no interest in moving," she advised.

Mrs. Gallagher, with her insurance executive husband, still lives there and presently is part-time secretary for Democratic Congressman James Kee of West Virginia.

Nor is "sweet Mary," as Jackie frequently called her (they were on a first-name basis from the beginning) upset about her almost anonymous position as "upstairs secretary."

In fact, she seems quite proud that biographer William Manchester commented upon meeting her, "I must say you are the most well-kept secret of the whole Administration."

Has she had any comment or communication from Mrs. Onassis since the Gallagher revelations were printed?

"No," the smartly-dressed chronicler responded. "I've had both pro and con comments through various mutual acquaintnances, but no direct word. I'm sure that with her deep sense of history, however, Jackie would approve of me setting the record straight."

A CVO SERVICE

Calendar of events avoids duplication

Planning an event in 1970?

To avoid conflict with other groups also arranging next year's major programs, the Community Volunteer Office provides a calendar listing for reference.

The calendar's aim is not to change dates of events, according to Mrs. Winston Tucker, executive director, but to cooperate with all groups to avoid scheduling two major functions on the same night.

To keep it up-to-date, CVO needs every group's participation, she added.

The calendar, started in 1961 with nine organizations as sponsors, serves each group in two ways:

1 — Before deciding on a date for a public event, the group can call CVO for information about other events scheduled for that date.

2 — If another organization schedules on the same date, the first group is contacted with pertinent information about the new event.

Among sponsoring organizations of the calendar are Assistance League, Children's Benefit League, Harbor District Dental Auxiliary, Junior League, Lawyers' Wives, Long Beach Auxiliary of Southern California Symphony Hollywood Bowl Association, Symphony Guild and Soundlarks.

CLUB CALENDAR

Dental dance tops activities

DENTAL ASSISTANTS

"The Roaring Sixties" will come alive with music and socializing when Harbor Dental Assistants Society sponsors its annual dinner-dance at 8 p.m. Saturday in Petroleum Club, 3636 Linden Ave.

Dancing will be to the music of the Long Beach City College Adult Stage Band under the direction of Earl Thomas.

Mrs. Leon Copelin is chairman, with Jo Gydosic taking reservations.

ROSSMOOR WOMEN

Concert pianist George Goulding will be featured on the program at the Wednesday meeting of Rossmoor Womans' Club at 11 a.m. in Petroleum Club. Mrs. Robert Metcalfe will preside.

Special guest will be Mrs. Dale Mowery, first vice president of Orange District, California Federation of Women's Clubs, in observance of Federation Month.

MU PHI EPSILON

A preview of fall activities will highlight the first meeting of Long Beach Chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon, national professional music sorority.

An informal buffet dinner will open the program at 7 p.m. at 8342 Arnett Drive, Huntington Beach.

Phyllis Smith will preside.

RETIRED OFFICERS

"Recent Happenings on the Moon and Why the Moon Is Like It Is" will be the topic for George P. Zobal, principal scientist for space and re-entry division of Philco Ford Corp., at the Saturday meeting of the Retired Officers' Association, Orange County Chapter.

A cocktail hour at 5:30 p.m. will precede dinner at 6:30 p.m. at the Officers' Club, El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

MOTHERS CLUB

Mothers Club of Kappa Sigma Fraternity at California State College, Long Beach, will host a welcome tea and fashion show for new mothers next Sunday at 2 p.m. at the chapter house, 730 Atlantic Ave.

YOU'LL BE the hostess with the mostest when you greet guests in full-length skirt with festive mixture of fringe. It's matched by earrings made from the same ball tassel fringe that adorns the skirt.

Fringe fashions for colorful entertainers

Too much of a good thing?

Never! Especially if it's done tastefully.

Full-length hostess' skirt (above) is made of muslin, spiraled with six of Conso's coordinated trimmings. The festive mixture of fringe on the skirt is matched by earrings made from a ball tassel fringe.

And to be sure that your guests notice how clever you are, you can decorate your placemats to match your attire.

There's no end to the many ways you can use this idea—and it's as attractive whether you're wearing a mini-skirt or a maxi!

With the liberated women very much in vogue, you can also choose your own look and design your own fashions such as the pants ensemble at left.

With Conso's Cubist braid deftly tied around the waist and repeated on the cuffs, a store-bought item can turn into an outfit "made expressly for you."

SIGMA KAPPA EVENT

Bazaar to benefit sorority projects

A Mod-Mood Boutique will unfold at the Sigma Kappa Chapter House, 3400 E. First St., Saturday when Long Beach alumnae sponsor their pre-Christmas bazaar.

Sale hours will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., with proceeds benefiting the Sigma Kappa Maine Sea Coast Mission, the American Farm School in Salonica, Greece, a scholarship for a Greek girl attending the school and the Hathaway House for emotionally handicapped children in Los Angeles.

Phillips newlyweds plan trip to England

Attired in white brocade, Julia Ann Stanbridge, of Long Beach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Stanbridge of Keynsham, Somerset, Eng., spoke wedding vows Saturday with James Elmo Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Phillips, 1040 Cedar Ave. The ceremony took place in Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Attending the couple were Mrs. Russell Allen, matron of honor, and Wayne Hackney, best man. The reception followed in the church hall.

MRS. JAMES E. PHILLIPS

After a trip to England, the newlyweds will live in Long Beach. The bride received her education in England and the bridegroom was graduated from Artesia High School. Both are members of the Queen Mary Club.

LOVELIER YOU

Shaping up legs for short skirts

By MARY SUE MILLER

The rumor about dropping hemlines is mostly rumor. Unless you plan to wear the maxi length to the exclusion of all others, you'd better give up hoping and get to work on any necessary legline improvements.

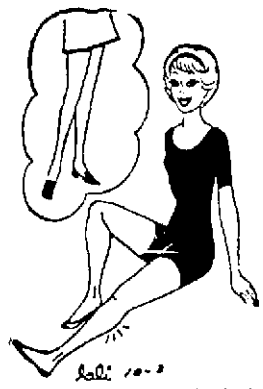

Here are some quickies for the calf:

1. Repeatedly come up onto your tiptoes and then lower heels to the floor. Work for a slow, smooth rhythm and a maximum upward stretch . . . for one minute.

2. Sit on the floor and draw your knees up until the soles of your feet lie flat. Leading with the heel of your right foot quickly slide your right leg downward so that the calf jounces along the floor. Pull the leg back to starting position and repeat with the left leg. Alternating sides, perform for one minute. Be brisk.

3. Sitting with your legs straight and as far apart as possible, very slowly drag them along the floor until they touch. Then reverse directions until the legs are again apart. You do it right when the floor "massages" the calves. Two minutes is not too much.

Simply for the tune-up value, place one foot on the side of the bath tub and slather body lotion on the entire length of the leg. Now, firmly cupping your palms around your ankles, slowly draw the hands along the sides of your legs, the tops and undersides. Give the other leg same treatment. And let the hemlines fall where they may!

LEGLINE TRIMMERS

If your individual problem is heavy legs, send for my new leaflet, LEGLINE TRIMMERS, which contains spot reducing exercises that will meet your individual needs, whether for thighs, knees, calves or ankles, or for contouring your entire legline. Write Mary Sue Miller in care of Independent, Press - Telegram, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and ten cents in coin.

Roy Trimmers note diamond anniversary

A dinner party at Lombardo's Restaurant was the occasion chosen to honor Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Trimmer of Long Beach on their diamond anniversary.

Hosting the family gathering were their six sons and daughters - in - law, Messrs. and Mmes. Earl Trimmer, James Trimmer and John Trimmer, all of Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Trimmer of Wilmington; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Trimmer Jr. of Torrance, and Mr. and Mrs. William Trimmer of Palm Springs.

The honored couple repeated wedding vows 60 years ago in Mt. Pleasant, Pa. on Sept. 29, 1909. They moved to Long Beach in 1929.

There are 12 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Museum 'ingathering'

Local collectors loan art works

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"Members Collect" is the title of 40 paintings, drawings, graphics and sculptures selected from 23 of the impressive number of personal art collections in the Long Beach community. Continuing at the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 East Ocean Blvd., through Nov. 2, the show should attract a wide audience.

Amongst such variety it is hard to name a star, but the Frank Persons' Hundertwasser is probably it, for the German artist has received international acclaim (not without controversy) in the last year. "La Banca" is a silk screen with embossing done decoratively in high colors.

Interestingly, the work is documented like an ancient Chinese scroll (whose seals of ownership trace its history). A column in the left border bears color swatches which are noted in the lower right along with "chops" of individuals like the artist, the workshop, and the dealer. Traditionally, that of the present owners should be added.

THERE ARE NO splashy works which speak of limitless funds, fads and fashions. Instead, the choices are thoughtful and personal.

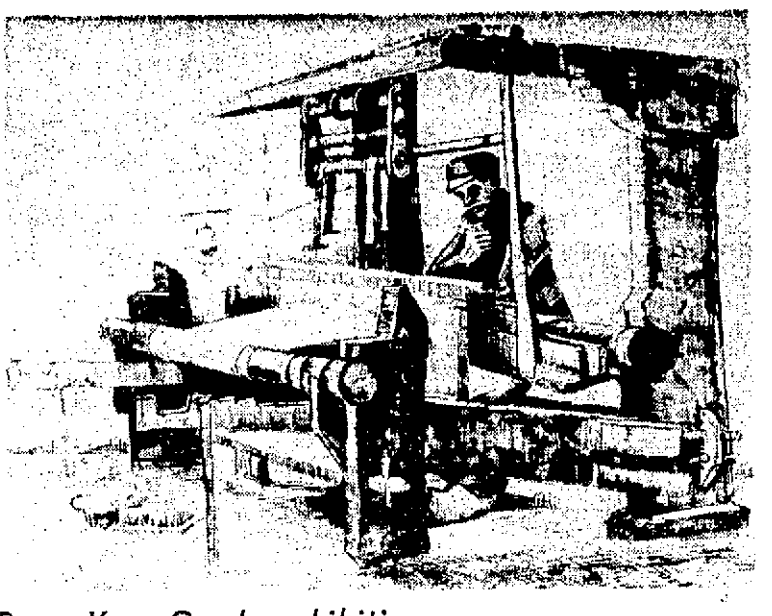

There are a number of drawings or graphics by world-renowned artists like the Sumner Trents' Beckman and Kuniyoshi, the Les Stills' Roualt, and the Maury Rosenbaums' Canova.

On the other hand, collectors like the James Kresls, Jackson MacGowens, Joseph Byrnes and Gar Simows have selected works from the rich store of West Coast offerings, some of which may or may not become famous and valuable, but each of which is very fine in itself.

DALLAS CONKLIN, the Grant Beckstrands and the Robert Bulfums did their own buying while abroad, a move which gives travel a meaningful and lasting purpose. The Conklin Vala has the metaphysical depths produced by the "new wave" in Spain.

The Beckstrands' ancient Buddha torso and Bombara iron staff bring the music of exotic cultures to the local scene. The Bulfums Assetto, with its dimensional impasto, is like a sky view of a turbulent landscape.

As stated by curator Wahneta Robinson, who selected the show, this vignette of collections should encourage neophytes. Each of the works does its "own thing," reflecting the study, interest and tastes of highly individual people. The results are genuine and impressive.

Rare Van Gogh exhibition

Loaned by Gemeemte Musea von Amsterdam, "The Weaver at His Loom", a pen drawing by the tormented Dutch painter Vincent van Gogh, is one of 114 works to be shown in comprehensive exhibition opening Oct. 15 in Los Angeles County Museum of Art. Dr. Vincent W. van Gogh, nephew of the artist, will attend the opening. The exhibition continues through Nov. 30.

Symphony at Seven

Dr. Popper previews concert

"You will come from this concert enriched. It's one for your husband and your family too." The recommendation was voiced by Dr. Jan Popper, UCLA's professor of music and director of opera, when he previewed tonight's concert at 7 o'clock by the Long Beach Symphony in Concert Hall of Municipal Auditorium.

Alternating from piano bench to his feet in his customary, bouncy, informative and enthusiastic manner, Popper captivated the Long Beach Symphony Guild in Virginia Country Club on Tuesday with what-to-listen-for, what-to-look-for highlights.

DR. JAN POPPER

A chemist as well as a flutist, Alexander Borodin had to compose in off-hours from science lecturing in Moscow, Popper said. He was a member of the "Mighty Five" — Moussorgsky, Rimsky-Korsakov, Balakirev and Cesar Cui — who tore themselves away from Germanic musical culture to express the emotions of their own country.

AMATEUR musicians and true comrades even before Communism, they believed in working with one another and on one another's works. Borodin's "Prince Igor" was completed by the others after his death.

Tonight's program, conducted by Alberto Bolet, includes Borodin's Polovetsian Dances from "Prince Igor" with choral passages by the Long Beach City Choir and the Long Beach City College Symphonic Choir.

"Borodin was untutored, but he tried to express emotion in Russian folk music," Popper said. "Listen for the lovely aria between the dances, and the passage before the chorus of the Polovetsian maidens. The dances are clear cut and rhythmic, and the orchestration brilliant."

OF GABRIEL Faure's "Requiem," Dr. Popper said, "The joys of an afterlife are expressed here. Faure was opposed to overdone works — Berlioz's for instance. Faure's idea was 'Don't yell at God; just converse with Him.'

"This is still a favorite of choral singers and all who believe in choral music that is meaningful. You will find simplicity, clarity; the solo passages are not handled in an operatic fashion, but with clarity."

The 200-member chorus and soloists Marlene Silvers, soprano, and Paul Johnson, baritone, will be featured in the "Requiem." Miss Silvers and Johnson will also be soloists in operatic excerpts following intermission.

The program will open with Debussy's "Petite Suite."

Bolet to conduct music seminars

First of six seminars on music appreciation sponsored by the Long Beach Symphony Guild begins Monday at 9:30 a.m. in the community room of Fidelity Federal Savings and Loan Assn., 525 E. Ocean Blvd.

Alberto Bolet, symphony conductor, will present each two hour seminar. They continue Oct. 13, 20, 27, Nov. 3 and 10.

Purpose behind the seminars is to make symphony concerts more enjoyable. As Bolet says, "We like music; we enjoy music. More than that, we think music is a necessary thing in our lives. But really, how much do we know of the inner mechanism of music. Have we realized how much more we would enjoy it if we had some knowledge about the mystery of this wonderful language?"

Bolet has a colorful background of directing orchestras throughout Europe, the United States, Australia, Mexico and his native Cuba.

Luncheon following the seminars is optional. Registration is $10, with checks payable to the Long Beach Symphony Guild, 121 Linden Ave.

Art shows abundant in city, nearby areas

Arts

Children's art classes begin Oct. 18 in Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. for youngsters in grades one through nine. Preschool classes begin Oct. 21.

Sponsored by Friends of the Museum, the 12-session workshops under direction of Mrs. Doris Ballou provide opportunity for a child to develop his own imagination, ideas and skills. Exploration of various media and techniques include papier mache masks, decorations and Yule gifts.

Registration began Saturday, but late registration will be accepted until the classes are filled.

TYPOGRAPHIC work of Keith Murgatroyd, British graphic designer and typographer, may be seen through Oct. 16 in Gallery A, California State College at Long Beach.

FIRST annual harbor juried art exhibition opens Wednesday in San Pedro Municipal Art Gallery, San Pedro Municipal Building, 638 Beacon St. The venture, recognizing artists living in the southern portion of metropolitan Los Angeles, is sponsored by the Los Angeles Municipal Arts Department in collaboration with the San Pedro Municipal Art Gallery advisory committee.

Hours are noon to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Sunday. The exhibition continues through Oct. 26.

ART AND MUSIC harmonize at tonight's concert of the Long Beach Symphony in Municipal Auditorium. Showing their works in the Arena foyer will be Anita Wolff and Bob Peck who will be present during the evening. Winner of numerous awards, Miss Wolff works primarily in water color and oil. She studied at Otis Art Institute. Peck, graphic artist for Northrop-Nortonics, attended Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, is a national award winner and is represented at Challis Galleries, Laguna Beach.

MOUNTAIN LANDSCAPIST William Alexander will be guest Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. of the Bellflower Art Assn. in Simms Park social hall, 16614 S. Clark St. A Long Beach winter resident, Alexander will open an art center in Long Beach this month. Summers find him in his native Langley, British Columbia, where he has a studio and has weekly art shows featuring visiting artists.

HAND PAINTED china, glass, and antiques may be seen today from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at California China Painters Art Assn. show in Bateman Hall, Lynwood Civic Center, Bullis St. and Century Blvd. Exhibitors from this area include Sonie Ames, Sue Ilgen, Willie Grommon, Vee Escobar, Esther Mannan, Edythe Lentz, Carmel Aaman, Eileen Maas, Phyllis Peterson, Clara Williamson, Pat Epperson, Laura Nord and Hilda Roteman.

ART FOR FUN(D)S Sake, 7th annual Palos Verdes Community Arts Festival, takes place next Sunday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on the grounds of the Northrop Research Park, Hawthorne Blvd. and Crest Rd. Long Beach area artists participating are Frank Nackos, sculptor; Faith Porter, stoneware; John Nyquist, furniture and Joan Binkoff, printmaking.

Children will participate in creative workshops, and teenage artisans will demonstrate and sell their crafts. Art auctions featuring works of 200 Southern California painters will take place each afternoon. Mexican and Greek delicacies head the list of a wide selection of food and beverages.

SPANNING a wide range of modern ideas, "New Art of Vancouver," a major survey of seven young Canadian painters, sculptors and object makers, opens Wednesday and continues through Nov. 8 at Newport Harbor Art Museum, Balboa Pavilion, 400 Main St., Balboa. Extending beyond the showing's walls, the show encompasses 30 acres of land adjacent to Fashion Island for Iain Baxter's N.E. Thing Co. Ltd. designed "to make individuals more aware of their surroundings."

Quixote encore

"Man of La Mancha", starring Bob Wright, will play in Pasadena Civic Auditorium Tuesday through Sunday. Matinees are Thursday and Saturday; Sunday's performance begins at 7:30 p.m.

Show crafts in San Diego

Four craftsmen from the Long Beach area have been accepted to exhibit in a major crafts show at San Diego Fine Arts Gallery in Balboa Park now through Nov. 16. They are John Snidecor, Long Beach, furniture; Lynda Watson, Long Beach, jewelry; Sheila Hollingshead, San Pedro, jewelry, and Helen Richards, Garden Grove, fabrics. All works are available for purchase.

The Performers go professional, will open Ebell

By JEAN SANDERS

Professional, poised, exuding quiet self-confidence resulting from years of experience, The Performers will open the season Monday at Ebell of Long Beach.

Behind the collective name are four individuals, talented to their eye teeth, none of whom are strangers to Long Beach. They are Bette Arntzen, soprano; James Boyd, baritone; Larry Laraway, lyric tenor, and Jack Ritschel, baritone, all remembered for performances with Long Beach Civic Light Opera.

Enjoying singing with one another, the four decided to work up programs featuring mostly music from Broadway shows and go on the road, more or less.

"We won't do night clubs," all agree. "We prefer daytime club and convention appearances."

THE QUARTET rehearses in the Ritschel home, since that is where the mountain of music scores is, not to mention the powerful force behind them, Jack's wife, Jan, the group's accompanist and arranger. Tapes made at the Ritschels' are rehearsed in The Performers' separate homes, then the four polish the program again at subsequent rehearsals.

There's no particular show they prefer above others; they like them all and run the gamut from "The Desert Song" to "110 in the Shade."

One thing no program chairman need worry about is microphones for The Peformers. As Jim Boyd puts it, "We have a different sound. We can play the Coliseum and they'd hear us."

BEFORE THE four sweep onstage Monday after introduction by Mrs. Clarice Mhoon Lewis, program chairman, the board of directors will be presented at 1:30 p.m. by Mrs. Iona Petteys Sedgwick, president.

After the program, members and guests will be greeted by Ebell officers and the Junior Ebell board of directors with their president, Mrs. William Scott.

Mrs. J. Roscoe Howell, hospitality chairman, and her committee will supervise tea in the patio and dining room. Past Ebell presidents will pour.

Concerts attract youth

Tickets sales close next Sunday for Symphony for Youth concerts given by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in Dorothy Chandler Pavilion, Los Angeles Music Center.

First of three Saturday morning concerts is Nov. 15. Arrangements in the Long Beach area are made by the Long Beach Auxiliary of the Southern California Symphony Hollywood Bowl Assn.

Children from eight to 16 are bused to the Music Center with chaperones and a knowledgeable raconteur.

Ticket information may be obtained from Mrs. Richard Morenus, 4120 Massachusetts St., Long Beach 90808.

AT WIT'S END

Passed-overs worse than left-overs

By ERMA BOMBECK

The other night I turned out an entire dinner that was destined to become a passed-over. A passed-over is a dish so bad it can't even make left-over.

Actually, I contend there is nothing wrong with my cooking that an 8-to-5 husband couldn't cure. Women with 8-to-5 husbands got it made.

One woman I know has a husband as punctual as Ben Grauer on New Year's Eve. At precisely 5:30 p.m., his car is garaged. He comes in, pecks the dog on the cheek, scratches his wife under her ears (well, no one is perfect) washes his hands and sits down to dinner at precisely 5:42 p.m. Her meat is tender, her potatoes fluffy, her salad crisp and her rolls steaming.

My husband is an 8 to only-the-Good-Lord-knows. Whenever we hear his car in the driveway, we give the vegetables mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, wake up the potatoes and label the meat. You can imagine the ugly mood that prevails when we sit down to eat. Personally, I would rather dine as a hostage with a dozen inmates at Folsom Prison.

"This meat is hard," complains one. "The dentist said hard meat is not good for my braces."

"If you can sit around eating popcorn grain, you can eat this meat." I snarl.

"The peas are like jaw breakers. Do I have to eat them?"

"Yes."

"If I eat them do I get dessert?"

"Yes."

"Then I'm not going to eat them. The dessert looks icky."

"Suit yourself."

"IS EVERYTONE finished " says the teenager collecting plates. "I've got homework and I want to get dishes over with."

"Will you put my plate down? I have barely started."

"Eating is dumb anyway," she sighs.

"Hey Mom," shouts another, "I just tried to give my meat to the dog — and he bit me."

That did it. "Beginning tomorrow," I announced, "dinner will be served promptly at 6 p.m. No later. Those present may eat. Those not present can take their chances. That's the ultimatum!"

By ten minutes before six the next evening, everyone was in place around the table with forks poised.

And what a meal I had — frozen rump roast, frosted vegetables, raw potatoes and chilled rolls. "Anybody for a glass of gelatin?" I sobbed miserably.

La Mirada Ebell sets talk by Dr. Ginott

"A slap is not necessarily damaging to a child. When instant action is needed, grabbing, pulling and slapping are not hostile acts. On the contrary, such earthy impulses convey concern and protection, the child's tears and screams not withstanding."

This is the opinion of Dr. Haim Ginott, one of the nation's foremost authorities on child rearing and author of two best-sellers, "Between Parent and Child" and "Between Parent and Teen-Ager." The latter has been serialized in the Independent, Press-Telegram.

He will be first speaker in the Community Encounter Series sponsored by La Mirada Ebell of California Federation of Women's Clubs at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday at Biola College Auditorium, 13800 Biola Ave.

Tickets will be available at the door or by contacting Mrs. Kenneth Shields, 14547 Fairvilla, La Mirada.

DR. HAIM GINOTT

Hollywood entertainers to perform

Cor-Vic Hollywood Entertainers will bring a group of performers, 6 to 18-years-of age, to present a one-hour program Monday in Long Beach Auditorium, beginning at 8 p.m.

Featured will be songs, dances, pantomime and musical selections, focusing on Broadway Revisited with the tumbling acrobatic Meyer family.

Mike Beeney will lead community singing to start the evening at 7:40 with Regenia Beam as accompanist.

The Tyo Orchestra will play for old-time dancing following the stage show with Joe Marshall as caller.

Long Beach Recreation Department is sponsor of the admission-free event.

Bazaar bargains bared

It's bazaar time . . . time to hunt bargains for the holidays.

Long Beach Chapter of American Gold Star Mothers will hold its bazaar Wednesday in the blue room on the lower level of Veterans' Memorial Building, Cedar Avenue at Broadway Wednesday.

Featured will be homemade breads, pastry and candies, needlework, crafts, plants, felt flowers and a Gypsy fortune fun booth.

Mrs. Theresa Martinez is in charge of arrangements.

Proceeds will benefit various charities and help with the group's work at veterans hospitals.

Good Sports

A dessert luncheon and card party is planned Monday noon in the Garden Room, 909 E. Third St., sponsored by the Good Sports Club.

Karpin on bridge

by Fred L. Karpin

One of the world's greatest race horses was Native Dancer who, when retired, had won 21 of 22 races. Rumor has it Native Dancer once played in a bridge tournament. On the very first deal, he reached a grand slam in spades. He went down one trick.

"You should have taken the heart finesse," his partner pointed out. "With the favorable location of the heart king, you couldn't miss making the slam."

"That's ridiculous!" retorted Native Dancer. "Who ever heard of a horse taking a finesse?"

In a certain sense, the expert's approach to the play of a hand bears a similarity to Native Dancer's approach: whenever possible, the expert tries to avoid a finesse. The deal today illustrates how a finesse can be avoided.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

After winning the heart ace, South drew two rounds of trumps. He cashed his three top diamonds, hoping the six adversely held diamonds were divided 3-3. Had they been so divided, dummy's fourth diamond would have become a winner.

When the diamonds failed to break favorably, South led a club and finessed the board's 10. East won with the jack and returned a heart, South ruffing. The finesse of the club queen was tried next, and East's king took the setting trick.

After winning the opening heart lead, declarer should have ruffed dummy's remaining heart. Trumps would be drawn, after which the top diamonds would be cashed. Now the finesse of the club 10 would be taken, losing to East's jack.

WHATEVER East returned, declarer's slam would be guaranteed: a heart return would be ruffed in dummy as declarer discarded a club from his own hand. A club return would give declarer two club tricks.

Why take two finesses when only one is necessary?

Gondwanaland included on Princess Italia cruise

LOS ANGELES — Gondwanaland may well become a new "in" place for travelers. The area is included in Princess Cruises' first voyage to the South Pacific, scheduled to leave Los Angeles Oct. 30 on the 420-passenger Princess Italia.

For those who forget their geology or geography, Gondwanaland is the name of a large land mass that sank into the Pacific Ocean some eons ago leaving just two islands — now known as New Zealand.

In addition to Auckland in New Zealand, the 42-day cruise will include such exotic and storied destinations as Sydney in Australia; Noumea in New Caledonia; Tonga; Suva in the Fiji Islands; Pago Pago in American Samoa; Tahiti and Bora Bora in French Polynesia; and Honolulu in Hawaii.

Prices for the cruise aboard the Italia, flagship of Princess Cruises and one of the most modern luxury cruise liners afloat, start at $1,495.

Facilities aboard the "floating resort" include several nightclubs and cocktail lounges, gym and health equipment, theatre, swimming pool and many intriguing public rooms. The ship is fully air-conditioned with individual controls in each cabin. Each room also has phone and music systems as well as closed circuit television.

The latter permits passengers to watch movies as well as talks and live entertainment aboard the liner.

Additional information is available from travel agents or from Princess Cruises, 643 S. Flower St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90017.

Office moved

APSA Peruvian Airlines has moved its main Los Angeles ticket office into new quarters at Crocker Citizen Plaza, 611 W. 6th St.

Israel tourism sets new high

JERUSALEM, Israel — Israel tourism reached a new monthly record in July 1969 with the influx of 67,700 tourists. The previous peak month was July 1968 which in Israel's 20th Anniversary year reached 67,670 tourists.

Tourism became Israel's largest foreign currency earner in 1968, surpassing the citrus industry which had been the traditional leader. Israel earnings in 1968 on the domestic spending of tourists amounted to $97 million and is expected to surpass the $100 million figure this year.

STAN DELAPLANE

Finding a room for Hawaii visit

By STAN DELAPLANE

KAILUA, Hawaii — This is a warm, quiet Hawaiian town. Enough resort hotels to keep it lively. Small enough to be relaxing. Now I saw several attractive places in the $16 class WITH kitchens. And if you're traveling with a family, the kitchen and peanut butter sandwich lunches keep away those staggering costs.

"... how to find a house or apartment in Hawaii for a family of five at Christmas?"

WRITE Hawaii Visitors Bureau, Honolulu for their Hawaii Hotel Guide (free). Places are rated — standard to deluxe. Tells prices, whether it has a kitchen, swimming pool.

Finding a house is harder. Vacation rentals are listed in the classified ads of the Honolulu papers. (A month's subscription by mail is a good investment.) Each island has a local paper, and I've seen a few ads in those.

The good Honolulu beach houses rent at whacking big prices — $1000 to $1500 a month. But on the outer islands I saw a few at $250 and $300.

"We need some small presents for a friend in England (recently married)."

WHEN FRIENDS visit me from overseas I find they go wild for our super drug stores with all the household gadgets. A good mail shopping catalog is free from Sunset House, 137 Sunset Bldg., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90213. Lots of $1 to $3 items.

For expensive house gadgets, get a catalog from Hammacher Schlemmer, 145 East 57th Street, New York City. Don't get electrical things unless you know it will work on their current. And don't sent by mail. Friends overseas tell me they often pay more duty than the gift cost.

"We are 21-year-old students and our families will send us to Europe next year. We want to go by bike in a couple of countries. Which ones? And stay in hostels."

IRELAND and England are the great biking countries. You can rent them — $3.78 a week. Includes insurance. Instead of hostels, have you thought of farm houses? The Irish Tourist Board will send you information on the bikes and their list of farmhouses. Write them at 590 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Do the same thing with British Travel, 680 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

"You wrote once about inexpensive living - traveling in Europe . . ."

A CRUISER on the Thames cost me $150 a week. Living for a family of five was $48. Gregan's Castle Hotel on Galway Bay is a lovely country place. You get room and meals for two for $14 a day. The Estalagem Belvedere in seaside Estoril outside Lisbon has beautiful rooms with a deck — $12 a day for two with meals and wine.

In summer season, a thatched cottage (but a modern kitchen) in Ireland costs $75 a week. Beef is half what you pay at home. Milk is six cents a quart. Irish soda bread is 12 cents a loaf.

You can luck out in the Greek islands for cheap living. Spain is good if you get out of the big cities. (The food is just passable, but you get well on the prices.) Madeira is warm and cheap.

"Can I live overseas on an income of $200 a month?"

IN THE CHEAP places I've mentioned. Better than in the U. S. but not luxuriously.

A swingy one night in London . . ."

A SHOW. At the Drury Lane if something good is playing. It's a magnificent theater. Dinner at Stone's Chop House. Wind up at one of the gambling clubs.

100 ways to discover adventure

THE BEACH OFFERS DIVIDENDS to any outing in Southern California, like pausing to pick up odd shells or driftwood or to capture a starfish. This photo was taken at Laguna Beach.

ALL KINDS OF LITTLE "TRAVEL ADVENTURES" lie waiting over the next sand dune in the desert, such as visiting the "cellar" of America 282 feet below sea level in Death Valley. Nearby is the mining museum at Furnace Creek Inn where rest these weathered remains of wagons hauled by 20-mule teams. (Union Pacific Railroad photo)

LOS ANGELES — Little "travel adventures" for all the family add spice to a trip to Southern California. Here are a hundred adventures, and most of them free, according to the area's Travel Council.

Board the liner Queen Mary at Long Beach (she'll be ready next year).

Tour the Tropico gold mine on the Mojave Desert.

Watch a train circle over itself on the Walong Loop.

Slide down an 80-foot sand dune near Palm Springs.

Match the stars' footprints at Hollywood's Chinese theater.

Dine on ball-shaped Aebleskive pancakes at Danish Solvang.

Buy a frozen Flying Fish at Long Beach, take it home in dry ice.

Breathe the fragrance of billions of spring orange blossoms.

See the whale Bubbles and 4,000 other sea animals at Marineland.

Tour twin-towered old Santa Barbara Mission, founded in 1786.

Watch the horses at Santa Anita and Hollywood Park race tracks.

Peek into the half-mile wide borax pit mine at Boron.

Walk into the 12-story high dome of Palomar Observatory.

Look up at the tallest peak south of Alaska, 14,496-foot Mt. Whitney.

Ride the Palm Springs Aerial Tramway 5,875 feet high on Mt. San Jacinto.

Enjoy a Japanese dinner in Los Angeles' Little Tokyo.

Peer down through the windows of the glass bottom boats at Avalon Bay.

Preserve a starfish to take home as a souvenir.

Tour the stars' homes (free map available).

See all-night surfboard riders at Huntington Beach.

Roam the Wizard of Oz land, Joshua Tree National Monument.

Drive past 2,500 acres of flowers grown for seed near Santa Barbara.

Pet tame deer in the Japanese Village and Deer Park.

Swim in orphaned Salton Sea, a minus 235 feet elevation, near Palm Springs.

Eat a fresh date in the Arabia of America near Indio.

Feed the seals and pelicans at A Child's Estate, Santa Barbara.

Explore the canal community of Naples at Long Beach.

Follow a snowy load of cotton to a gin in Kern County.

Stand in the cellar of America, a minus 282 feet, Death Valley.

Ride the Pines to Palms Highway to Palm Springs.

Visit the artists' own gallery at Laguna Beach art colony.

Let your youngsters rule the slide into the San Diego Childrens' Zoo.

Wander among 100,000 camellia plants at Descanso County gardens.

Ride the Calico Mine Railroad at Knott's Berry Farm.

Sit down to a hard rock dinner in the Mining Museum at old Randsburg.

Hear the world's biggest outdoor pipe organ at San Diego.

Try ocean fishing from Belmont Pier, Long Beach.

Visit the silver mining ghost town of Calico.

Marvel at greenish and lavenderish roses at the Pageant of Roses garden, Whittier.

See buffalo at William S. Hart county park.

Inspect the 100-inch telescope atop Mt. Wilson.

Board the century-old sailing vessel Star of India at San Diego.

Explore the Mitchell's limestone caverns on the San Bernardino County desert.

Mingle with bright colored tropical birds at Busch Gardens.

Find your favorite stars at the Movieland Wax Museum and Palace of Living Art.

Customs bureau updates its rules book for U.S. tourists

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT
Travel Editor

KRAFT

You have just returned from a trip to a foreign country and that moment of truth has arrived, that confrontation with an agent of the Customs Bureau of the United States Treasury Department which you have been dreading.

You hand him your declaration of purchases with misgivings and you unlock your bags for inspection.

The keen eyes of the agent scans your declaration, then looks you straight in the eye and asks a few routine questions, like how long have you been out of the country? Do you have any fruits, vegetables, plants and plant products with you? Did you mail any packages from abroad?

He then turns to your opened luggage, feels around the edges of each bag with adept fingers, lifts and looks under some soiled clothing, takes out a foreign-made camera, examines it, and asks if you acquired it on your trip. You reply that you bought it from a dealer in your home town a couple of years ago. The agent then wants to know if you have a slip showing it was registered with Customs before your departure.

By now you are not only mortified about the heaps of soiled linen but more than a little confused about preregistering a used camera. The thought never occurred to you.

IGNORANCE of the law is no excuse at a time like this and so, to better acquaint returning U.S. tourists with such rules, Customs has revised a useful booklet on the subject under the new title of "Know Before You Go." It is also aimed to speed up baggage inspection and thus relieve the growing clearance bottleneck.

If you had read the 24-page booklet before you left on your trip you would have known that "If you take foreign-made articles, such as watches, cameras, jewelry, plumage, out of the United States, they should be registered with Customs before departure, as they are dutiable each time they are brought into the country unless you have proof of prior possession. Obtain a certificate of registration by taking the article with you to the Customs office nearest you" but "bills of sale or receipts for purchase, repair, or cleaning will be considered reasonable proof of prior possession."

"Know Before You Go" answers in simple language just about every question you will ask yourself, and certainly those the agent will pose, about your purchases. To obtain a copy, without charge, you may write the District Director of U.S. Customs, Los Angeles, CA. 90013, or to the Office of Information and Publications, Bureau of Customs, Department of the Treasury, Washington, D.C. 20226.

THE MAGIC OF ANSEL ADAMS' CAMERA makes the feeling of Yosemite's brilliant autumn coloring come through, even in black and white photographs. In the background of this view is Sentinel Rock. (Yosemite Park and Curry Co. photo)

AND NOW about those other preliminary questions the agent asked when you confronted him with your luggage:

You are granted a $100 exemption as a returning resident of the U.S. if: you bring the articles with you at the time of your return; you are returning from a stay abroad of at least 48 hours (exception: if you return from Mexico there is no minimum time requirement); you have not used this $100 exemption, or any part of it, within the preceding 30-day period.

If you return directly or indirectly from the Virgin Islands of the United States, American Samoa, or Guam you may receive a customs exemption of $200, based on the fair retail value of the articles in the country where acquired, provided not more than $100 of this exemption is applied to merchandise obtained elsewhere than these islands.

The booklet also explains when a written customs declaration is necessary, how to avoid penalties, and when an antique is an antique. It answers such questions as "Why do some travelers have problems," and "What are the practical shipping methods."

"GIFTS" often pose problems for returning U.S. citizens. The rules allow the free entry of bona fide gifts up to a value of $10 at retail. But there are restrictions. For instance, perfumes containing alcohol valued over $1 at retail, tobacco and alcoholic beverages are not included in the gift provision. And, in any event, alcoholic beverages may not be sent through the U.S. mails.

In addition, the $10 gift provision does not apply to gifts purchased abroad by a husband and wife or other persons traveling together and sent home to themselves or to each other. And articles purchased but not delivered to a traveler while abroad but sent to him in the U.S. are dutiable; neither the $10 duty-free gift exemption nor the $100 duty-free exemption allowed a resident on his return are applicable.

About liquor: So far as Customs is concerned, there is no special limit on the amount of liquor or beer a resident of the U.S. may bring back from another country for personal use. But only one quart (32 ounces) may be brought in free of duty and tax, and the person bringing the liquor must be at least 21 years of age. There is an exemption to this rule provided the traveler is arriving directly or indirectly from the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, or Guam when the allowance is increased to one wine gallon (128 ounces), provided not more than one quart was acquired elsewhere.

If you should decide to bring more than the one quart allowed free entry and you are an adult, plan to pay the duty and the Internal Revenue tax on the amount over your allowance. Most liquors carry a tax of $10.50 a gallon, and the duty charges range from 80 cents to $1.75 a gallon.

OH, YES, one other thing: what about psittacine birds?

First, though, what is a psittacine bird? These are birds like parrots or parakeets. And it's here that Customs gets a little rough.

Two psittacine birds, says "Know Before You Go," per family may be imported without a permit if: they are in good health; if they are not for sale or trade; and if you have not imported other psittacine birds during the preceding year. Furthermore, you birds during the preceding must certify that the birds will be treated by or under the supervision of a licensed veterinarian for 45 days with chlortetracycline or other medication approved by the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service; and the owner also must have a permit from the Surgeon General prior to departure.

It looks like Customs is not going all the way for the birds. Or is it?

Santa Fe slates 'package' tours

New "package" tours from Los Angeles to points of scenic and historic interest in Arizona and New Mexico have been announced by Santa Fe Railway.

A "Chico Tour" of three days to Grand Canyon and Oak Creek Canyon will depart via El Capitan Nov. 21; a three-day tour to Albuquerque and Santa Fe, and six day tours to Albuquerque, Santa Fe and Taos, will depart Oct. 17.

Tours are in conjunction with the Gray Line and the package price includes almost everything except incidental and optional costs. For each tour there is also a special "Family Plan" for husband and wife.

Lurline to cruise around S. America in January

Matson Lines' 26,000-ton flagship SS Lurline will make her maiden voyage around South America in January.

The big white liner, which has been appropriately called the "Hotel SS Lurline" because of her role as a luxury floating resort, will visit fourteen ports during the 53-day adventure cruise to Latin America.

The Lurline will leave Los Angeles and San Diego Jan. 12, then proceed "South of the Border." Ports of call will be Mazatlan, Lima, Valparaiso-Santiago, Puerto Montt, Punta Arenas, Montevideo, Buenos Aires, Santos-Sao Paulo, Rio de Janeiro, Salvador-Bahia, Trinidad, Curacao, the Canal Zone and Balboa and Acapulco before returning to California.

The cruise is perfectly timed for the summer season south of the equator.

An Important Message to those who may be considering a vacation in from Hawaii's Governor, John A. Burns.

Hawaii

"There's a phrase in the rich Hawaiian language of our island land which goes 'E komo mai.' It means 'welcome'... our house is yours.

"And like any expert host, we've been getting ready for your visit. Whether it's your first... or twenty-first... time with us... whether it's this Fall or in the Winter or even next Spring... you'll find that the Islands of Hawaii... and its wonderful golden people... have prepared an exceptional welcome.

"In the past our house has been cramped at times. It was hard to get the reservations you wanted when you wanted them. But we've been expanding our visitor house. By more than a quarter... with much more to come each day. On all islands, in all price ranges and in new, exciting locations.

"After all, we're one of the world's friendliest people. It's only fitting that we make sure there is room for all the friends and would-be friends who want to visit with us.

"And now, with the help of the nation's airline industry, there is greatly increased air service for you to Hawaii... from all corners of the U.S. It has never been so easy for you to get here for your visit. Between our islands, too, a special common air fare has reduced your costs to just $5 an inter-island flight. At that economical price, our Neighbor Islands really become neighbors.

"But the thing we're most pleased about as hosts to so many nice people is that we've got two Hawaiis to offer our guests. One is the classic Polynesia... utterly peaceful, restful and 'away-from-it-all.' Isolated beaches, incredible beauty, spectacular touring. The other is a modern, exciting, 'now' Hawaii. It's Waikiki Beach and it's Honolulu, a fascinating city throbbing with the vibrant pulse of a Pacific crossroads. Name what you like in a vacation and Honolulu has it. Entertainment, sports, art, history, culture, music, cuisine, festivals, fun. It's all here in our big, thriving metropolis. We've never had a bored guest yet in Honolulu.

"This Fall would be an especially good time to have you with us. There'll be lots to do, the weather'll be a perfect 70-75 degrees, our people will be waiting to extend a special 'Aloha.'

"But if Fall doesn't fit your immediate plans, just remember... Hawaii is a year-round vacation land. Your time is our time. We'd be very proud to welcome you to our fortunate shores.

"Do come and be our guest.

"Aloha nui loa"

Mistakes made in the past are best forgotten

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I recently learned our 23-year-old son, now a senior in college, is the father of a child that was given away for adoption last year. Our son did not confide in us, I found this out quite by accident.

Our son and this girl did not want to rush into marriage, so they decided to give up the child, but now that she has returned home they became engaged. (They are not aware that I know about the baby.) I might add, she is a very sweet girl and I think the world of her.

My husband and I have always looked forward to our first grandchild and I am sick with grief to think somewhere in this world I have a grandchild, whom I will never know. I haven't been able to bring myself to tell my husband yet. My question: Do I have the right to keep this from him? It is his grandchild, too.—TROUBLED.

DEAR TROUBLED: No possible good can come from your telling your husband. The "grandchild" is now somebody else's child and grandchild as well. Be kind and silent. And don't dwell on it. The cancer of life is regret.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I and our son (who is an only child) have had Sunday dinner out for many years.

David is now 15, and he's started something new. He rushes through his dinner, and when we are nowhere near finished he asks his father for the keys to the car so he can go sit in it and listen to the radio. His father doesn't like it any better than I do, but he gives him the keys and we finish without him.

David has done this when we have had others eating with us, too. I think it is rude, but my husband says if the boy prefers to sit in the car and listen to the radio, it's his privilege, but I know my husband is hurt. I'd like your opinion. — HIS MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: It IS rude, but your son is trying to tell you that he is bored. Have you tried drawing David into the conversation? Directing questions to him? Listening to him? Next time, try it. He may stay thru dessert.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 49 and I am 46. He is a college graduate and an excellent provider. We have three lovely children and have been married for 20 years. My problem? My husband doesn't like for me to talk to him.

He asks me not to talk to him at mealtime because he is "busy" eating. He doesn't want me to talk to him while he's driving, because he's "busy" driving. And God forbid that I should talk to him while he is reading or watching television!

He doesn't want me to talk when we are out in public with friends either. This is very hard on me as I come from a large family and love to talk. I am not dumb. I read a lot and have a lot of interesting things to say. When we are out, he talks to other people, but he says he HAS to talk to THEM — he doesn't have to talk to ME.

Oh, he does call me from work every day to find out what was in the mail, and then I get to talk. He says as long as he has to pay for the five minutes he doesn't mind my talking. Please put this in your column as it is one of the things my husband always reads, and it will be one way for me to tell him what I think. Thank you. — FRUSTRATED

WARM, WILD SHAG IN 27 HOT AND COLD COLORS

Shagmoor's the carpet we show women who are demanding about color. Because it doesn't come in here or there colors. Each fiber of the polyester pile has what we call "color vibrancy"—a deep down beauty which makes bright colors really vivid and pale colors positively luscious! It shows off tweeds as irresistibly as solids. Cool tones as impressively as warm tones. And the pile has crush resistance usually found only at a higher price. See Shagmoor on sale. And color your rooms something special. Only 17 colors shown . . . Come in and see all 27 choices.

Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y., 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. What are Shirley Temple Black's qualifications for government service? How could Nixon appoint her as a delegate to the United Nations, and why?—Harold Lewis, San Mateo, Calif.

A. Shirley Temple Black is a high school graduate (Westlake School, Los Angeles, Class of 1945). This qualifies her, upon passing the proper civil service examination, to work in any U.S. post office. Her appointment to the United Nations was figuratively a joke and literally a political payoff for her services as a promoter of campaign funds for the Republican Party.

Q. Maria Cole, widow of Nat King Cole, plans to marry Garry Devore, a TV writer. Maybe they're already married. Is Devore white? If so, why do so many talented black women marry whites?—Ken Lane, Philadelphia, Pa.

A. Devore is white. In many cases talented black women are thrown more frequently into contact with eligible, attractive white men than with black.

BARBARA HUTTON

LANCE REVENTLOW

Q. Supposedly Barbara Hutton gives every husband she marries and divorces a million bucks. If this is true, how much of her fortune will be left for son Lance?—Ona Knox, Long Island City, N.Y.

A. Miss Hutton has been married only seven or eight times. She does not give each of her husbands a million dollars. No such arrangement, for example, was made with her third husband, screen star Cary Grant. It was made, however, with the late Count Reventlow, father of her only child, Lance, who stands to inherit an estimated $50 million when his mother passes on. Meanwhile, she is most generous to him.

Q. My understanding is that the John Birch Society is predominantly Roman Catholic. Can you verify?—L. T., Roxbury, Mass.

A. According to Robert Welch, head of the John Birch Society, 40 percent of his members are Catholic.

Q. The Soviet Union recently celebrated the 30th anniversary of Khalkin Gol. Who or what is Khalkin Gol?—Marion Witte, Davis, Calif.

A. Khalkin Gol is a river in Mongolia. Thirty years ago in an undeclared war the Japanese army invaded Mongolia. Its objective was to knife through to Soviet territory, cut the Trans-Siberian Railway, isolate the Soviet Far East from Soviet Europe.

The war involved at least 100,000 troops on each side plus considerable aircraft.

The Soviet forces were led by Corps Commander Georgi Zhukov who subsequently, in World War II, was to defeat the Hitler hordes in the battles of Moscow, Rostov, and Stalingrad.

Zhukov and his troops routed the Japanese during a ten-day battle at Khalkin Gol in August, 1939.

After that, even though the Russians were to be attacked massively on the European front by Hitler's legions, the Japanese army refused to attack the Soviet Union in World War II.

Q. Do the Beatles really have an unwritten law which prevents them from marrying a girl until she's pregnant?—La Rue Jenkinson, St. George, Utah.

A. The Beatles have no such unwritten law. The record shows, however, that in almost all cases their brides were pregnant.

Q. Is actress Judy Geeson the real reason Rod Steiger and Claire Bloom are no longer married?—Miranda Urquardt, Columbia, S.C.

A. Nonsense. Actress Judy Geeson belongs to actor George Peppard this week in the Hollywood sweepstakes.

Q. Bobbie Zimmerman who took the name of Bob Dylan — why and where did he pick that one?—Tom Roberts, Ely, Minn.

A. He adapted it from the late Welsh poet Dylan Thomas, preferred it to his own name. It has brought him great success as a singer and composer.

Q. What is the political doctrine of "Mitchellism," originated, I believe, by U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell?—G. Pollock, Bethesda, Md.

A. "Mitchellism" has been used to describe the political strategy of the Nixon Administration. It calls for a Republican majority to be built by combining the George Wallace-type voters with the Richard Nixon-type voters into a majority Republican bloc and forgetting the black and other minority groups on the grounds that such groups are irretrievably lost to Nixon.

THE SMOTHERS BROTHERS—TOMMY AND DICK

Q. What are the Smothers Brothers up to now that CBS has given them the skidoo?—Elaine Donovan, Boston, Mass.

A. They will syndicate their own TV show, will sell the 50 percent interest they own in the Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour, will continue to give concerts and make personal appearances.

Q. David Ogilvy, founder of the advertising agency, Ogilvy, Mather & Benson—was he really the chef at the Plaza Hotel in New York City before he entered advertising?—Matt Frank, Glencoe, Ill.

A. Ogilvy, 58 and British-born, used to work as a chef at the Hotel Majestic in Paris. He ate well but did not earn too much money. Following World War II, he entered U.S. advertising, became a multimillionaire, is now semi-retired in northern France.

Q. Who said: "Get money first; virtue comes after?" —Ron Moody, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

A. Horace, 65-8 B.C., the Roman poet.

Jim Farley, New York State chairman of Young Americans for Freedom, in his office where he outlined plan of action to combat SDS on campus.

Students on the Right Get Ready for Battle

by Linda Gutstein

"No one writes about Young Americans for Freedom; the press has always covered SDS [Students for a Democratic Society] but this year it's going to be different." Such is the promise of YAF officers and organizers as they prepare to do battle on the nation's campuses.

Young Americans for Freedom is the largest group in the relatively unheralded, but nonetheless organized, campus right wing. It now has a national membership of 50,000 which it claims doubled in the last year—and not by YAF efforts alone. Apparently, every new stage of militance entered into by the radical left helps YAF gather in uncommitted students, tired of disruption, and often frightened by the new, angry face of university life.

Formed nine years ago as part of the Goldwater for President drive, YAF has held to its views, sponsoring conservative rallies and waiting in the wings for an opportunity to play center stage. The revolutionary tactics of SDS and the anger of black radicals have provided that opportunity.

In general, the YAF platform, like conservative Republicanism, stresses the sanctity of private property, opposes government controls on private enterprise, places great emphasis on individual and states' rights—for instance, one of its pet peeves is mandatory social security. Their answer to black poverty is black capitalism. But while they advocate some change, they are more apt to conserve than alter.

And, on the turbulent campuses, where they believe that the majority of students are non-aligned (the so-called "silent majority" which they hope to bring into their camp), their hands have been tied, they say, by respect for law and order. As YAF New York State chairman, 19-year-old Jim Farley, describes it: "Two years ago when the disruptions started at Columbia, we formed a majority coalition. But we didn't succeed because the type of people working for us were interested in getting good grades, and were unprepared to fight SDS."

'Chicken majority'

With an edge of bitterness, Farley says: "We began to call the 'silent majority' the 'chicken majority!' Students followed like sheep if only one SDS member walked out of class. The majority of students don't give a damn and this worked in SDS's favor." And he lays much of the blame on the "spineless administrations which crumbled after each threat."

Now, after two years of the SDS drama, YAF has decided that the liberal university administrators are incapable of dealing with the hard-core SDS; that it is incumbent upon YAF to confront the New Left; to adopt some of their revolutionary methods.

In private many YAFers admit there are great differences between liberals and radical leftists, and they will reluctantly admit that many SDSers don't toe the Communist line. Says one junior at New York's Fordham University: "Some of them are uptight about how much money their old man has and feel guilty." YAF's official propaganda is less objective. It tends to stick the red label on every radical student. Why? Jim Farley explained: "We get contributions from the older Republicans, the ones who formed their opinions of Communism in the '30's."

Jeans and beards, too

While they may stereotype others, YAFers reject the popular image of themselves as tie-wearing squares. Many of them, in fact, wear blue jeans, sport beards (they point to some of their bearded executives as shining examples of "hip"), and, like SDSers, use salty language for their own political ends. In an attempt to keep up with the times and draw readers, one of their underground newspapers is named Bull Sheet.

Also like SDS, YAF opposes the draft. At their recent convention in St. Louis, YAF members voted to support the Goldwater-McGovern bill calling for a volunteer Army.

"This year is going to be different"—YAF's promise to its membership—is also a declaration of war. As one militant YAFer put it: "My advice to SDS is that before they go on the offensive again, they make sure their hospital insurance is paid up."

The word is out: "Get SDS." And the plan of action is well mapped. YAF will no longer wait out each SDS move before it acts. It will use the same harassment techniques, though just short of breaking the law, that SDS used against the college administrations.

Jim Farley supplied some of YAF's new tactics. "Most people don't realize that you're not trespassing until somebody calls the police and asks that the intruders be removed. We will occupy SDS headquarters this year, and would like to see them call the police. Then it would be the pot calling the kettle black.

"On campuses where SDS controls many student newspapers and governments we will refuse to pay student activity fees [which are mandatory] because a lot of that money goes to bail kids out of jail. At Fordham the student government paid for the buses to the march on the Pentagon."

One of YAF's priorities during the summer months has been to set up a legal defense fund. If private colleges close down because of SDS action, YAF members will press suit against the administrations for breach of contract, demanding tuition refunds. At public institutions they will test suits against state officials on behalf of the taxpayers. Some of the more athletic YAFers are even considering making citizens arrests if they see a member of SDS destroy property.

Phillip Abbott Luce, the 29-year-old national college director of YAF, offered the rationale for YAF's new "college curriculum." "The left has been operating on a momentum which can be broken if even one or two people stand up to them physically. When in California they tried to beat up corporation recruiters, YAF blocked the way—and SDS was unprepared. They are not as inclined to attack fellow students as they are the police. This year we intend to create confusion in their ranks. We'll utilize black propaganda, and print phony SDS leaflets announcing meetings, etc. That, plus phony issues of their newspapers, will force them to use a lot of their time just explaining away the confusion. As far as I'm concerned, the left has about reached its zenith . . . and our major concern," he adds, sounding somewhat like a missionary confronting a tribe, "is to defeat them and educate students as to the values of the American system."

Guide to action

In its Majority Coalition Campus Action Manual, YAF central headquarters recommends the following:

- "You should make full use of the buttons and posters available from YAF. The buttons include: SDS=SS, SDS Is Revolting, To Hell With Socialism, Up Against the Wall Commies . . .
- "Have cameras handy to get photographs of illegal acts, and have people to act as witnesses when the left goes berserk at a demonstration.
- "If the situation is ripe, it may be possible to actually stop the leftists once they try to take over a building. This can be done by putting a ring of students, preferably two deep and including a large number of girls, around the building. Anyone who has business in the building can be allowed entrance or exit. When the leftists try to move in, the Majority Coalition should lock arms, and make it necessary for the left to use violence against fellow students to get in the building . . ."

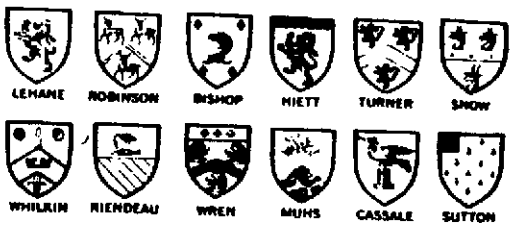

As far as YAF is concerned, the days of fun 'n' games are over.

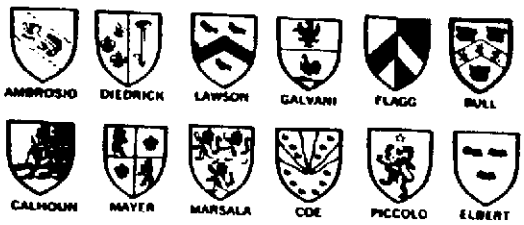

Phillip Abbott Luce, national college director of YAF, at recent convention.

THE GAMES MOTORISTS PLAY

ODDS How good are your chances of winning the top prize in any of the lotteries and games which gas stations offer nowadays as promotion gimmicks?

Standard Oil of Ohio revealed recently the probability of a customer's winning first prize of $5000 in the company's filling station game was 1 in 4 million.

The Federal Trade Commission is requiring oil companies and supermarkets to make public by Oct. 17 a full disclosure of how many prizes and in what amounts those prizes will be issued. Also, the total number of retail outlets involved in the game, the geographical area, the date the games are scheduled to end, etc.

In short, the customer is about to be told the true odds against him.

For example, Standard of Ohio now reveals that of the 737,555 prizes offered in its Boron Bonanza contest, 633,360 will consist of $1.

Watch for a quick drop in the gimmick games after Oct. 17th.

BLOOD CHECK The British, apparently more solicitous of their citizens' welfare than of their pharmaceutical manufacturers' profits, have issued a new warning for women taking the "Pill."

Dr. P. W. Harris, writing in The Lancet, a British medical journal, advises women using oral contraceptives to have their blood pressures checked every three to six months. The objective is to detect cases of "malignant hypertension."

Two British physicians, Dr. Sarah Price and Dr. P. A. Toseland of Guy's Hospital, London, also recommend that "pill-users" take regular shots of Vitamin B-6 to prevent the depression which seems frequently to assail them.

REPORT FROM RED CHINA One of the best yardsticks of how things are going in Red China is the number of illegal Chinese refugees making their way into Hong Kong.

The Chinese refugees swim rivers, cut through or scale barbed-wire fences, hide in junks, undergo unimaginable hardships to flee their homeland.

Last year 2000 of them made it to Hong Kong. This year the number approaches 8000, which means that conditions must be bad indeed in China.

According to Chinese escapees, who are generally allowed to remain in Hong Kong, the monthly food ration per person in Kwantung Province is now down to ten ounces of meat and four ounces of oil. Rice, the daily staple, is down to 30 pounds per month. The yearly clothes allowance is five yards of cloth. Matches are limited to two small boxes per month.

Worse yet, Mao has issued the nationwide call: "Prepare for war." Fear is rampant and the stockpiling of reserves is feverish to meet an Oct. 15th deadline, which is about when the Chinese expect the Soviet Union to attack them in the start of a full-scale war.

The trains from Canton, which arrive at the station in front of the Peninsular Hotel in Hong Kong, carry passengers who report widespread student unrest and juvenile delinquency in China. Worst offenders, they say, are the former Red Guards, who seemingly prefer perpetual rebellion to hard work, either in or out of school. Others report that Mao has instituted a crash program to move the Chinese nuclear installations from Sinkiang Province on the Soviet border to safer, more secret underground locations farther to the south.

As usual, the truth of what is really going on in Red China is extremely difficult, almost impossible to come by.

FACTS There are over 60,000 known hard-drug addicts in the U.S., according to the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

Most of the addicts are between 21 and 30.

More than half, 33,000 known users, live in New York State.

About 7500 reside in California, 6500 in Illinois, 2800 in New Jersey; another 13,000 live elsewhere, mostly in cities.

The average age of the New York addict is 30, and in the state's new addiction program, 38 percent of the patients are black, 34 percent are of Spanish descent, 26 percent are white, 2 percent other.

A survey of addicts under treatment reveals that the typical addict steals $150 worth of property each day to support his habit. This works out to $328 million per year.

The number of known addicts throughout the country is considered to be only one-third or one-fourth the U.S. total.

RICHARD HELMS WITH PRESIDENT NIXON

HELMS OF THE CIA

Generally speaking, the CIA will not give any newsman the time of day. The agency's director, Richard Helms, a basically shy and retiring man, protects fiercely both his personal and organization's privacy. Reporters who ask the CIA about anything are told politely to get lost.

Last month, however, Richard Helms called in a handful of reporters in Washington in an effort to improve the image of the CIA, which had been damaged by two charges. (1) that the CIA had ordered the Green Berets to murder a Vietnamese double agent. (2) that the CIA had inspired the report which had the Soviet Union asking other Iron Curtain countries how they feel about a Soviet preventive bombing of the Chinese nuclear installations in Sinkiang.

Mr. Helms explained diplomatically that the CIA had not ordered one of President Thieu's intelligence advisers, Thai Khac Chuyen, to be killed and dropped into the South China Sea. The Green Berets pulled that one off on their own.

Mr. Helms is a diplomatic gent of finesse and polish who frequently finds himself in a tight squeeze. His agency tries desperately to tell the truth and make fair intelligence estimates. Frequently these are at odds with reports and estimates of other less impartial government agencies and employees.

For example, in the recent struggle for the ABM program. Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, a hawk popularly regarded as being "owned" by the Pentagon's generals and admirals, told a Senate committee that the Soviet Union was "going for a first-strike capability--there is no question about that."

Mr. Helms, testifying before the same Senate Foreign Relations Committee, did not exactly agree with Mr. Laird. Two years ago when Air Force intelligence informed President Johnson that the bombing of North Vietnam would soon bring the North Vietnamese to their knees, the CIA reported that the bombing was having an opposite effect, was in fact uniting the North Vietnamese, making them more resolved to fight to the death together.

In the end, President Johnson accepted the CIA intelligence and stopped the bombing.

How President Nixon feels about the intelligence estimates of the CIA as opposed to the intelligence estimates of the other agencies is difficult to tell at this point. If Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird is the Pentagon's boy, Richard Helms is not. One virtue of the CIA is that it is not for sale to politics, to the press, to the Pentagon or anyone.

SEX AND POLITICS

Why do some young people grow up to become left-wingers and some to become right-wingers?

The answer lies in childhood sexual conflicts. So claims a study conducted by Arnold Rogow, political scientist at City University of New York.

Rogow declares that left-wingers are permissive toward sex, and right-wingers are "anti-permissive." On the basis of 42 case histories, he maintains, the "left-wing personality on an unconscious level has reacted against restraints on sexual behavior and this leads to a revolt against the status quo."

As children, however, right-wingers had their sex thoughts and sex fantasies restrained and "internalized," thereby creating within themselves a host of guilt feelings leading to adult feelings of restraint.

According to Rogow, political moderates are people who have come to terms with their conflicts.

SAFETY

Ever since airline captains began talking to passengers on flights, pointing out scenic highlights and dispensing other information, one of their favorite gags has been the following:

"Ladies and gentlemen, we have just landed. We thank you for flying with us. Now, the dangerous part of your journey--driving from this airport to your final destination--begins. Please drive carefully."

The Flight Safety Foundation, checking the relative safety of travel by auto and travel by air, comes up with these statistics:

In 1968 there were 851 automobiles to every 1 aircraft in the U.S.

In 1968 the ratio of auto accidents to aircraft accidents was 2901 to 1, the ratio of automobile fatalities to aircraft fatalities 32.5 to 1.

SHARON TATE

PETER SELLERS

REWARD

British actor Peter Sellers, a close friend of murdered actress Sharon Tate, is offering a $25,000 reward for information about the crime.

Payment of the reward is to be made upon the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties. Persons having information which might help solve the crime should send such information to Post Office Box 60048, Terminal Annex, Los Angeles, Calif. 90060.

Says Sellers: "Someone must have knowledge or suspicions they are withholding or may be afraid to reveal. Someone must have seen the blood-soaked clothing, the knife, the gun, the getaway car. Someone must be able to help."

Sellers says several of the actress' other true friends will contribute to the $25,000 reward. Among them are Warren Beatty and Yul Brynner.

New Ford Torino GT and other hot performance cars have cut-out hood for a "shaker" air intake to carburetor. Now you will be able not only to hear and feel the surging pulse of power but see it, too.

The New Cars

Something for Dads, Something for Mums, and Lots for Junior!

by Ben Kocivar

A hard look behind the hoopla and hollering about the new cars reveals two things. Most of the surface changes are subtle. But the performance trends: significant and wild.

There are fewer convertibles this year but the youth image comes up sharply. Colors are brighter and include new gutsy stripes. The two-door hardtop, often air-conditioned, has zoomed to almost half the sales by model while the two-door sedan has dropped to about 5 percent. And hot performance is subdued only slightly by new emphasis on safety.

1970 is a so-so year for big car changes. But if there are only minor facelifts there are running improvements underneath. The manufacturers have had a year to de-bug the last major changes. It's a great year to buy if you believe in letting the other guy find the problems first.

Step down a size or two to the intermediate and fun cars and there are some new designs, and very interesting.

Wildest-looking one is the new Dodge Daytona which, even before it had been announced, was already becoming a collector's item. It is essentially a stock-car-race Charger, created by bolting on an extended droop-front nose and plane-size fins and high stabilizer (or spoiler).

Even before production got started, dealers had already slapped down orders for over 2000 of these beastly beauties. It's a performance image-maker. Unofficially, Dodge people will tell you they lose money on each one they sell, but the advertising is considered well worth it.

'Sensible' vs. status

If Dads and Mums are going to be the earthy types to settle for "sensible" four-door sedans or "practical" station wagons, more power to them. They'll be available, glossier, more woody looking, more air-conditioned, safer, with stereo coming out of all ears. But before they settle for stability they will have to fight off a yen for the new status symbols that say and sound GO.

The Pony cars, which got their name and image from the fantastically successful Ford Mustang, are in full gallop. Chevrolet has a new Camaro, Plymouth has a new Barracuda, Pontiac has a Firebird. Mercury Cougar has an Eliminator, Mustang has a Boss series and American Motors an AMX. The new fastback Camaro and Firebird will eliminate the small rear seat, like the AMX. Even Buick and Olds have superhot versions of their "success status" machines. Everybody's in the act.

Now the tricky bit in all this is that some are just cosmetic fakes. They only "look" tough and fast and are designed as relatively inexpensive rolling tricks for mild-mannered secretaries to achieve the "in" image. But the others ARE tough. For about $5000 any little old Yankee can get behind the wheel of a domestic product that will give a $15,000 Italian Ferrari some fits.

Jim Wangers, who once helped Pontiac achieve its performance image and now guides the destinies of the Hurst Performance Research Group, says that even the severest critics have underestimated the power of the automobiles as an instrument of fun, sport and pleasure.

"Every manufacturer is producing special versions of his regular nameplates with new wild colors. They all shout uniqueness and a "tuned in" quality for the young. For the more mature they minimize the generation gaps" and maximize the go-light gasps!

With more emphasis on class than hot performance, Chevrolet has a new Monte Carlo, an elegant two-door coupe with lovely lines and creature comforts that some people think make it competitive with its highest priced relative, the Cadillac Eldorado, and certainly with the Pontiac Grand Prix. The Caddie, incidentally, now has the world's most powerful production engine, a new power plant that is exclusive to it with 500 cubic inches turning out 400 horsepower with 550 pounds of torque. Not to go fast, mind you, but just to move this luxury barge with the utmost of ease and grace.

The V is gone

Incidentally, if you look very closely, you will see the biggest change on the outside of a Cadillac this year. They have dropped the famous V from the hood.

A completely new Ford Torino of the old Fairlane size, has an aerodynamic shape, wider track and sales line that runs rampant from economy through luxury to racetrack performance.

The Torino GT and others have a novel vibrating airscoop that sticks up through a big hole in the hood and is part of the carburetor intake. As the motor revs, this intake shakes and shudders with power. I went around the Ford test track and this beast snaked through the S-turns at speeds that would spin out ordinary cars and loafed around the banked turns at over 115 mph. Don't ask me where anyone can do those speeds legally off a track.

Comes now the second in Detroit's new anti-Volkswagen campaign. Last year it was the Ford Maverick. Now American Motors comes up with head-on competition called the Hornet. On the horizon American Motors has another even smaller car. Chevrolet has an XP-887 in the works, and Ford and Chrysler are doodling, too.

Safety makes news

There's important news on the safety scene: 1970 marks the first year that the National Highway Safety Bureau is really getting into the act.

General Motors put the steering column lock in last year but this year all new-model cars must have some form of this three-way lock by Jan. 1, 1970. It's an anti-theft measure mainly.

Glove box latches must be designed not to open in severe accidents.

Turn signals: bigger and brighter.

Shake 'n Bake introduces "Oven Mates"

Easy new menus planned so everything cooks together in your oven at the same temperature!

Now main course, vegetable, even dessert can bake together at the same temperature in your oven!

That's Shake 'n Bake's new "Oven Mate" idea. Try the recipes on this page. And look for more "Oven Mate" ideas by the Shake 'n Bake display in your store.

Look for the 30¢ refund offer at your grocer's

We're so sure you'll love the whole "Oven Mate" idea, we'll pay you 30¢ to try it.

You'll find a special refund certificate on display at your grocer's. Mail it with the side panel from Shake 'n Bake and the label from any canned vegetable. We'll send you 30¢.

Oven Mate menu: Crispy chicken, green beans supreme, currant baked pears

1. Coat 2½ pounds frying chicken pieces as directed on Shake 'n Bake package. Place in 400° oven. Meanwhile, make vegetable and dessert.

2. For Green Beans Supreme, combine 1 can (10½ oz.) condensed cream of mushroom soup, ¼ cup milk, 1 can (16 oz.) cut green beans, drained, and 1 can (6 oz.) water chestnuts, drained and sliced, in 1½ quart baking dish.

3. Now for Currant Baked Pears dessert: drain syrup from 1 can (29 oz.) pear halves. Pour 1 cup syrup into shallow baking dish; top with pears, cut side up. Combine ¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar and ¼ teaspoon cinnamon; spoon into pears and dot with butter.

When chicken has baked 20 minutes, place green beans and pears in oven, too, and bake 20 minutes longer. Then top beans with French fried onions, and spoon currant jelly in center of each pear. Bake 3 more minutes...and serve a delicious Oven Mate dinner for 4.

Nothing succeeds like success. You will see 1970 look-alikes of this Pontiac grill on the noses of other manufacturers' products. Only a teenager can tell them apart.

Side markers on the front and rear side corners of the car must have lights to make the car conspicuous even without directional signals on.

Any 1970 car that has concealed headlamps must be able to uncover them within three seconds.

One of the most important improvements in new car handling will come from the new wide footprint Fiberglas-belted tires. Buick, for example, reports these have nine rows of tread compared to five on tires used previously. Net result is better traction, greater safety, and longer life. Cosmetically (there's that word again), the fatter tires make all the cars look tougher.

The one greatest overall impression the new cars make is that they do lean in the direction of the tough, rugged, functional, powerful, gutsy look in stock-car racers. And no wonder. Auto racing is the biggest attendance-paying sport in the world!

Youth must be served

The average buyer reveals some regional and personal preferences that are quite fascinating.

Robert D. Lund, sales manager for the Chevrolet division of General Motors, points out that since 50 percent of the people in the U.S. are now under 25, the youth market is of overwhelming importance. Yet, manufacturers worry about alienating other buyers. There is a growing interest in special utility vehicles. Mother wants station wagons when children are small but switches to sportier cars when she no longer must haul the kids around.

Single girls buy a sporty image, like the Camaro. But they buy it economically, with a six-cylinder engine and black tires. Older men buy the same car with more powerful engines.

The Pacific Coast is the hot market for whatever is new.

The Midwest is the most conservative region. New England is also conservative. New York, however, likes new things.

What are the most popular colors?

Lime green comes first with 17 percent. Next gold, white, median blue and dark green, all just under 10 percent.

What is the most popular nameplate in the U.S.? Chevrolet Impala.

But worldwide, the biggest seller is the Volkswagen.

How does power and performance relate to age?

Bob McCurry, general manager of Dodge, points out that the average age of a Dart owner (Dodge's compact car) is 44. But the "Swinger" hot version of the same car is bought by 24-year-olds.

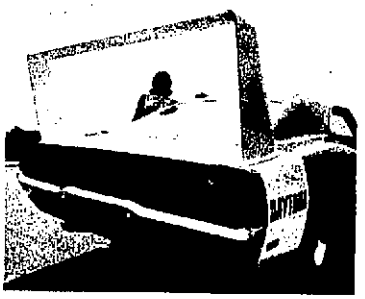

What about the future?

A look at the future

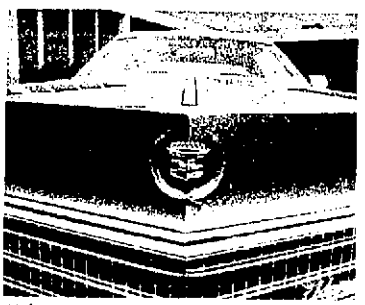

David E. Davies, working on new advance concepts for Chevrolet, predicts that big cars will be rental and special occasion vehicles, rather than all-purpose cars. The early 1970's, he says, is approaching the end of the era of the ultra-high-performance car which he believes will go the way of the tail fin days of the '50's.

Does this contradict the aerodynamic gadgets that are sprouting all over the new hot machines? Of course it does.

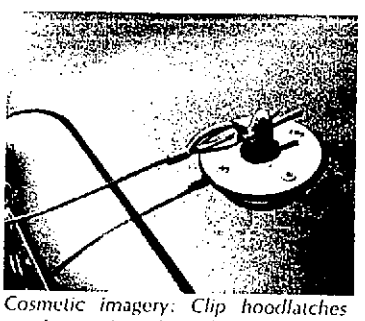

But that's what makes the marketplace. And it seems to be big enough for a lot of contradictory ideas.

Boeing 707? Nope. Just giant fins and an adjustable spoiler for the Daytona.

What's missing in this picture? It's a Cadillac, but gone is the famous V.

Cosmetic imagery: Clip hoodlatches are featured on hot Chevelle SS 396.

Dog missing?

Is your pet missing the extra vitamins and minerals that Perivnal provides? Sure you feed him well but just like some humans your dog may need additional supplement.

YOUTH NOTES

by Derek Norcross & Pamela Swift

Key Decision

Last month U.S. District Court Judge Thomas Masterson in Philadelphia ordered the U.S. Navy to discharge honorably as a conscientious objector a sailor named John W. Koster.

It was a vital decision, because Koster's conscientious objection to war was not based on religious feelings but on his own moral beliefs.

Judge Masterson's ruling said in effect that it was unconstitutional for the military to require any inductee to pass two tests, religion and sincerity, before granting him the status of conscientious objector.

In 1968, while stationed at the Philadelphia Naval base, Koster applied for C.O. status because of personal doubts about "the morality of participating in war." He was quickly sent to amphibious warfare training school in Virginia but carried his case to Masterson's court.

Whereupon Judge Masterson ruled: "A standard which exempts a religiously motivated conscientious objector from military service and denies the same relief to a person whose beliefs are just as sincere but which are not motivated by any relationship to any religion is Constitutionally defective..." He says further that the effect of his decision "is to leave as the sole ground for determination, the test of whether the applicant for a conscientious objector discharge is sincere in his objection to war in any form."

Last April one of the most respected federal judges, Chief U.S. District Judge Charles E. Wyzanski Jr. of Boston, handed down a similar decision.

Eventually the U.S. Supreme Court will have to decide whether a man can be classified as a conscientious objector on only religious grounds, a revision of the law which Gen. Lewis Hershey, director of Selective Service, got Congress to make in 1967.

Many legal authorities agree with Judges Masterson and Wyzanski that the present law requiring a religious base for conscientious objection is a violation of the First Amendment (establishment of religion) and the Fifth Amendment (guarantee of due process).

The Walt Disney Police

Tourists who visit Buenos Aires comment frequently on the number of young, handsome, smiling policemen they see on duty there.

Generally they remark that these Argentine patrolmen look more like college boys than cops.

They are.

In Argentina, as in Mexico and many other countries, young men have the option of serving one year in the police force instead of serving one year in the army under the draft.

The option has been in effect since 1950, with an average of 3000 conscripts per year choosing the police force. Although the official title of such police recruits is "agente conscripto," they are popularly known as the "Walt Disney Police."

The Walt Disneys are paid $114 a month, are assigned traffic and other unhazardous duty. Like all Argentine police, however, they must carry a gun at all times. When student riots take place in Buenos Aires, the Walt Disneys, many of them students themselves, are usually assigned elsewhere.

Since many of this nation's major cities are short of policemen, permitting draftees to choose police service instead of military service might not prove a bad alternative.

Psychology of Fear

At a base in West Germany 252 U.S. soldiers were read the following sentence:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

The GI's were not told that the sentence came from one of the great political documents of U.S. history, the Declaration of Independence. They were told merely to sign the statement if they agreed with it, not to sign it if they didn't.

Seventy-three percent refused to sign.

The Berkshire Country High School student union conducted a similar experiment in Pittsfield, Mass. The group circulated the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, explaining that they intended to submit it to Congress as a petition.

The First Amendment, of course, guarantees to all U.S. citizens freedom of religion, speech, press, peaceable assembly, and the right "to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

Of 1154 persons polled, only 4 percent recognized the First Amendment; 42 percent, however, agreed with the statement; 35 percent disagreed, and 23 percent refused to commit themselves.

Some of the comments of adults to the student pollsters: "People like you make me sick . . . I'll ask my husband . . . I'd punch you in the mouth but you're a girl . . . I never sign anything . . . I work for the federal government so I can't comment . . . No, the Constitution is all right the way it is . . . Children should be seen, not heard."

Guide to Living

Want to deal with the world, rather than have the world deal with you?

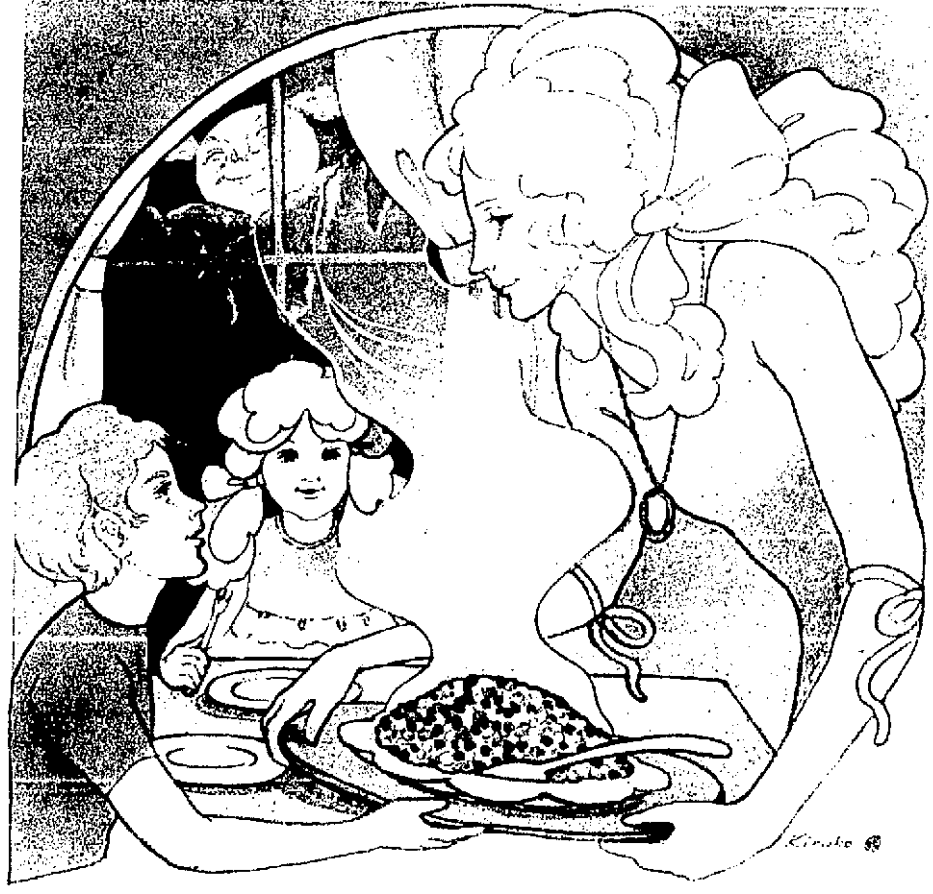

This is the idea behind a Sears, Roebuck-type catalog designed for living in this technological age. Entitled The Whole Earth Catalog, the publication stresses "the power of the individual to conduct his own education, find his own inspiration, shape his own environment, and share his adventure with whoever is interested. Tools that aid this process are sought and promoted by The Whole Earth Catalog."

The catalog, published by a group of youngsters in California, is divided into sections like "Shelter and Land, Industry and Craft, Understanding Whole Systems." It notes the best grade moccasins, lists how-to-do books, free magazines, unusual maps, survival methods, experimental schools. It is a catchall ranging from an exposition of glass-blowing techniques to self-hypnosis.

A subscription costs $8, which buys two catalogs, spring and fall, plus four supplements. Copies of the '69 catalog are available at $4 each from Whole Earth Catalog, 588 Santa Cruz Ave., Menlo Park, Calif., 94025.

Driving lesson starts: instructor Bob Bondurant explains principle of automobile clutch to his young student, Julie Burns.

The former racing car driver goes on to teach Julie the right way to grip the steering wheel, with thumbs around the spokes.

The Right Way to Teach Young Drivers

by Ken W. Purdy

How good are high school driver education courses?

Frederick McQuire of the University of California, after a seven-year study, came to the conclusion that driver education had no effect on accident frequency, accident severity or violation frequency. The California Motor Vehicle Department, in a separate study, came to the same conclusion.

Here in the United States we make more automobiles, sell more, use more and wreck more than any other nation, but we really know very little about driving them. At 60 miles an hour on the parkway, one wrist loosely draped over the top of the steering wheel, a cigarette in the other hand, the radio on full howl, we're O.K., but let something happen, a wet spot under a bridge, a drunk coming the wrong way, a crate falling off a truck in front—that's how we kill over 50,000 people a year, and that's how we've lost more Americans on the roads than we have in all the wars we've fought from 1776 to Vietnam. Because when he needs to know something more than how to steer in a straight line and stop at a red light, in emergency, the average U.S. driver puts the brake pedal to the floor, he locks his arms straight on the steering wheel and waits in terror for the crunch.

What would really good driver education be like? To find out, I went to Bob Bondurant's School of High Performance Driving, in Santa Ana, Calif.

A racing accident

Bob Bondurant was racing at Watkins Glen in June, 1967. Cresting a hill at 150 miles an hour, the car's steering-arm broke in two. The car left the road and hit something that ripped the underpan —the floor—completely out of it, and then it flipped end-for-end five times. Tightly belted into the car, Bondurant picked up a cut on his forehead and broke a couple of ribs, a cheap price to pay for a 150-mph crash. But every time the car flipped, centrifugal force threw his feet out against the ground with shattering force. He sustained multiple fractures in both feet, and his right heel was pounded into bits. Lying in a hospital in plaster casts for weeks afterward, he was little comforted when told what had happened. Driver-error, the cause of most racing accidents, had been no part of it. He hadn't made a mistake. The mandatory pre-race Magnaflux examination of the car had turned up a gross internal crack in the steering arm, and the race car had come back to the garage with bright red warning paint on the part. But someone had wiped it off, and the mechanics hadn't scrapped it for a new one.

Impatient to work

Bondurant had been a top-ranking driver, a long-time competitor with motorcycles, sports cars and grand prix single-seaters here and abroad. He drove on the Ford-Shelby team in Europe beginning in 1964, and helped win the World Manufacturer's Championship in 1965. But after Watkins Glen his doctors told him it would be a long time before he could drive in competition again, if ever. Bondurant wanted something to do while he waited to find out. Like most professionals, he had long felt that the standard of driving among "civilians," was deplorably low. He thought he could do something about that and in 1968 he opened the Bob Bondurant School of High Performance Driving. His first student was film actor Paul Newman. He has graduated more than 250 since, men, women, boys and girls.

"What we try to do," Bondurant says, "is make better drivers, not necessarily faster drivers. Basically, what we teach is car control. Anyone can control a car running down a straight road at 40 miles an hour. We try to teach our students to control the car all the time. The commonest phrase in accident reporting is 'Driver lost control of vehicle.' That shouldn't be. A competent driver can control the car in a skid, in a crash stop, or in a collision situation. We pick up where ordinary instruction leaves off."

PARADE asked Julie Burns to spend a day in the Bondurant School. Miss Burns, a college junior, the daughter of a Porsche and Mercedes-Benz dealer, had been through the California high school driver education course, plus a special course of individual instruction afterward. She's a pilot, too, with 125 hours of solo time in her logbook. She should be, and she is, a better-than average driver; but in less than five hours of instruction Bondurant made her at least twice as good as she had been.

"I never realized," she said afterward, "that there was so much to driving!"

Handling a curve

A Bondurant driving lesson begins at a blackboard. Here, for the first time in nine out of ten cases, the student learns what a curve in the road really is, learns that there is a right way and a right place to enter, go through it and leave it. He learns at what point braking is most effective and safest, where and how to accelerate. He learns why an automobile wants to behave as it does, the effectiveness of suspension systems, weight distribution, weight transfer. He learns why it is that if he does this, the automobile will do that. He learns that an automobile, like a stallion, can be provoked, and that if it's provoked enough, it will turn and kill him.

Bondurant uses Datsun and Javelin sedans, Datsun sports cars and Formula Vee race-cars for instruction. School instructors will teach on the student's own car if it meets their safety standards. Instruction starts at the bottom, literally. There is only one way to sit.

"All the way back," Bondurant told Julie Burns, "until you're hard up against the seat. You don't want to leave any sliding room. Then adjust the seat. You want to be able to put all the pedals all the way down without stretching.

"There's one right way to hold the steering wheel: like this, thumbs around the spokes. Going straight, like this, turning, this way, coming back... when you do it you'll see that you have maximum control in every position of the wheel . . . the gearshift. You never actually take hold of it, never grab it. You push it into forward positions, pull it into rear positions. Never close your hand. Like this."

Bondurant, unlike many people who do something well, knows how to teach. He is endlessly patient and very ingenious.

Because it's impossible to teach high-level or high-performance driving on a public road, Bondurant uses the Orange County International Circuit, a road course near Santa Ana. At first, the student sees nothing of the course but a wide straightaway. Here an oval has been laid out with rubber stanchions. This is the kindergarten and the instructor shows how it goes: around and around, accelerate, brake, shift, accelerate, brake, shift, brake, around and around, placing the car right next to the stanchions, within inches, far too close to them to see them, but never touching. Until the student can do this absolutely smoothly, he's going nowhere else.

"The big thing is to drive smoothly," Bondurant says, "smoothly and consistently. You have to learn to feel, to feel acceleration, and braking, and to feel the road through the steering wheel. That's one reason for keeping the thumbs hooked lightly around the spokes—to feel the vibrations that come up through the steering post from the road. A really good driver can sense a front-wheel skid almost before it starts, because the feel of the steering wheel will change."

Probably the most effective device Bondurant uses is a traffic-light setup he calls the Crashvoider, a modification of a system originated by another California ex-racing driver and teacher, Paul O'Shea. Three standard stoplights are hung at the end of a straightaway, each one over the entrance to a lane marked out with rubber stanchions. As the student's car starts down the straightaway,

A must: Bondurant insists that every student at his driving school goes through a blackboard lecture on fundamentals of car handling before even getting into an auto.

Here's a tough one: Bondurant sends student toward three green traffic lights. Suddenly they change to, say, red red green. Driver must adjust quickly without braking.

all the lights show green, but as his front wheels cross a line a short distance from the traffic lights, they interrupt an electric eye and the lights flash to a pattern pre-set on a control box held by the instructor, off to one side. If the lights go red-red-green the student must get into the green lane, without touching the brakes and without upsetting a stanchion. Even at the beginning speed, 30 mph, most students will hit the brakes and knock down stanchions the first four or five times through. After less than 15 runs, Bondurant had Julie Burns running into the lights at 45 mph, diving into the marked lane without braking or touching a stanchion, or stopping dead if all lights were red. His wife, Susan, in a Javelin she hadn't seen before, went through repeatedly at 45.

Brake into trouble

"This is a very valuable thing," Bondurant said. "Most drivers, when they seen an emergency dead ahead—a car crashing, a kid falling off a bike, someone squirting out of a side street—always react the same way, they hit the brakes, and nine times in ten they slide into trouble instantly. A driver who has had some training can get around an obstacle. It's hard to believe, but I can put a man through the lights 25 times and he'll be so quick, he'll have time to look and see if anything is alongside him before he cuts the wheel."

Bondurant has courses to fit various needs: a one-day car-familiarization course to teach a driver to understand and manage his own automobile; a one-day businessman's driving course, for salesmen and others who regularly do heavy mileages; a defensive driving course, two days, basic car control and emergency accident avoidance techniques; a high-performance course, three days of intensive work in all phases of sophisticated driving. Longest is the five-day competition course, meant for drivers who would like to race, or would like to find out if they could race. All these courses cost about $100 a day with the student's car, $125 with a school car.

Bondurant has a small staff of instructors, but he alone handled the school's four best-known graduates: Paul Newman, James Garner, Yves Montand and Bob Wagner. He taught Garner and Montand to drive for the film Grand Prix and Newman and Wagner for Winning. Each pair required a different technique, since Grand Prix concerned itself with road-racing in Formula 1 automobiles, and Winning was based on stock-car and Indianapolis racing.

Bondurant's effectiveness as a teacher is obvious in both films. I was in Europe when Grand Prix was being shot, and I heard professionals say that Garner could probably have got into a Formula 2 car, one class from the top, and done reasonably well, then and there. Newman, with less than two weeks of instruction, was able to turn a 143-mph lap at Indianapolis, touching 160 down the straights. A 143-mph average was good enough to win the race in 1963.

"Professionals, as a rule, are very safe on the street and the highway," Bondurant says, "because they're confident that they can stay away from trouble, avoid it, get out of dangerous situations."

Worth the cost

Should driver education be raised to the Bondurant level? Obviously.

Could it be done?

Yes. The cost would be great, but nothing like the economic loss of hundreds of millions of dollars in the deaths of 50,000 people a year and the injury of a million or more.

Remember: More than 50 percent of all parkway and freeway accidents are non-collision (one car). More than 31 percent of all fatal accidents are non-collision (one car). Those cars somehow get out of control. And 83 percent of all fatal accidents are attributed to improper driving, or to put it more nearly exactly, careless, non-professional driving. The professional, by the way, or the trained high-performance driver, doesn't drive when he's drinking. He knows too much for that.

Cabanas with a Flair

Today's the day Cabana bananas can help you create a great new after-meal meal. And tomorrow another. And the next day another. Pick your mood and there's a Cabana dessert recipe to match.

Feeling kind of . . . ahhh . . . romantic, maybe? Good time to come on with Cabanas Flambé. The complete recipe is right on this page. Mmmmmmm . . . Cabanas Flambé! When you add the Cognac and ignite, it's the signal for more than just good taste.

With Cabana there are dozens of exciting new ways to give somebody their just desserts. It's just up to you to take your pick.

But remember one thing. It's the quality of the banana that makes Cabana desserts extra delicious. Cabana is a special variety of banana grown for better flavor . . . sweeter taste. It's a firm, medium size banana with a thinner skin, to give you more edible fruit per pound.

Creamy Coffee Dessert

by Beth Merriman
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Macadamia nuts, natives of Hawaii, lend their delicate richness to this light and fluffy coffee mousse. You can find them at fancy food counters everywhere, but if your local supply is temporarily "out" and you can't wait to try the recipe, cashew nuts make a good substitute.

Coffee-Macadamia Mousse is a perfect ending for a company dinner. Start off with hot consommé or consommé Madrilene. For the main course, rack of lamb, mint sauce, whipped potatoes, green peas with tiny onions (frozen) and a tossed salad. Then bring on the mousse, garlanded with whipped cream, and strong, hot demitasse.

Macadamia Mousse

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold milk
½ cup milk, heated to boiling
4 teaspoons instant coffee
¼ cup boiling water
2 eggs
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup whipping cream
¾ cup macadamia nuts*
1½ cups ice cubes

Sprinkle gelatin over cold milk in blender container to soften. Add boiling milk. Cover and process at low speed until gelatin dissolves. Dissolve instant coffee in boiling water. Add eggs, sugar, salt and coffee to mixture in blender, cover; process at high speed. Remove cover; add whipping cream and nuts; whip mixture in the blender. Add ice cubes one at a time and continue to process until ice is melted. Turn into 4-cup mold; chill until firm, about 30 minutes. To serve, unmold; garnish with whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

*Cashews may be used if macadamia nuts are not available.

If you've been making pancakes with some other mix, stop and consider the picture below. It shows you pancakes that prize-winning bakers of Eugene, Oregon matched against New Bisquick.

Every time, the New Bisquick pancakes turned out lighter. (Even though the same amounts of batter were used.) That's because Bisquick uses a special lighter flour.

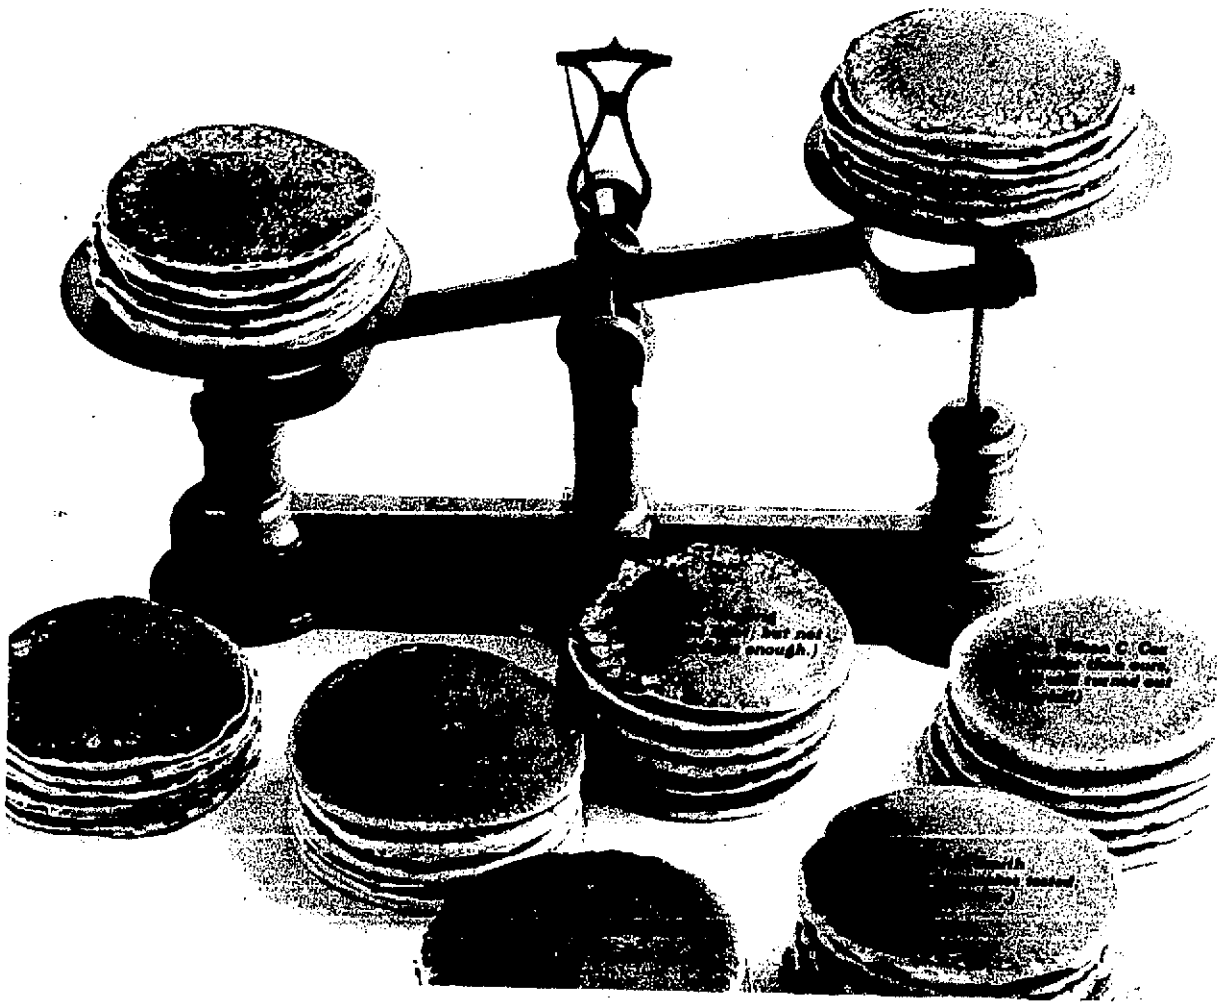

The New Bisquick pancakes also turned out fluffier—better eating—because they're made with a livelier leavening. And New Bisquick is even easier to use than most pancake mixes. The shortening has been added for you.

My Favorite Jokes

by Jack Carter

EDITOR'S NOTE: "Jack Carter" is all you need to say. Everybody knows he's in the first rank of working comedians today. He's almost as successful in his companion career as a comedy actor. Carter hails from Brooklyn, made his professional debut just after World War II, skipping over several lower rungs of the ladder with a part in Call Me Mister on Broadway. He was in on the early days of television and at one point his Jack Carter Show was top-rated. It's been almost a question of where he wanted to work: theater (Born Yesterday, Guys and Dolls, Hatful of Rain), TV series (roles on Combat, Batman, Ben Casey), TV variety hours (more than 50 appearances on Ed Sullivan!), nightclubs (New York's Royal Box, the Riviera in Vegas), or movies (his latest is MGM's The Extraordinary Seaman). Carter is the father of a son, a good golfer, lives in Los Angeles. Here are some of his favorites from his latest joke material:

A convict sits in his cell awaiting murder trial. In walks a well dressed lawyer. The lawyer says, "I'm the very best, you have nothing to worry about. I'm going to prove that you are completely insane or were in Europe at the time of the murder; also the witnesses are paid off and my uncle is the judge for your case. Meanwhile try to escape."

A man walking along the highway sees an Indian lying down with his ear to the ground. He goes over, and hears the Indian say, "Small wheels, Cadillac, color green, woman driving, two children in the back, a California license plate. The man says incredulously, "You mean to say you can tell all that by just putting your ear to the road?" The Indian says, "Ear, nothing; that car ran over me a half hour ago."

A man walks into a hotel and sees a woman in black sitting in a corner crying. "What's the matter?" he asks solicitously. "I'm going to miss him," she says and keeps on crying. The man asks who died. The woman says, "My husband. I knew he ran around, but I'm really going to miss him." The man asks: "When did he die?" Tomorrow morning," the woman replies.

The owner of a delicatessen was robbed so many times that he put a sign up in his shop: "Attention, crooks, we gave already."

The guy had a friend, another delicatessen owner, who had been robbed so many times, that he thought up a way to get even. He made one robber his partner.

"If he's my partner I can steal from him," explained the storekeeper.

A hippie added Platformate to LSD to get a longer trip.

A man went to a ranch to buy a horse, pointed at one and said, "My, that's a beautiful pony right there. What kind is it?"

"That's a Palomino," said the rancher.

"Well, any friend of yours is a friend of mine. I'd like to buy that pony," said the man.

The rancher replied: "I gotta tell you, sir, it was owned by a preacher man. If you want the horse to move, you say, 'Good Lord.' If you want the horse to stop, you gotta say 'Amen.' "

"Let me try that horse," said the buyer, mounted and said, "Good Lord."

The horse promptly moved out and was soon galloping up in the mountains. The man was yelling, "Good Lord, Good Lord," and the horse was really moving. Suddenly he was coming up to the end of the cliff and, panic-stricken, he yelled, "Whoa, whoa." That didn't work and then he remembered and said, "Amen."

The horse stopped right on the end of the cliff and, wiping his brow with relief, the man said, "Good Lord!"

New car insurance only $1.35

The first few miles of driving a new car may be the most fun for you. But they're the toughest for your engine. In fact, the first 1,000 miles probably produce more grinding friction and wear than the 10,000 miles that follow. Protect your investment by adding STP to the motor oil right from the start.

Youth serum

STP Oil Treatment is so rich and strong it won't drain off vital engine parts the way ordinary motor oil alone does. By keeping harmful friction and wear out, STP coverage keeps your engine's youthful spirit in . . . for years.

Race cars are new cars

Great race car drivers like Mario Andretti, Indy 500 winner, count on STP to help their cars run smoother, cooler, quieter, longer. And the engines powering their cars are newly-built before every race.

A good policy

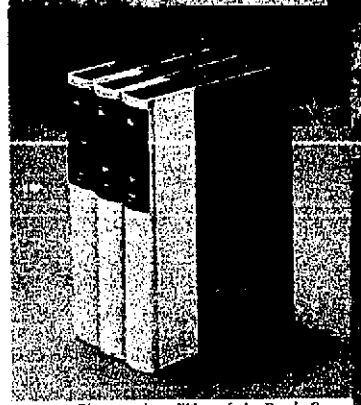

Don't let your new car get old before its time. Have your favorite gasoline station add STP to the oil from the very start. And keep up the policy throughout its long life.

For added coverage, use new STP Gasoline Treatment too. Cleans, protects and lubricates the upper cylinder area to keep new car power at its peak

LET ZANE GREY TAKE YOU OUT OF THE WORLD YOU'RE IN

Pick up a Zane Grey book and step into another world.

It's a world where the Plains Indians, the world's greatest horsemen, once more don their war paint to hunt scalps. And thin-lipped, soft-spoken men, squinting against the sun, carve out their destinies . . . on their own terms.

If this world is one you'd like to explore, we'll send you—for only $1—three of the greatest books Zane Grey ever wrote.

Riders of the Purple Sage, perhaps the most popular Western ever written. Against a background of fiery action, a mysterious rider and the girl he loves gamble their lives in the winning of the West.

Arizona Ames, the no-holds-barred epic of a hard-riding cowpuncher whose blazing six-shooter spread terror among the toughest badmen.

Wild Horse Mesa, a western "Moby Dick," that portrays a man's desperate search for the King of the Horses.

These handsome, hardbound books are clothed in sunset red, desert tan and cavalry blue, and stamped in genuine gold. They're the first of what could be a library of Western classics you'll be proud to own.

You may wonder why we offer you three Zane Grey books (which are regularly $10.17) for only $1.

It's simply this. We think you'll be impressed. And that you'll want to own others in the series as they become available.

They will include: Wildfire, The Thundering Herd, The Vanishing American, Fighting Caravans, The Hash Knife Outfit, Maverick Queen, Thunder Mountain, and many more.

Because we print in large quantities, and because we sell directly to the public, we can offer our subscribers beautifully bound Zane Grey books for only a fraction of what you'd expect to pay—only $3.39 plus a few cents shipping for each volume.

Send no money. Just mail coupon to get Riders of the Purple Sage, Arizona Ames, and Wild Horse Mesa—the whole shooting match—at the special introductory price of $1.

Please send me Riders of the Purple Sage, Arizona Ames, and Wild Horse Mesa.

If I don't want to keep these introductory volumes, I'll return them within a week and owe nothing. Otherwise, I'll pay just $1 for all three, plus shipping.

Also reserve for me additional beautifully-bound volumes in the Zane Grey Library, which I will be entitled to receive as they come from the presses.

I'll get advance descriptions of all future volumes. I may reject any books before or after I receive them. For those I do keep, I pay just $3.39 each plus shipping. And I may cancel my reservation any time. (Books shipped in U.S.A. only.)

WELLS REPORT

By Bob Wells

Act of Love

"Do not go in the direction of the Gentiles, nor enter the towns of Samaritans; but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. And as you go, preach the message, 'The kingdom of heaven is at hand!' Cure the sick, raise the dead, cleanse the lepers, cast out devils. Freely you have received, freely give. Do not keep gold, or silver, or money in your girdles, no wallet for your journey . . ."

— MATTHEW 10:7-10

Late in the afternoon, the lost sheep start moving along Atlantic Avenue toward 20th Street. Slowly, reluctantly they keep coming until almost 11 p.m. And inside the Long Beach Free Clinic at 2060 Atlantic, physicians, nurses, psychologists and social workers of assorted faiths work diligently to fulfill Jesus's ancient admonition — which in all probability they have never read.

So far, there is not much leprosy among the lost sheep. But there is cellulitis — the ugly, inflamed swellings that come when you shoot reds into the arm, miss the vein and leave the half-dissolved seconal to poison the muscle cells. There are gonorrhea and syphilis. There are abscessed teeth and respiratory diseases. There are the devils loosed by speed and LSD. There are the dead eyes of the hopeless 14-year-old, pregnant and abandoned.

No one in the Free Clinic would think of preaching, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand." Now and then, however, you can hear the stereo softly proclaiming that the Age of Aquarius is at hand.

The Long Beach Free Clinic offers medical treatment and counseling to anyone who comes in and asks for it. No establishing eligibility, no credit information, no moral lectures.

It is staffed by 75 professional people — doctors, nurses, dentists, social workers, psychiatrists, psychologists — who volunteer their time and skills. Other volunteers keep the place clean and operating. The administrator and assistant administrator get paid some weeks, if there's money in the till. Other weeks they don't.

The Free Clinic is just eight blocks south of Memorial Hospital and the complex of doctors' offices that has grown up around it. But the Free Clinic reaches a clientele that the hospital and traditional medical services couldn't reach in a million years. It treats 30 to 50 patients a day — hypes, hippies, pill droppers, winos, you name it.

The County Supervisors, who recently appropriated $18,500 for the clinic, think it's doing a job no other health agency can duplicate. So does Long Beach City Manager John Mansell, State Sen. Joseph Kennick and a number of Establishment-type business firms that have contributed money, materials, services and goodwill.

Others disagree. A. Ronald Button, prominent Los Angeles attorney, Republican political leader and slum landlord, evicted the Free Clinic from its first location on Gaviota. Joe Hood, chairman of the Long Beach Community Improvement League and the clinic's present landlord, is moving to evict it from its present quarters for "co-mingling," which apparently means having people spill over from the waiting room to the Atlantic Avenue sidewalk.

The Free Clinic, which needs larger quarters anyway, was negotiating with a large business chain to take over an unused store. But Councilman Emmet Sullivan made a phone call to the business firm and his phone call has apparently ended negotiations.

I sat in the Free Clinic one night recently at closing time. It had been another hard day and the staff was having coffee before going home. A skinny, long-haired youth, who couldn't have been more than 20, came in the door. He had the pink-rimmed watery eyes of the acid user.

"Do you need any help here at night?" he suggested.

"Sure," Ron Lofstrom, the clinic's capable young administrator said, and led the boy to the chief of volunteers. When I went to rinse out my coffee cup, I found the boy cheerfully at work sweeping out the back room.

I wondered when the last time was that A. Ronald Button or Emmet Sullivan swept somebody else's floor as an Act of Love. ■

JACK KIRSCHKE IN PRISON

by Ted Krec

Jack Kirschke still has the look of a prosecutor, and the gaze from the pale eyes never lets you go.

He's been imprisoned in Chino for a year now, waiting out an appeal on his conviction for the murders of his wife, Elaine, and Orville Drankhan — a crime that rocked the sophisticated Naples area of Long Beach in April, 1967.

A jury found Kirschke guilty after a marathon trial and he was sentenced to death, a sentence which later was commuted by the judge to life in prison.

I have known the former deputy district attorney and his family for more than 20 years, but it was with genuine trepidation that I went to Chino for an interview and visit. I didn't know what a year in prison on top of a year in county jail during arrest-trial proceedings had done to this once highly polished attorney.

The easiest way to get to Chino is to drop down on the prison community from Carbon Canyon, and the trip gets you in the right mood for the prison. The smog and heat creep down through the canyon, stifling whatever sounds there may be in the forests. Not even a locust sings. You have the feeling that you drive through a wall of flame momentarily, but then dramatically the hills play out, you run through a big field of corn — and you are at the gate of California Institution for Men, Chino.

It could be the entrance to a golf club for, aside from a sign, you would never know you are entering penal property.

There's a long, tree-shaded lane guaranteed to evoke nostalgia in anyone who's lived in the Midwest. But then you are at the gate house, and Guard Ezekiel (Zeke) Hernandez gets you in the mood for visiting a prisoner.

He's very kind, but most laconic. He'll tell you he once worked for Carnation but couldn't stand the corporate world. He'll tell you, also, that he wears no side arms because "Chino is a minimum security prison." But he won't say where the arms are stored or how fast he can get a gun!

Zeke's companion in the guard house is a convict named Leonard who quickly reminds you to visit the prison hobby-craft shop before you leave.

When pressed about his personal life, Len will tell you he "probably will have to leave next year." He tells you he is doing four years to life for "robbery two" — second-degree robbery.

Len says he was all alone, had no friends, no money and no place to go. So he walked into a store and said: "This is a holdup — give me your money!" He had no weapons — so he just sat down to wait for the police! He's sorry to be leaving Chino, but insists he's going into the produce business on the outside.

The visiting hours roll around and you walk into the compound. There are no bars at Chino, but there's plenty of wire, barbed and otherwise.

To your right, behind heavy swirls of barbed wire, is the building of the Southern Reception-Guidance Center where Kirschke is "doing his number." This is maximum security, defeating the aims of Chino's founders.

Because of California's indeterminate sentence laws, all prisoners from south of the Tehachapis come to Chino while awaiting classification and permanent quarters. North of the Tehachapis, they go to Vacaville.

It is in this modern, cold building that the former Los Angeles County prosecutor is marking time for the vital appeal which will send him either to San Quentin or back into society.

Meanwhile, he heads the fingerprint and identification setup at Chino.

Jack and I talked for more than an hour, and it was almost as if two business associates were meeting over lunch — except that there was no handshake. We talked by telephone through a thick pane of glass.

All the tales I had heard about prison life seemed to evaporate as I talked with him, for here was no shambles of a man, talking out of the side of his mouth in a hoarse whisper so "the screws" wouldn't hear him.

Kirschke looks fine — he's tanned, fit and immaculate in his prison blue denims. His expression is still saturnine, but he smiles easily and his conversation is astute and sparked with wit.

He saw me sitting in the interview booth and his face broke into a crooked grin as he raised his right hand in a "V" peace gesture, sliding onto the stool on his side of the glass.

We exchanged a few comments about family welfare and whereabouts, then I told him I'd like to know about the caste system in Chino.

"There isn't any," he said. "Everyone is treated the same. See that guy sitting in the next booth? He's a millionaire — yet he's treated the same as I am — we have the same number of towels, the same number of uniforms!"

What is the millionaire in for?

"We never know," Kirschke said. "All I know is that he's a blue-water sailor and we talk quite a bit about yachts."

How about the fact that while he was in Los Angeles County jail he used the library and received visitors in the lawyers' room?

This was a happenstance occasioned by his vocation, Kirschke says. He WAS a lawyer and he WAS assisting in his own defense. Therefore, he had every right to use the attorneys' room and the library.

"But do you mean to tell me," I persisted, "that you are regarded as a run-of-the-mill inmate here? How come you ended up as head of the fingerprint and identification section?"

"Convict is the word, not inmate," Kirschke said. "We have about 700 men in this institution, 650 of them waiting action and 50 of them more or less permanent and working. That's right, 50 out of 700 have jobs. I just happened to be sent here for a couple of years waiting my appeal, so they put me to work.

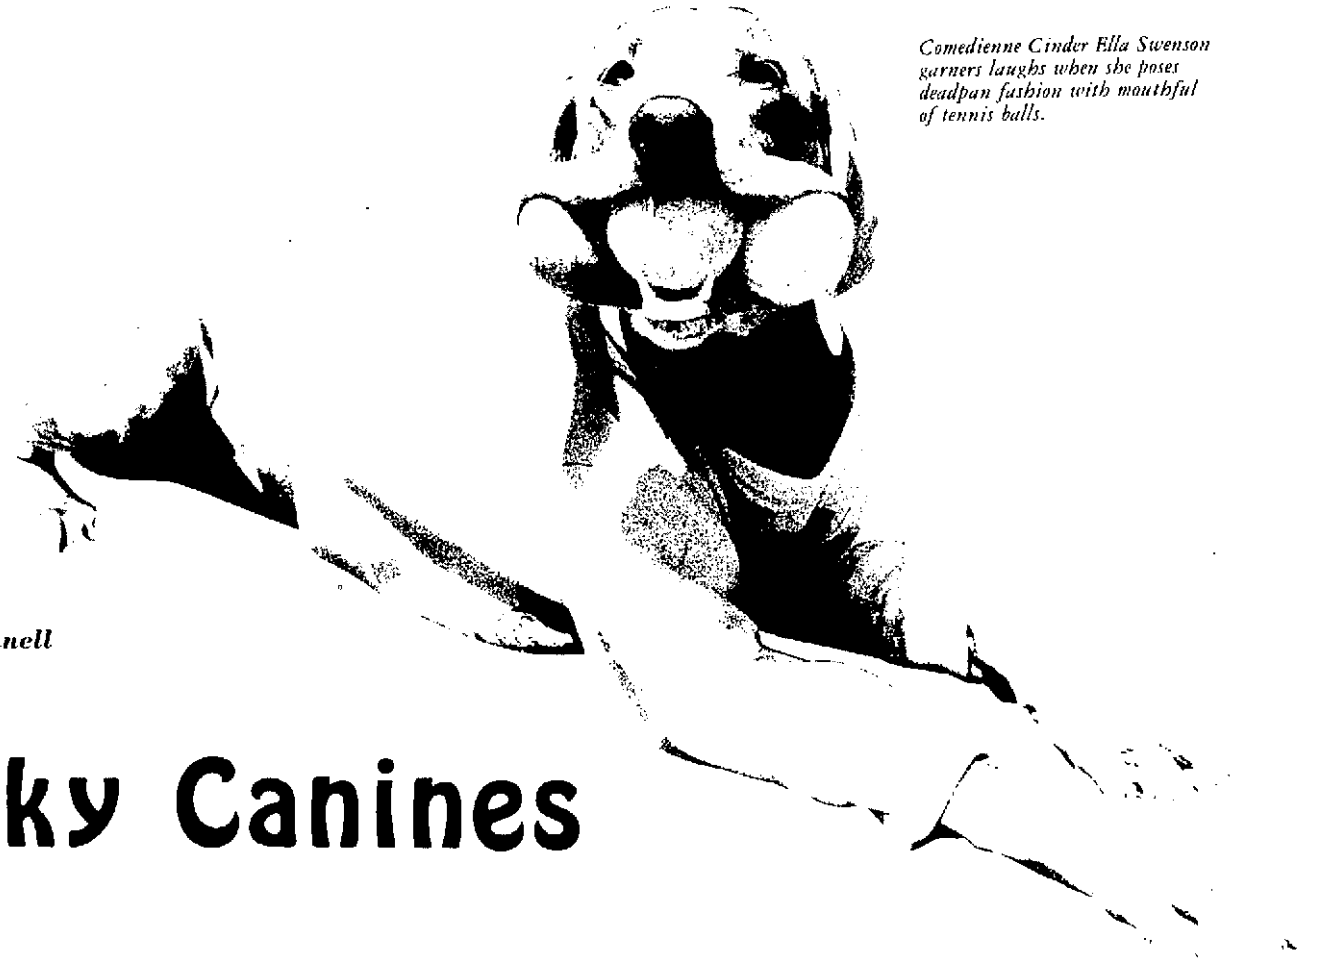

"But I'm not treated any differently from anyone else. I get up at 6:15 and have until 7 to get ready for breakfast. At 8 I start work and, except for lunch, go right on through until 4 p.m. Actually, the work day here ends at 4:30 and then there's supper at 5.

"The food? It's great! Then after supper, at 6 p.m., I'm free to go to the gym and play handball or work out — except for Fridays — we always have a movie. My time is my own until 11."

According to Kirschke, aside from the fact there are roll checks at 6:30 and 11:30 a.m., 4:30, 9 and 11 p.m., his life in Chino is "a microcosm of outside!"

"I'm even taking a course in celestial navigation," Jack said, "just as if I were outside and going to city college."

Comedienne Cinder Ella Swenson garners laughs when she poses deadpan fashion with mouthful of tennis balls.

By Pat McDonnell

Kooky Canines

Prankster Hank Scott has given up watering down the kitchen with a garden hose, now goes for solitary dips in family pool.

There are as many kooky canines in our community as there are eccentrics of the two-legged variety. That doesn't mean the nutty mutts aren't loving and loyal, they're simply mischievous, individualistic and sometimes peculiar — just like people.

Of the dogs we've met (and some are even pedigreed), a few are obedience school dropouts, some go in for vandalism, at least one likes to hitchhike, others are dipsomaniacs, several are compulsive eaters and one is a lecherous old man (dog).

In fact, name a human peculiarity or trait and there's a pooch somewhere who fits the mold:

Take Skipper, Mrs. Elmer Hall's black and tan hound. He's been trained to track down bear and mountain lions, but he'd rather drop in on the neighbors and watch television with the kids.

Mrs. Hall makes a nightly check on her Oleta Avenue block to find where Skipper is visiting and viewing.

When it come to pranks, 9-month-old Hank Scott is unexcelled. Early in his puppyhood, the Labrador retriever developed a fascination for the garden hose when water was running through it.

The Norman Scotts, 4444 Graywood Ave., thought it amusing, but promptly changed their attitude when Hank started, hose-in-month, loping rhrough his doggie door to water down the kitchen.

Hank avoided an early watery grave by forsaking the hose in favor of solitary dips in the family pool. So enthusiastic is he about aquatic sports, the retriever noses a plastic ball into the water, jumps in, cavorts with it and emerges by climbing the pool ladder.

The same wanderlust that spurred Marco Polo, Christopher Columbus and Dr. Livingston is shared by Howard Wishney, 3, a mixed beagle and Labrador retriever who makes his home with the Bernie Wishneys, 5231 El Cedral.

It's not that Howard isn't contented, it's just that he feels there's a lot in this world he's not seeing in Park Estates.

The Wishneys decided their errant rover must thumb rides considering the amount of time it takes him to reach his favorite haunts.

"Within 15 minutes after we discover he's missing, we receive a phone call that Howard is alive and well in Santa Ana, Redondo Beach or Santa Fe Springs," Mrs. Wishney said.

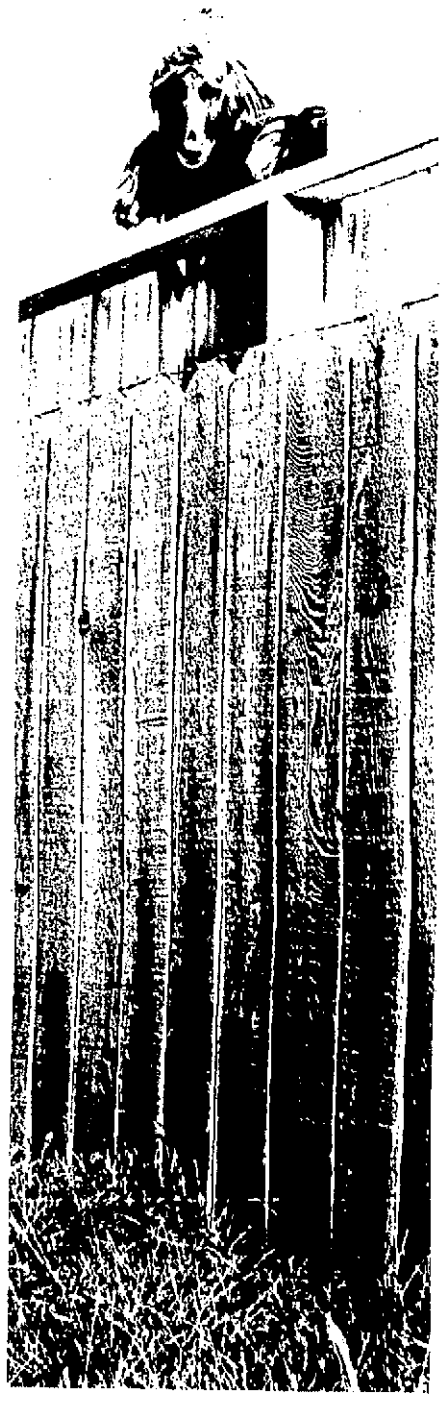

"Howard's not a very polite hitch-hiker," she confided. "Once he's in a car, he'll jump out if the window is open. If you roll it up, he gets sick."

Old age hasn't prevented Sparky Skidmore (whose 16 years are roughly equivalent to 90 human years) from performing astounding feats of romantic prowess.

Under normal circumstances, Sparky has difficulty walking because of an arthritic condition. But ler a female scent waft through the air and a Destructive Baron Buchanan covers antics with beguiling yawn when caught snacking on couches, davenports, loveseats and sofas.

Busy-body Gunner Madison keeps tabs on neighbors by scrambling atop seven-foot fence to snoop on backyard activities next door.

Wanderlust Howard Wishney is inveterate traveler, hitchhikes to far corners of Los Angeles County.

dangerous glint comes into his misting eyes.

Fearful that he may someday lose his head over the ladies, the Charles Skidmores call at appointed homes to retrieve the satyr of Andrews Drive — reputed to have fathered more than half the pupulation of Bixby Knolls.

Alas, Sparky's mixed parentage has not endeared him to owners of registered breeds. Nor is he popular with the U.S. Postal Service. During his heyday in the late 1950s, Sparky also manifested his masculinity by attacking the mailman — a habit that forced the Skidmores to claim their mail at the post office for one year.

Benjie Kayajanian, 6, of 238 Termino Ave., is a Cocoa Crispies addict.

The 6-year-old toy poodle started over-indulging in the sugar-coated cereal at an early age. Through sheer willpower he has managed to control his habit except at breakfast time.

At sun-up Benjie rushes to the kitchen, noses open the cupboard and helps himself to a ration of crispies. The Harry Kayajanians have tried to take Benjie off the yummies, but his yapping-yipping withdrawal symptoms always break down their resistance.

One fellow who's gnawing his way up in the world is a sofa-eating Dalmatian named Baron Buchanan, who, at the age of 14 months, has consumed an arm of a davenport, the back of a velvet loveseat and a sofa bed mattress stored in the garage of the B. J. Buchanan home, 3915 Bouton Drive.

Kooky Canines

Baron is moving on to a more ambitious project, the foundation of the house. He keeps in condition by chewing rocks. When caught in the act of devouring furniture, Baron attempts to divert reprovals by smiling broadly.

Gretchen Somerville, a petite 9-year-old Schnauzer, is quietly polite when friends call on the Ely Somervilles, 1105 Andrews Drive. The paragon of good behavior allows everyone time to become involved in conversation before she retires to the out-of-bounds master bedroom to perform an unpardonable act.

She rejoins the group innocently enough, but evidence of her transgression always leads to her disgrace.

Gretchen's sin?

Wiping her greasy whiskers on the brocade bedspread.

Neighbors of Gunner Madison, 5080 Bentree Circle, can't make a move without the inquisitive Afghan hound knowing about it.

The seven-foot fence intended to keep him within backyard bounds doesn't prevent Gunner from peeking over it, Kilroy fashion, whenever he hears unfamiliar voices next door.

An instinct for roaming sometimes gets the better of the 6-year-old hound, well-known by dog-catchers. His most shameful escapade was when he terrorized a little old lady in North Long Beach for more than three hours. Gunner hadn't intended to frighten her but, after he became tangled up in her rose bushes, he set up such a din the woman was afraid to leave her home until police carried him away to the dog pound.

Julie Rickter, 5, has a reputation for being a leg-biter, but when she sinks her canines into a victim, she wags her tail the whole time.

The cleaning woman has devised a ruse to foil the feisty schnauzer who delights in sitting atop unmade beds and barking a challenge to be removed:

Cleaning woman rings the door bell, waits until Julie trots to the door, then she runs to the bedroom to do her work.

The Jack Hansteins, 1081 Claiborne Drive, have been mystified for months over what drives Tom, their silver miniature poodle, to chew and scratch out a 5-by-6-inch square in a custom shag rug in their family room.

The Hansteins keep a wary eye on Tom, but given any amount of time unobserved, the single-minded pooch will obliterate the same section. The hole has been carefully repaired with matching fabric seven times.

Cinder Ella Swenson, a 75-pound Weimaraner who aspires to be a lap dog, favors guests by climbing into their laps — a disconcerting action for people who must peek around her while conversing with the Paul Swensons of Garden Grove.

Strangers often register alarm when they observe the pony-size pooch reclining in a rocking chair with three tennis balls in her mouth . . . looking all the world like a giant manta ray.

A born comedienne, Cinder maintains a deadly serious expression even when appearing ridiculous in her favorite costume — a child's Snoopy sweatshirt inscribed "Happiness is sharing your doghouse with someone."

When she goes for a spin in the family Fiat, Cinder sits upright in the passenger's seat and peers soulfully into passing cars. If onlookers laugh at her, she barks back.

If championships were based on personality, Clyde Krec of 7841 Ring St., would have a monopoly on blue ribbons and trophies.

The 4-year-old Beagle is a whiskey-drinking, tree-climbing, cactus-haring hound who suffers from larangytis, dotes on his pet turtle, has a thing about figs and often climbs a small rubber tree to snooze after munching on its fig-like fruit.

His genius for dispensing with unpleasant objects is unparalleled. When a cactus became a thorn in his side, he buried it.

The spiny succulent had been planted in Clyde's favorite resting place. For three days, he silently and diligently dug a hole beside the offensive plant until he undermined it and promptly covered all evidence of its existence with dirt.

Summing it up, Long Beach veterinarian Stewart Hughes comments:

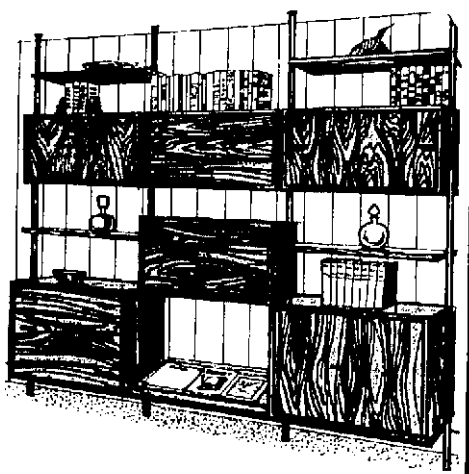

"It's not the dogs who have neurotic habits — it's the people who own them." ■

The creche: oldest Christmas tradition

This is the time of year when letters pour in from do-it-yourselfers asking for outdoor Christmas displays. Their favorite this year, as always, is the creche.

How did the custom of the creche begin? In all probability it owes its origin to the morality plays of the 13th century to bring Christmas closer to the people.

The scene pictured is something any amateur can make in a few hours. It's two-thirds life-size (camels are over five feet tall). The figures come to you printed in rich, vibrant colors. All you need to is glue the pictures on plywood, then saw them out. They are then ready to go on display.

The pictures are waterproof (like billboards) and may be used outdoors year after year in all kinds of weather. It's a project that the entire family, especially the youngsters, can help with.

To obtain complete set of nativity scene pictures No. C-7 shown here, send $7.50 (add $2.00 extra if airmail is desired) by currency, check or money order to: Steve Ellingson, Southland Living Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, California 91409.

Send stamped, addressed envelope for free folder picturing our complete assortment of outdoor Christmas displays.

YOU TOO CAN HAVE A PERFECT FIGURE FOR FALL

(Advertisement)

The ideally proportioned figure thought only to exist in sculptures created by master artists can be yours. The ageless image of a youthful, lithe body can be yours through the means of relaxing passive program of perfecting the figure. This process, achieved without rigid diet, without medication or without disrobing, has transformed the lives of over five million women internationally. Nothing can equal the self-assurance of knowing yours is the perfect figure — so unrevealing in composition and movement not even your most discerning critic can guess how old you really are. Yours can be the eternally ageless look which turns the heads of college men and graying executives alike. The mystery and charm of the mature woman will still be yours coupled with the aura of an ideal figure free of tell-tale flabby excess flesh or dowager's hump that announce the year you were born.

PICTURE OF BEAUTY

This is a program based upon stimulating circulation and toning tissues as they were intended. Suddenly, your posture will be enhanced, friends will comment over your stance and carriage in response to your improved posture — a condition so necessary to your being the picture of beauty inside as well as out.

Within 10 days you will notice results if you follow a routine of inexpensive half-hour treatments conducted in restful, beautifully appointed surroundings offering the ultimate in privacy. You will see upper arms and thighs firm, your abdomen diminish, curves appear which you had forgotten you possessed.

NEVER EQUALLED

Your transformation will be carried out by a program and computerized equipment often copied but never equalled for achieving lasting results. All the while you are secure in the knowledge your reducing process is carried out by scientific equipment which is the end-product of many years research and investment of hundreds of thousands of dollars and the only complete program in the world which eliminates the guesswork in figure correction. You will rest in complete confidence as a computerized unit silently concentrates on fatty tissue, muscle toning, circulation, posture correction AND those dormant muscles which haven't performed for months, years — perhaps never.

INDIVIDUALLY PROGRAMMED

Best of all, your figure problems will be studied and programmed individually to correct YOUR specific needs as no two women are alike. A confidential dossier of your weight and measurements will be prepared under the direction of the only internationally recognized reducing authority in the world with more than 18 years in figure perfection.

GUARANTEED RESULTS

You will be assured of no involvement with here-today, gone-tomorrow reducing companies. Yours will be a personalized program guaranteeing a perfect figure based upon your bone structure. You are invited to have a free figure analysis and trial treatment without obligation. Guaranteed results.

FIRM PERFECT FIGURE

This revolutionary principle of figure perfection is rational, simple and safe. It produces results without risk or disappointment. More important, you can retain your firm, perfect figure knowing full well this new you is what you always should have been. Women in their 60s and 70s now are enjoying the fruits of this program.

A special incentive for you to reduce for fall!

October 5, 1969

*Dear (Miss or Mrs.)*_____
(Write in Your Name)

Do you feel your figure problems are next to hopeless? Are you convinced reducing will work for everyone else — but not for you?

Have you told yourself that you are too old or too young, too flabby . . . that being overweight runs in your family . . . that you're waited too long?

If so, lose any such ideas. There are NO impossible reducing problems. There are only unique, special excuses for why you are overweight.

This letter can start you on your way to a perfect figure. Here is a special incentive offer — valued at $20 — you may use it to start reducing NOW so that you can enjoy Fall and the Holidays with a new perfect figure.

Yes, you too can reduce quickly and easily in complete privacy — without strenuous exercise, without disrobing, without starvation diets as over 5,000,000 women have with our program.

Don't lose time; just lose pounds. This $20 offer — good this week only — can be applied to the cost of your figure correction.

Pat Walker

MISS PAT WALKER
The Reducing Authority International

This letter invites you to come in or call for a courtesy treatment and figure analysis without obligation and from the analysis we will tell you where you are going to lose, how long it will take and based upon $2.00 per treatment we will tell you exactly how many treatments you need and the exact cost of your figure correction. It will then be your decision whether you reduce professionally with us or not, and if you should so decide, the above letter is worth $20.00 to you to be applied to your personalized figure correction program.

For your FREE trial treatment and figure analysis without obligation, come in or phone to reserve your appointment. Hours are 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday; Saturday 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Read What These Reducing Critics Say About Pat Walker

— Mrs. Antoinette M. Balon, Lakewood

I had a figure problem that required more than just a reduction in calories. While dining out, a lady in the next booth overheard me talking about reducing. She told us she was a patron of Pat Walker's and highly recommended the computerized program.

Now, after reducing with the Pat Walker Program, I too feel the results are most gratifying in the interest of good health and also because attractive clothes are found in the smaller sizes.

— Mrs. Jeanette Ottwell, Orange County

The day I discovered Pat Walker was the beginning of my life.

When at 18, I was married, I wore a size 20. Eventually I became a 227 pound size 24½. With Pat Walker's Program I have reduced to a size 14 and am still going down.

I get so many compliments now and the surprised look on friends and relatives faces that I haven't seen for a long time is worth every hour I spent.

My husband and children are as proud of the new me as I am.

— Mrs. Edith Miller, Long Beach

I weighed 201 pounds and wore a size 24½. I was disgusted with dieting. I couldn't find anything in my size that looked nice. My husband suggested I try Pat Walker. Her program has done wonders for me. I have reduced to a size 14 and am still going down.

I feel like a new person and my family tell me I look wonderful. To reduce I say, "Go see Pat Walker."

— Mrs. Mary Shaver, Beverly Hills

Mrs. Shaver, with the Pat Walker Program, reduced from a size 16 to a perfect size 10.

Mrs. Shaver found the treatments relaxing and her tissues are firmer. Her family is delighted with the results and her friends tell her she looks wonderful after reducing.

— Penny Sugg, Sydney, Australia

My manager, Reg Goldsworth, and my director, Eddie Davis, advised me to take my big tubby self down to Pat Walker's.

I realized deep down inside that this weight must go, otherwise there would be no more opportunities for me in acting. With the Pat Walker Program I reduced 38 inches over all.

We are now on our second movie called "Colour Mr. Dead" and I am very happy when Eddie Davis moves me into a certain camera angle and says, "You stand here skinny."

ART SPEAKS A COMMON LANGUAGE

"Boy With Bird" was carved from a solid block of wood.

IRON CURTAIN or no Iron Curtain, native art treasures from Communist-infiltrated Poland are now available right here in Long Beach.

Through a unique international import network called Cepelia Corporation, the art objects were brought to the West Coast by Holladay International, a wholesale-to-the-public showroom at 3214 Willow St.

"Ten million Polish-Americans and Senator Muskie are the reasons for America's breakthrough in Polish imports," said Josef E. Dobrowolski, Cepelia's executive vice president, here for a recent open house at the Holladay showroom.

Poland's exports to American total $100 million each year and include everything from food, steel and rubber to linen, vodka and fine arts.

America reciprocates by selling the Poles wheat, machinery and raw materials in excess of $100 million.

"This exchange with an Iron curtain nation," says Dobrowolski, "is made possible through a 'most favored nations policy,' which allows Poland and Yugoslavia (the only Communist-dominated countries involved) to enjoy the same duty as favored countries."

Dobrowolski explains his firm as "the central union of industry, people, crafts and arts."

The all-inclusive corporation maintains its own school in Poland to prevent the folk art from falling into extinction in today's mechanized society.

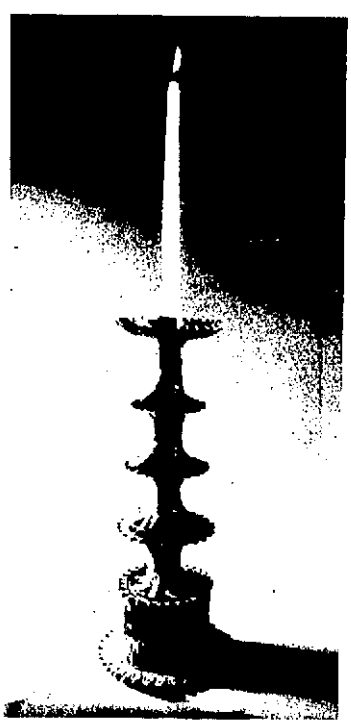

The school administration is apolitical with no governmental ties. Forty talented children, at age 10, are taken into the school each year and are instructed in the folklore arts and crafts.

No machines are allowed to intrude. Artists develop beautifully carved wood figures of museum quality, also paper cutouts for which tradition requires foot-long shears be used in creating the lace-like decorations.

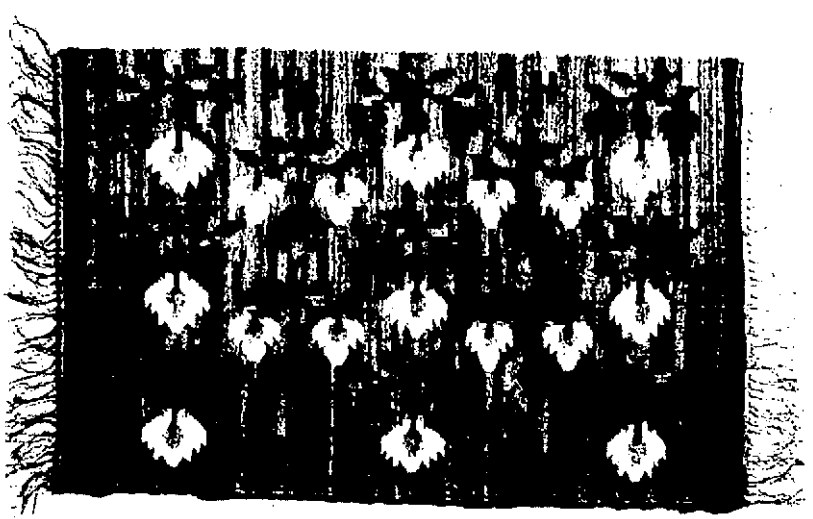

Superb kilims are hand-loomed at the school founded by noted Polish actress Madame Helena Modjeska. The skilled weavers create the tapestries from a world-wide art education. The more sophisticated contemporary hangings from the Polish People's Republic have been on exhibition at the Los Angeles Museum of Science and Industry.

Among Poland's imported native crafts are hand-carved chess men, delicately carved toys with religious overtones, whimsical dolls, classic braid copied from folk dancers' costumes and decorative boxes.

Ruffs of delicate Merletto-lace trim from native Sardinian costumes are design inspiration for Emilia Palomba's ceramic candlestick.

Native weavers still use ancient up-and-down weaving method to give texture to museum quality tapestries developed in Poland.

From the Sant'Efisio festival comes the ceramic copy of the traditional flower-trimmed bull by Emilia Palomba.

The Holladays are sincerely interested in native art from many nations and have uncovered and developed some of the most unusual talent from smaller countries.

An example is the elegant, talented Emilia Palomba, discovered by the Holladays when she was studying in Rome. She has since returned to her native Sardinia where she designs sophisticated replicas of native art.

Her merletto-trimmed bowls are inspired by the lace bride's costume of Olina. The women of Cagliari are faithfully reproduced in haunting foot-high figurines.

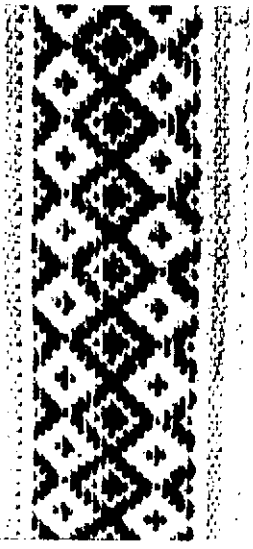

Throughout Miss Palomba's art is a semi-religious theme based on the Sant'Efisio festival where flower-studded animals and costumed riders create a spectacle without equal.

More Holladay International imports are the Sardinian Asphodel baskets of such classic shapes they frequently are used as architectural devices in home furnishing.

Apres-ski clothes of reversible sheepskin, boots, embroidered costumes, museum type silver buckles and leather-trimmed decanters are other items representative of the Holladay's apolitical world of art. ■

Emilia Palomba translates color and country into Sardinian ceramic figurine "Woman of Cagliari." Fluid body lines flow into classic posture of hooded dancer.

Traditional designs and native colors are faithfully interpreted in braid copied from Polish folk dancer's costume.

Keep Up The Good Fight

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Waggoner deny they're "good fighters," but proved to be good actors for our camera, manned by staff photographer Curt Johnson.

Since marriage consists of a man and a woman, its chances of survival are never good. But these chances can be enhanced if the couple whoops it up with some lively arguments.

That is the thesis of The Intimate Enemy, a relentlessly clever book by California psychologist George R. Bach and Peter Wyden, executive editor of Ladies Home Journal.

The authors believe true intimacy can thrive in healthy men and women only if they fight. Fight-evaders who "play games" with each other (and who make up most of humanity) just aren't emotionally involved with their partners, says Dr. Bach. Such couples risk boredom, infidelity and divorce because "the pain of conflict is the price of enduring love. People simply cannot release their love feelings unless they have learned to manage their hate."

The book derives from Dr. Bach's experiences of fighting with his own wife and from his work with 250 couples in 13 "fight training sessions." He claims 85 per cent of his patients are "now living more satisfying (if perhaps noisier) lives" than before becoming trained in "constructive aggression."

Dr. Bach notes that intimates who do fight tend to become embroiled in free-for-all battles. "Such untrained fights can be very dangerous indeed," he warns.

It's perfectly all right to hit your spouse over the head if you are fair about it. He lists several styles of unfair fighting:

The "Pearl Harbor" is a surprise attack.

The "Vesuvius" is an adult temper tantrum.

"Gunny-sacking" is hoarding grievances which "make a terrible mess when the sack finally bursts."

"Going below the belt" is violation of recognized taboos.

"Carom-fighting" is attacking something important to the spouse, his religion, for example, instead of hitting at the real target.

These maneuvers are all off-limits. But constructive verbal conflicts are constructive and highly desirable, says Dr. Bach.

"We have discovered that the couples who fight together stay together — if they learn to fight right."

BRAHMS DOUBLE CONCERTO — Isaac Stern, Leonard Rose, Mozart-Sinfonia Concertante, Walter Trampler (Columbia). A new pairing of these previously recorded performances. The Brahms (with Ormandy and Philadelphia Orchestra) is one of the three or four finest ever made, in terms of sound, balance and overall musicality. The Mozart (with Stern conducting the London Symphony while playing) ranks with the better versions of recent years, though Trampler's dry-ish tone is a far cry from the vitality of a Primrose, or, for that matter, his partner, Stern.

ARTHUR GRUMIAUX Mozart Violin Concertos, No. 1, K. 207 & No. 4, K. 218, with Colin Davis, London Symphony (Philips). The Grumiaux disc output this year is prodigious, and this one is about the most satisfying of a scintillating collection. The famous No. 4 is perhaps the most difficult to communicate of the 8 violin concertos variously attributed to Mozart, and in the hands of Grumiaux, it fairly bubbles and dances. No. 1 is a less inspired work, but the Finale is a delight. The cadenzas written by the Belgian star are tastefully conceived. Highly recommended!

CARUSO Immortal Performances 1904-1906 (RCA-Victrola). The first American recordings of the nonpareil tenor. Sixteen familiar operatic arias transferred to a single LP disc in which the surface noise has been reduced to an amazing degree. Even under primitive engineering conditions, some of Caruso's vocalistics were incredible in sound. A budget-priced archeological gem!

EYES OF BLUE — In Fields of Ardath (Mercury). This excellent 'Welsh-flavored' rock quintet boasts a style of its own and variety galore. Merry Go Round from the film, Toy Grabbers, tops a crop of 11. An overt snippet from Tchaikovsky pops up in Door (The Child That Is Born On The Sabbath Day), but this inventive group is one of the most satisfying around.

JOHNNY CASH AT SAN QUENTIN (Columbia). Johnny has a 'big one' here. The opus, San Quentin, is as provocative a piece on the subject of penology as has been put in 'pop' form. Starkville City Jail and Wreck of the Old 97 are also winners. And the 'live' background voices and sounds are most convincing.

AN AMERICAN IN PARIS Porgy and Bess — Ormandy & The Philadelphia Orchestra (Columbia). Two classics of melodic, rhythmatic Americana, superbly played. And Robert Russell Bennett's skillful instrumental arrangements almost succeed in making the listener forget that Porgy is performed without the singers.

SHEL SILVERSTEIN — Boy Named Sue (RCA). Of all things — a Jewish hillbilly! Shel fractures the Nashville image with a voice and delivery that recall the frothy shenanigans of Andy Devine. Twelve songs, his own concoctions, are hilarious and cleverly written. Whether or not you cotton to the Country idiom, you will enjoy this.

THE IRISH ROVERS — Tales To Warm Your Mind (Decca). Here come the leprechauns. This male quintet from Northern Ireland brogues up such oldies as The Stolen Child, Oh You Mucky Kid and Our Little Boy Blue, along with some modern folk-style goodies, 11 total. Among others, Pigs Can't Flyl. A real "charmer."

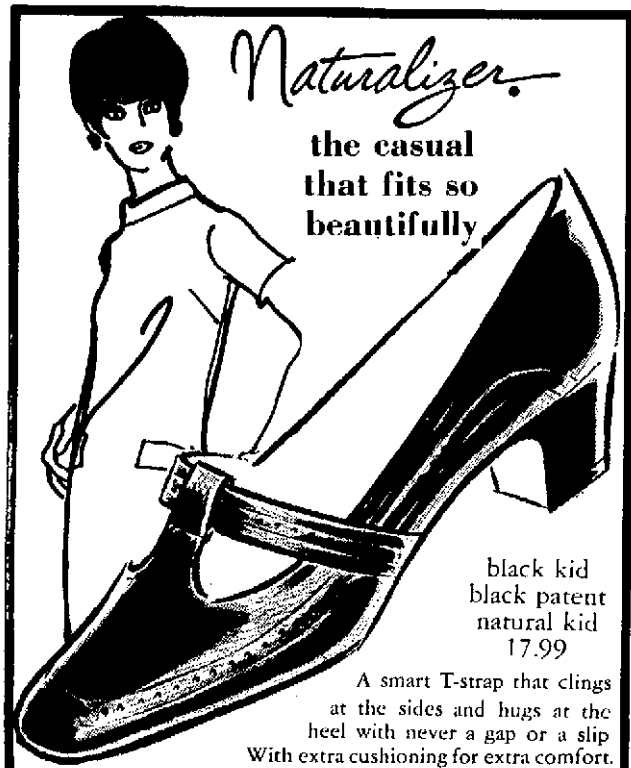

THE PRINCE OF PEACE — The Sounds of Synanon and Synanon Choir (Epic). A rock-jazz Cantata about the birth of Christ, adapted from the Bible, written and directed by Greg Dykes. The marriage of pop sounds with religious messages has become a fascinating new field for experimentation, and Dykes' is one of the better efforts on wax. The 35 singers and 39-piece orchestra turn in a fine job, topped by Esther Phillips' soul-chortlings in the finale, I Will Greatly Rejoice.

NINA SIMONE — To Love Somebody (RCA). Nina is still queen of the soul-singers, and this is a prime disc. In fact, her presence is so commanding that the ludicrous panegyrics on the liner notes are superfluous. Her rich contralto is most convincing in the more gospel-oriented tunes, rather than in the talky, lyric-dominated material. Nine provocative songs are sparked by I Shall Be Released and Just Like Tom Thumb's Blues.

BARBRA STREISAND What About Today? (Columbia). Streisand is certainly a leading candidate for pop songstress of the decade, and this one presents her exciting incantations at their best. Her 11 tunes are topped by Honey Pie, a cute take-off on the silent-screen era; the sophisticated What About Today? and Alfie, sung with rare intimacy. Brava, Barbra!

PEGGY LEE — A Natural Woman (Capitol). And Peggy Lee is a natural singer whose sparkling simplicity of delivery is the essential secret of her success. Supported by the bouncy arrangements of Mike Melvoin and Bobby Bryant, Peggy's latest is a beauty that reminds us once again that she ranks high among the elite pop warblers of our time. Topping her 11 are Everyday People, I Think It's Gonna Rain Today and the title song.

ELI RADISH — I Didn't Raise My Boy to be a Soldier (Capitol). Runs the gamut of war songs from the title tune to Ballad of the Green Berets, Over There and When Johnny Comes Marching Home. A country-style quintet whose gender cannot be positively determined from the jacket cover photo (no names are given). A bit original in the sense that these are given hillbilly treatment with country-fiddle doodlings, plus an occasional touch of barroom rhythm. Not bad, if you can dig this sort of a combination.

The l-o-n-g lean look

It's the L-words that reflect what's happening to the feminine silhouette this fall — words like long, lean, lanky, lithe liquid, lax, limpid, languorous.

With an updated razzle-dazzle as reminiscent of the 20s as Long Beach's historic Pike, the 1969 stretched-out image comes on strong.

Look for long-line tunics. Easy, long-line pants. Long-pull sweaters. Dropped waistlines and low-slung belts. Limpid little long-sleeved dresses falling lightly on the body. Loose hems, liquid in motion.

Reach for long scarfs with long fringe. Swing a strappy long, lean leather bag from your shoulder. Toss long strands of pearls around your neck — in every length from bustline to waistline and, for kicks, almost to the hemline. Go in for long vests, long jackets, longer knee boots, long sleeves on long dresses, short dresses — keep stretching — elongating — extending the extension.

The long line is THE look for fall — string it out for all it's worth!

Fall's long, lanky look — a throwback to the 20s — is nostalgic as distorted mirrors in Crazy Maze at Queen's Park (formerly Nu-Pike)

Long-pull sweater vest gives stretched-out look to tweed skirt, turtleneck sweater (above) and cardigan-style sweater (below) achieves same effect with pants. All styles from Buffums'.

THE PIKE TO GO ROYAL

By Bill Duncan

From the first the Long Beach waterfront has been a site for fun and gaiety. This old picture, furnished by Margaret Tadlock of Crestline, bears no date. The clothing indicates it was made early in this century. Note the famed Cyclone Racer, which then rolled out over the ocean.

When the Queen Mary tied up to Pier E, Saturday, Dec. 9, 1967, crewman Bill Croxton rushed ashore to soak up as much of Long Beach as he could in his short shore leave before flying back to England. As with most sailors, Croxton's sight-seeing ended inside the carnival atmosphere of the Nu-Pike. In a chance conversation with an American, Croxton learned, to his utter amazement, that the Queen Mary, in her final resting place, would face on the Pike.

"I knew it," he said in his thick Liverpool waterfront cockney, "I knew the bloody Yanks would put the ol' Mary in a flaming sideshow."

Croxton mumbled more unprintable dialogue about the fate of the Queen and walked toward the nearest flashing neon cocktail glass where he literally crawled inside and drank to the demise of the Mary.

Queen Mary's magic is soon to change old Pike's "carny" atmosphere into a Tivoli Gardens.

The Queen Mary and the Nu-Pike are about as compatible as Buckingham Palace and Soho Square — both in London, but culturally as far apart as the earth is from the moon.

It is true that the Queen Mary, where she will be finally berthed at Pier J, will be only a Queen's Bridge apart and in full view of the Pike.

But what Croxton and many other skeptics don't seem to realize is the magic of the Mary. This mystic of the sea is about to transform the ugly duckling of Long Beach's shoreline from the gaudy carnival world into a Tivoli Gardens — a whole new amusement park that, when finished, will be done in the royal taste of the famous century-old Copenhagen amusement center. The Pike, to say so tritely, will be "fit for a Queen."

In fact, the transformation has already begun on a small scale. The Nu-Pike is no longer the Nu-Pike, nor the old Pike nor any of the dozens of names the 65-year-old amusement center has been called during its lifetime. It is now Queen's Park — a name picked especially for the Queen Mary image.

Can the Pike live up to such a name?

"Yes," claims Russell F. Priebe, president of the park's parent company, the Long Beach Amusement Co. "We are developing a new park on the style of Tivoli Gardens to fit into the Queen Mary image. The only difference is that we will still remain basically a thrill ride park."

The change, he said, is going to be in the design of the park itself. The full plans are not ready to be made public; however, briefly the elaborate plan calls for:

- A three-tier park with 20 or more thrill rides on the top layer. The tiers will be circular in design, with the top layer of the fun cake on the same level as Ocean Boulevard.
- The middle layer will be ringed with fancy restaurants, smart souvenir and gift shops and the center will be more rides and entertainment features.
- The bottom layer will be a maintenance area for all the various rides, plus parking.

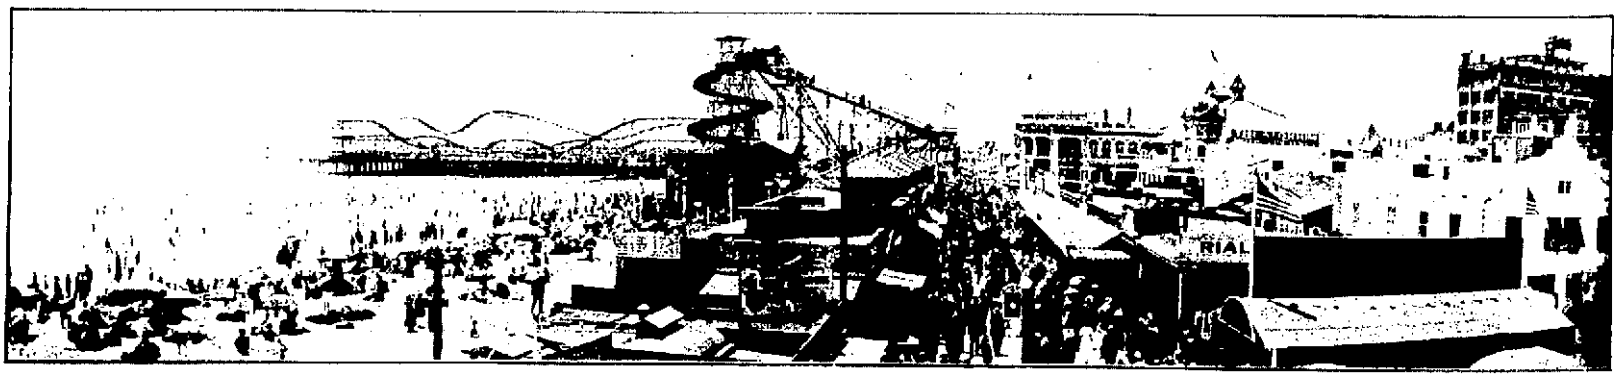

The entire theme of the new park will be international, based on Long Beach's title as the International City. Inside the pancake will be a European section, an Oriental section and a Latin Quarter for international shopping tours and gourmet dining. In one restaurant Yorkshire pudding from such famous eating places as London's Cheshire Cheese will be served and, in others, French food, Spanish food, Chinese food, Mexican food and so on through the international menu.

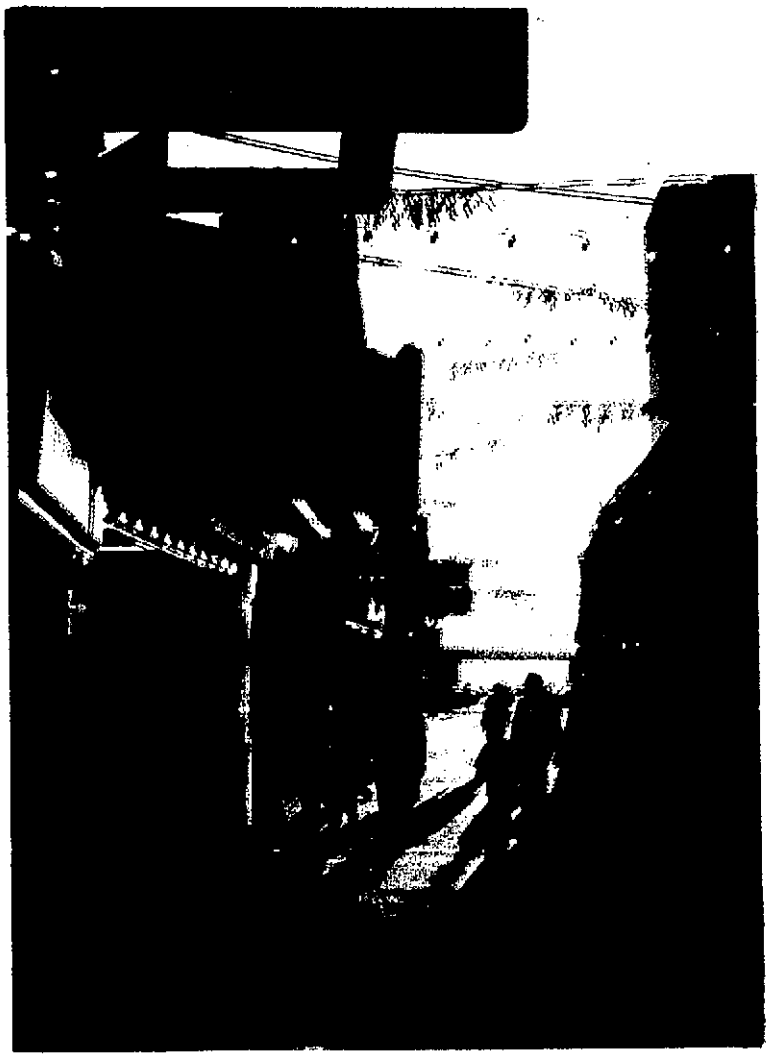

Each area will be landscaped according to the "country" it represents.

Although patterned on the scale of Tivoli Gardens, the new Queen's Park will be a modern version of the tight, 20-acre fun village located in the center of Copenhagen. The Denmark amusement center opened in 1843 and today is a paradise of beautiful gardens built around a small lake. It is famous not only as an amusement center, but for its many terraced restaurants, sidewalk cafes and unusual landscaping.

The beauty of the proposed park will take the edge off the thrill ride concept. However, thrill rides have made the Pike famous in the past and will remain a part of the new park.

Lone figures stroll through an area of the old Nu-Pike. The place still attracts many visitors, but the "carny" atmosphere is not as attractive as it once was and soon will be transformed into a setting fit for a queen.

Thrill rides were the most prominent feature of the old Nu-Pike and will continue to be a major attraction in the new Queen's Park, but will emphasize modern elegance.

The Royal Cyclone, "the world's highest, fastest, steepest ride," replaces the old Cyclone Racer which brought thrills to millions. The venerable wooden structure was torn down to make way for roller coaster in the contemporary style.

The great indoors.

Inside your home is one of the few places your family can inhale clean, cool, healthy air with the impurities filtered out. Provided, of course, your home is air conditioned.

It isn't? Is it the cost that's holding you back? Costs a lot less than you think—if you go electric.

Electric air conditioning saves you money right from the start. You save up to 50% on installation cost. And you can't beat electric air conditioning for smooth, dependable, maintenance-free operation. Plus it takes less space. Performs silently. Operates economically.

Perhaps air conditioning can be added to your existing heating system to cut costs even more.

The cost may be financed—just like any other home improvement.

In Edison service territory, 9 out of 10 fully air conditioned homes have electric air conditioning.

If you want to breathe easier too, and if you're an Edison customer, call us. Your phone book lists our local office.

THE pike

The epitome of the thrill rides was the old Cyclone Racer roller coaster, and, until it recently came down like a circus tent, it gave the Pike one of the longest, largest and most thrilling rides in the world.

But the old, tired timber roller coaster had the image of the carnival Pike era, along with the fat lady, the stoneman, the steady hum of the tatroo needle and the rancid odor of greasy hamburgers on the grill. The new owners want to get away from that image.

The Pike, they are quick to point out, didn't always have the carny atmosphere. It opened in 1903 as a swimming and recreation area known as the Long Beach Plunge. It was part of the Virginia Hotel beach front and catered mostly to tourists. It changed names many times over the years, but a name given it in 1906, the Pike, stuck. It was named the Pike to describe the wooden boardwalk traversing the area.

The Pike slowly emerged from the merry-go-round class into a full-blown carnival. Queen's Park is already having trouble living down the name and the reputation that went with it, despite an aggressive advertising and public relations attempt.

Using showmanship learned from the carnival era, Queen's Park launched the new name campaign with downfall of the Cyclone Racer. "We did such a good job," explained Chuck Davis, the park's public relations man, "we almost killed the park along with the roller coaster."

Ask most inlanders about Queen's Park and they give you a blank stare. But mention the Pike and they know exactly where it is located.

"We have a year's head start on the opening of the Queen Mary," Davis said. "By the time, everyone will associate Queen's Park with the Queen Mary."

What is worrying the park more than the name change is the Pike next door. Not all the area known as the "Pike" is part of the new image.

THE pike

The Fat Lady does a bit of hula in this long-ago scene at the Nu-Pike. The old-time carnival spirit still persists in part of the shorefront, but Queen's Park will be entertainment of a different kind.

Two young sailors study designs for tattoos they will get. Generations of men wear on their arms mementoes of their visit to the Nu-Pike.

A stepsister area, known locally as the City Block, likes the carny image and apparently intends to hold on to it, Queen Mary be damned. The "Block" has some 40 tenants who lease facilities from private owners. This group of fun merchants clings to the sideshow and sidewalk carnival pitchmen of yesteryear.

There are those who defend the carny atmosphere of the Pike and claim it is just as important a "museum piece" of America as the Queen Mary is to those who want to peek at past British luxury travel.

The Long Beach Amusement Co., faced with the lady gorilla and the Chamber of Horrors next door, has put up a spite fence 16 feet high between the two properties. It has also painted the sidewalk area inside the Queen's Park green as a distinguishing mark and has painted a yellow line across Seaside Walk — the main midway street — as a line of demarcation. And just to make sure patrons know when they are entering and leaving Queen's Park, multi-colored metal posts, three feet high, stretch across the midway between the two properties.

Even the trash cans are different. Queen's Park has elephants standing on tiptoe with open snouts to receive trash while plain old wire baskets and barrels are on the other side. Employes of the Queen's Park wear bright blue uniforms with a golden "Q" emblazoned on the breast pocket.

This east-west zone problem could prove to be a real feud when the Queen's Park begins converting from a carnival midway into a three-layered fun cake, but Priebe and the Long Beach Amusement Co. are hoping the City of Long Beach will include the "other Pike" in its urban renewal of Long Beach's shoreline.

The city is conducting an independent study of the whole waterfront downtown area before deciding on what action to take.

"Most of the plans we have now are awaiting a decision by the city to go ahead with the second shoreline urban renewal project," Priebe said. "But don't get the idea that Queen's Park conversion hinges on the city's action. Regardless of what the city decides, we are going ahead with our plans. You might call it a self-urban renewal program."

Long Beach Amusement Co. has already built two high-rise buildings along Ocean Boulevard at a cost of $11.5 million, and, as part of the Queen's Park new look, has plans to develop four more high-rise buildings in the same vicinity.

Priebe believes the new Queen's Park could become a star in the Queen Mary's shoreline crown. And his Long Beach Amusement Co. is willing to gamble on that theory — with millions of dollars.

Some people, even within the city structure, thought the Queen Mary would spell doom to the Pike area.

"We are not going to close down," Priebe said. "We've been here for 65 years and we plan to be here a lot longer. We are properly zoned. We own the land and there is no reason why we shouldn't become an integral part of Long Beach's Queen Mary image."

The Long Beach Amusement Co., he said, has already shown good faith by its actions to change the park's image.

"We want Queen's Park to become a staging area for the Queen Mary," he said. "We've planned the parking. We've designed the park and we believe in the future."

Based on city studies, Priebe sees the Queen Mary drawing a million and a half out-of-state visitors to Long Beach. He's betting that most will want to see Queen's Park as well as the Queen Mary.

The park now has 15 acres of land between Pine and Cedar avenues. It has 20 major thrill rides, 10 children's rides, 3 restaurants, 2 arcades and 2 souvenir shops — and a naughty neighbor next door.

It is, according to Priebe, the only admission-free park on the West Coast and one of the oldest in continual existence in the United States. Crowds, whether generated by the Queen Mary or not, are nothing new to the Pike. ■

Linda Goodman's Sun Signs

If you were born approximately between September 24 and October 23 inclusive, the Sun was in the zone of the Zodiac called Libra, the Scales, and Libra is your "Sun sign."

Noted astrologer Linda Goodman explores the signs of the Zodiac and tells you what to expect from people born under the various signs and how to deal with them. Her articles will help you better to understand your husband, wife, lover or child through astrology. This article deals with the traits of Libra people.

Watch for Miss Goodman's next article, which will deal with Scorpio people, those born between October 24 and November 22 inclusive.

LIBRA THE SCALES

September 24th through October 23rd

How to Recognize Libra

Librans love people, but they hate large crowds. They're good-natured and pleasant, but they can also be sulky, and they balk at taking orders.

Librans are extremely intelligent. At the same time, they're incredibly naive and gullible. They'll talk your ear off, yet they're wonderfully good listeners. Librans are restless people. But they seldom rush or hurry.

There's a frustrating inconsistency to this Sun sign that puzzles the Librans themselves as much as it does others.

Did you ever watch the balancing process on a pair of old-fashioned pharmaceutical scales? Up and down, and they dip until there's perfect balance.

Never again will you have a mental picture of a Libran as a calm, perfectly balanced, sweet, gracious and charming individual. You'll have a mental picture of a person who has that kind of disposition half the time.

The other half of the time, Libra can be annoying, quarrelsome, stubborn, restless, depressed and confused. Libra is first up, then down. Suddenly, like the scales — perfect balance!

There's no such thing as a typical Libra feature; unless it's the Venus dimple. There will usually be a couple in the cheeks or one in the chin. If they're not in the face, you might check to see if the knees are dimpled.

After you've ruled the Venus dimples in or out, notice the entire effect of the face. It will always wear a markedly pleasant expression. Venus voices are typically sweet and clear as a bell, and these people seldom raise them to a shrill or bellowing pitch.

The women are almost invariably pretty, and the men are usually handsome. My own secret way to recognize them is to begin by thinking about the sweet expression of Brigitte Bardot, and then go on from there.

The Sun sign itself is known as Lazy Libra, and that's another inconsistency. For weeks, Librans can be too busy to play. Suddenly, they'll plop down into a chair and give the best imitation of laziness you've ever seen. After a period they'll feel a spurt of energy, get up, and start chugging down the track again.

An instinct for sanity keeps most Librans mentally healthy and physically fit. The biggest threat to their health is over indulgence of some kind. Ulcers beset many a Libran, not from worry as much as from abuse of the digestive system.

Very few Librans are markedly eccentric or show-offs. They're normally scrupulously honest in business deals, and there's very little carelessness about them.

Most Librans have a fantastic ability to concentrate and to ponder deep subjects. They are born with an affection for books.

They love the harmony of sound, colors, poetry and the proper use of words, both written and spoken.

The seasons hold Libra's secret. Winter is too cold for him. Summer is too hot. He must blend them both into a perfect fall and spring.

The Libra Man

You'll get plenty of free advice from the Libra man. He'll have the perfect solution to all your problems and an answer for every question you ask.

I must warn you that once you're caught and enmeshed in the Libran charm, it won't be easy to break away. Trying to escape from a bear trap is a cinch, compared to liberating yourself from a Libran man.

The word love and the word Libra are practically synonymous. Libra invented romance, and refined it to an art with even more finesse than Leo, Scorpio and Taurus.

He won't lose interest in the opposite sex until he's at least ninety. It may be purely an academic interest if he's happily married, but the subject will never bore him.

Since the art of love-making comes so easily to the Libra male, he gets tangled up with a lot of clinging vines. He hates to hurt anyone's feelings, though he remains blissfully unaware of the damage done when he's in an argumentative mood. He hates to say no, and seldom realizes that postponement is more unkind than an outright break of an affair which has no chance of happiness.

The children will always benefit from his sense of fairness. He'll make sure the biggest youngsters don't take advantage of the baby, or the youngest doesn't break the oldest's bicycle spokes.

One final word of astrological advice. If you're in love with a Libra man, and you're sure it's meant to be, go right ahead and propose whatever it is you want to propose. He'll be relieved that you took the initiative. But watch out for that perverse streak which causes him to let you decide, and then when it doesn't work out, cheerfully point out that "You made the decision, I didn't."

The Libra Child

The most important lesson in raising a Libra child is never give him a choice. He hates to make a decision.

If there's anything a Libran child hates worse than making up his mind, it's having to make up his mind in a hurry. Don't rush him.

Libra children whose parents have confused their delicate balance by constantly insisting that they decide things too fast often grow up with quite a neurosis about choices.

Garish, clashing tones will keep the Libra child's emotional scales dipping back and forth. All shades of blue and pastels will quiet him. Play music — but softly — when you want him to eat, get dressed or pick up his toys. If the sounds and colors around the Libran child are discordant, his actions will match.

Being forced to be a witness to any kind of violence can destroy something deep inside him forever. Even as an infant, he'll jerk or tremble if he hears a sudden noise. The Libra child needs peace, quiet and rest in large doses.

The Libra Woman

The Libra woman may be as dainty as a fluffy, white bunny and she may whisper with gentle persuasion. She can dress in silks and lace, and her hair can smell of fragrant cologne.

But with all her femininity this girl wears a pair of trousers with surprising ease, and they'll fit her rather neatly. Her mental processes operate with male logic.

Most Libra women will air their clever wits any time a subject appears with the slightest possibility of debate. Through it all, however, you'll probably be drowning in her charm. She'll convince you with pure clear logic.

Aside from the typical Libra penchant for weighing everything twice to make sure she didn't miss a point, she can be quite a lot of woman for a man who's interested in romance or companionship or both.

Most Venus girls work both before and after marriage. They seek cash for the lovely things it can buy. But there's another reason she works, another reason she wants money. Her man. If there's one thing a Libra female treasures above all else on this temporal earth, it's the man she's chosen to love, honor and manage.

She hates to play solitaire. Partnerships, in both business and romance, constitute her deepest need. She doesn't like to work alone, and she's literally incapable of living alone.

The typical Libra woman has no desire to be a stone around her husband's neck. She simply wants to remove all the stones in his path.

The average Libra female is highly intellectual and has amazing powers of analysis, which can be a real help in solving your business problems.

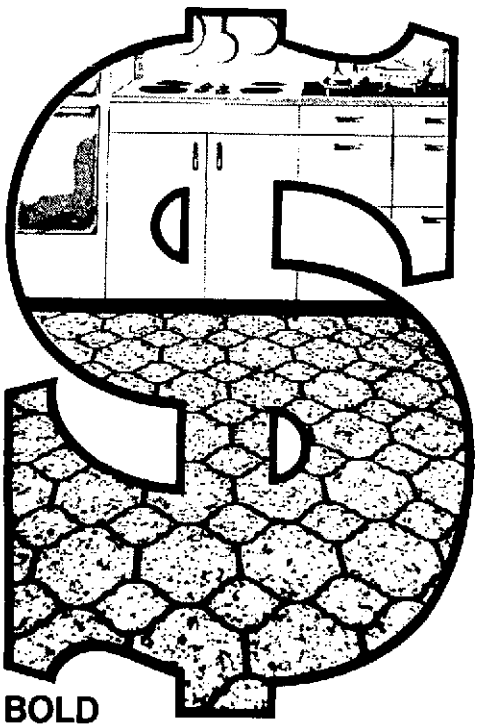

You probably won't complain of lack of physical proof of her love, because she's as sentimental as old lace, and as affectionate as a woman has any right to be.

Your home may look like one of those magazine ads for wall-to-wall carpeting. The colors will harmonize, and the furniture will be in good taste.

This woman is both tough and soft at the same time, and it's not every female who can manage that delicate balancing act.

Women in trousers are all right, as long as they have enough sense to wear frilly organdy to parties and slinky silk in privacy. She does. One of her most valuable assets is her ability to hide her sharp, keen mind behind utter femininity.

JACK KIRSCHKE

Kirschke pointed out that the convicts going through Chino are "mostly kids" and are given every opportunity to get their high school diplomas.

"Homosexuality? Sure we have it — the same as you do outside," said Kirschke. "But most of the guys try to steer clear of the 'sissies.'"

He says there are three troublesome characters in the prison world — the snitch (informer), sissy (homosexual) and dingey (psycho).

Kirschke looks content — his face is unlined and he says he is physically fit and "sleeps like a baby."

'The fact that Jack has adjusted so well may mean he is beyond retrieving as a member of free society.'

But is it as simple as this?

"NO!" says Tom Schulster, progressive young San Francisco architect who is serving as a consultant on the Ford Foundation's prison study team.

"Actually it's very complex, and the fact that Jack has adjusted so well into the scheme of things may mean he is beyond retrieving as a member of free society. He may be ruined already," says the architect.

The bulk of Schulster's work has centered around the maximum security prison of Folsom, where all the "real baddies" are sent. Here, he points out, there definitely is a caste system in the cell blocks. For example, the murderer or armed robber — any practitioner of the "manly arts" — is high in the importance order, while an embezzler, rapist or child molester is very low in the social order — so low, in fact, he may be subject to homosexual rape or death at the hands of his fellow prisoners.

"Also," Schulster points out, "the physical aspects enter into the pecking order of a prison society. The big, rough, tough convict is going to command a spot near the head of the group, while the shy, soft-spoken con will be so low in the order that he may be doomed."

The architect pointed out that at Folsom, because of the physical structure of the plant, status is derived by a convict having a cell in the original cell block or having a job. The original cell block was carved out of a cliff and has steel doors instead of bars — insuring privacy. Also, the old cells are a mite larger. That's status. Then, there are 2,300 inmates at Folsom and 600 jobs — so having a job is status. There are rewards for good behavior.

Meanwhile, the 1,700 non-working convicts loll around the exercise yard, the architect says, but "snap to with the damndest military precision you have ever seen" when a whistle sounds.

"Some people become dependent upon this way of life," Schulster says. "They get so that they can't make it on the outside, thus accounting for the 55 per cent national prison recidivism rate (recidivism is the returning of convicts to the life of crime after release from prison, and their subsequent return to penal institutions.) When the first prison was built in this country, back in colonial days, the recidivism rate was 55 per cent. Today, a couple hundred years later, the rate is still 55 per cent — so we haven't gained a damned inch!"

The Bay City architect was critical of the Reagan administration and its slashing of funds for state institutions.

"The governor asked for a report on empty beds," he said. "When he saw there were some empty beds in state hospitals, mental institutions and prisons, he cut off the funding for these places. God knows that any institution will not have 100 per cent occupancy 100 per cent of the time — so what this amounts to is that a 17-year-old first offender can be given a bed in Folsom (because it's empty) where he's at the mercy of veteran, hardened convicts. This automatically puts the boy beyond redemption!"

Lt. Charles Conaway of the Orange County Sheriff's Department is a jailer at Orange County Jail. He's surprised the recidivism rate is only 55 per cent nationwide.

"I really don't think they're considering the guys who get out of jail in California, then go back to Iowa and get in prison," Chuck Conaway said. "But the point is, here is where they all start out — at the county jail level. We don't have too much of this caste system because most of our people are transitory in a county jail operation. The longest sentence they get is a year, and most of them are in and out during arrest-trial procedures. But it's heinous. For example, we have 650 prisoners in our men's jail. Maybe 130 of them are serving sentences up to a year and are trusties, working in the kitchen, laundry or commissary. The rest of them just sit in their tanks and go out in the exercise yard once or maybe twice a day. There is no productivity and no lasting, worthwhile endeavor except for the trusties. Guess you could call them the elite!"

A more reflective view of prison society is offered by Harold Bradley, state parole administrator who spends most of his time around the Norco institution outside Corona.

Bradley, a veteran of 19 years in the world of prisons, is an associate of architect Schulster on the Ford Foundation project, but he takes a less inflammatory view.

"I think Kirschke is right," says Bradley. "I think the business of the caste system in prisons is overdone. Certainly, because of their roles, some convicts are regarded as having 'boss' status or high position, but most of what you hear about castes in prison, I feel, is strictly 'Warner Brothers backlot starring James Cagney.'

"Quite frankly, I've been in the business almost 20 years, I've seen and heard almost everything and I'd be hard put to remember a James Cagney jailboss character. I think the military has a far more extensive caste system than prisons."

Bradley's position that the role people play in prisons determine status more than an actual physical stratification echoes Kirschke's statement that all you have to do is "do your own number."

'Some have found a home they never had. Others escape from society.'

And regarding the convict who doesn't want to leave prison — who may even commit a deliberate, stupid crime upon his discharge so he can get back in — Bradley says:

"Yes, I've known quite a few. Some of them have found a home they never had.

Others, instead of escaping from prison, escape from society. Like the little man you met at the Chino gate — he may have been kidding you, but I'd guess he's for real — and he never should have been sent to prison to begin with!"

Bradley says he's one of the few people in California prison circles who feels "there must be a better way than locking people up in cages."

And there may be merit in what he says — with a 55 per cent recidivism rate for the past 200 years, we haven't done so well.

Chino is a far cry from a stinking, sweaty jail tank.

Meanwhile the terror tales continue: a young first offender victimized in a homosexual gang rape at the hands of his fellow prisoners; a society matron molested in an Illinois jail tank. You've heard them all. And do the victims feel resentment toward their fellow prisoners in the silent society? No — they direct their resentment against the society which put them in the vulnerable position; they wait only to get out so they can commit further depredations to seek revenge.

But Chino is a far cry from a stinking, sweaty jail tank with its potpourri of personalities.

The streets are wide and tree lined, and no one raises his voice. The little man in blue denims who patrols the sidewalks sweeping up cigarette butts speaks so softly you can hardly hear him. He could be a recruit at Ft. MacArthur.

Constructed in the early 1940s, Chino is a monument to its first warden who fought to keep stone walls from encircling the grounds. He wanted a "prison without bars" to experiment with the basic goodness in every man — the honor in his soul.

But today Chino is more than the California Institution for Men. It's a complex of prisons — and the Southern Reception-Guidance Center is, of necessity, a maximum security prison, albeit a transitory center, for convicts who are "just passing through." About 35,000 a year, Kirschke says. And just down the road is the Southern Conservation Center, where they house less dangerous prisoners who do a variety of forest conservation and agriculture jobs.

So maybe Kirschke is right — maybe, because of the transitory nature of the institution, no caste system has a chance to form.

"Everything I own is in myself," says Jack Kirschke in his cool, deliberate voice. "I am relieved of a great diversity of things."

He looks just like the Jack Kirschke I knew for 20 years — the Jack Kirschke of the strong jaw, the lean, fit body and jaunty, super-sophisticated manner.

But maybe, as Sehulster says in his Ford Foundation research, maybe Jack doesn't even realize he has slipped into a key role of the society of silence, doesn't realize that he is beyond retrieving for a free society.

Such a thing is possible, according to the experts — a man can be a living "picture of Dorian Gray" and come unglued when again subjected to the pressures of the free world outside the well-regulated prison society. ■

Medicine and You

By Ben Zinser

A Philadelphia psychiatrist reports a promising approach in the treatment of insomnia.

Dr. John Paul Brady, professor of psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, administers the drug sodium methohexital as a part of his treatment.

Aim of the treatment technique is to develop mental cues to induce sleep.

Here's how the technique works:

The patient is told to pretend he is attempting to fall asleep and to concentrate on a relaxed state. As he does, he receives a slow intravenous injection of the drug. Drowsiness occurs, then sleep.

The procedure is repeated several times during each treatment session. Each successive time, however, a smaller amount of the drug is injected. After 10 to 15 rehearsals, no drug is used; the patient himself produces the symptoms of relaxation and drowsiness.

The technique is technically "behavior therapy," and its use with the drug methohexital was described at a meeting of the American Psychiatric Association.

The antibiotic chloramphenicol is under fire again.

Despite repeated warnings about its dangers, widespread prescription continues. The compound can sometimes cause aplastic anemia, a frequently fatal blood disease.

Even a U.S. Senate subcommittee has held hearings about the antibiotic.

Dr. Paul F. Wehrle, noted pediatrician affiliated with USC Medical School, explains the problem:

"A continuing aggressive advertising and detailing program, suggesting that the physician can trust this drug ... has continued to perpetuate the habit ... of prescribing this drug for both major and minor problems."

Dr. Wehrle says a study indicates the drug kills one of every 20,000 persons who take it. He said newer drugs have equalled or surpassed chloramphenicol in effectiveness against most of the infections for which it has been used.

Says Dr. Wehrle:

"The continued widespread use of chloramphenicol, often for what are apparently minor illnesses or illnesses for which another drug is of at least equal or greater effectiveness, is difficult to understand in view of the mounting evidence of serious toxicity."

At present, the only clear indications for use of the compound appear to be in typhoid fever and severe salmonellosis.

One manufacturer says this, among other warnings, in instructions for use:

"It must not be used in the treatment of trivial infections or where it is not indicated, as in colds, influenza, infections of the throat; or as a prophylactic agent to prevent bacterial infections."

Two British doctors recommend use of the antibiotic tetracyline in the treatment of severe cases of acne.

Drs. Peter Lane and Donald M. Williams, reporting in the British Medical Journal, say patients who took tetracycline tablets showed 75 per cent improvement after three months. Acne victims who got dummy pills showed only 33 per cent improvement.

The finding is based on a study of 51 patients treated in the General Infirmary at Leeds.

Remember when freezing the stomach was the "in" procedure for treatment of ulcer of the duodenum, the first portion of the small intestine?

The procedure, you may recall, was introduced in 1962 and for several years attracted widespread enthusiasm and publicity.

Then, studies began to indicate stomach freezing might not be such a good idea.

A new study, conducted at Duke University Medical Center, finds the procedure is of no value whatsoever and may even be harmful. One risk: Those who undergo freezing may later have more bleeding episodes.

The study shows patients who got conventional ulcer treatment fared far better than those who underwent the freezing procedure.

L-Dopa, the new wonder drug for Parkinson's disease (shaking palsy), is reported so effective in some patients that unexpected results can occur.

Dr. Arnold Sadwin of Graduate Hospital, University of Pennsylvania, tells of a patient whose self-winding wrist watch stopped. Reason: The drug was so effective it brought about a markedly diminished tremor of the left arm. The tremor had been keeping the watch going, Dr. Sadwin explains in the New England Journal of Medicine. ■

The bug detector

It's our newest addition. An electronic diagnostic center built specially for Volkswagens. Now we can check out your VW from bumper to bumper for only $10.95.

In 12 minutes, we can run 94 separate tests on your car, including a complete road test on our "dyno" (those rollers the wheels are on). The dyno lets us simulate actual road conditions at 30 mph, 50 mph, and at 70 mph on the level and up a hill.

So if your Volkswagen is making one of those funny noises that quiets down every time you bring it near a mechanic, bring your Volkswagen to our Bug Detector.

If there's anything wrong mechanically or electrically, the Bug Detector will spot it. You'll know exactly what the problem is and how much it's going to cost before you spend a nickel on repair work.

Bring your VW by, next chance you get. By the time the Bug Detector is through, you'll know more about your car than you do about your wife.

Bake a Batch of Chewy Almond Bars

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Home Economics Editor

Chewy Almond Bars are as quick and easy to make as any cooky you are likely to encounter. And are they ever delicious!

Crushed graham crackers take the place of flour in this recipe. Once you've pulverized the crackers with your rolling pin, you simply mix the crumbs with roasted diced almonds, sweetened condensed milk, butter, semi-sweet chocolate pieces and salt. A touch of mace may be added, if you like. Turn the misture into a greased pan and bake for about half an hour. That's all there is to it, except for cutting into bars.

You can buy diced almonds already roasted in many stores. If you should not find them where you shop, make your own by spreading coarsely diced almonds in a single layer in a pan lightly coated with butter, margarine, peanut oil or corn oil. Roast at 400 degrees for 5 minutes, shaking the pan 2 or 3 times so that the almonds will brown evenly.

Chewy Almond Bars

18 graham crackers
¾ cup diced almonds, roasted
1 can (15-oz.) sweetened condensed milk
¼ cup melted butter or margarine
½ cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon mace (optional)

Crush graham crackers very fine with a rolling pin. In a large bowl combine crumbs with remaining ingredients; mix well. Turn into well-greased 8-inch square pan. Bake at 350 degrees 30 to 35 minutes. Cool in pan 5 minutes. Cut into 2x1½-inch bars. Remove from pan immediately and cool completely on rack. Store in tightly covered container. Makes 20 bars.

Recipe of the Week

Mrs. Doll O'Hearn, 112 W. Broadway, Columbia, Mo., is this week's winner of the $5 prize.

WILD RICE CASSEROLE

1 tsp. salt
1 pkg. long grain wild rice
8 slices American cheese, grated
2 med. onions diced
1 lg. green pepper, chopped
1 4½-oz. can mushrooms, stems and pieces
1 cup half and half cream
1 cube butter

Cook rice according to directions on package adding 1 teaspoon of salt. Saute onions, peppers and mushrooms in 1 stick butter. Mix all together, reserving enough cheese for top of casserole. Put ingredients in large casserole, top with cheese and pour over half and half and bake in 400° oven for 30 minutes. Serves 8 to 10.

GOURMET GUIDE by Tedd Thomey

NOT SO LONG ago, a friend of mine – whose opinion I value – expressed this thought: "I dislike waiters who hover. I do wish they wouldn't stay so close to my table. I like a bit of privacy while dining."

A day or so later, another friend complained to me about the inadequacies of some of the waiters he'd encountered, saying: "I wish they'd stay closer to my table. I don't like waiters who disappear for a long time after taking my order."

BERNIE MOSKALENKO

Caricature by Larry LaVoie

Those points of view reveal how people's ideas of good service vary. Some prefer extremely attentive service; others want a minimum of contact. A really good waiter understands this. Within moments after greeting his patrons, he senses – without being told – exactly what kind of service they will prefer.

The waiters at Anderson's Tally Ho, 5829 Lakewood Blvd., Lakewood, are prize examples of proper conduct. Most of them were trained in Europe and have spent much of their lives in restaurant work, which they enjoy. Their graciousness and alertness make dining at this old-English style restaurant extremely pleasurable.

The Tally Ho's staff is headed by manager Bernie Moskalenko, a tall, soft-spoken man who was born in the Ukraine. Bernie is a former waiter who knows how to keep a restaurant ticking night and day like a treasured watch. He and executive chef Paul Revilla combine their talents to offer luncheons and dinners of the highest quality.

RALPH BELLAMY ... movie vet who's gone commercial

DIAHANN CARROLL ... she's traveled long way from NY subway

OMAR SHARIF ... he's yellowed from too much bridge

Q. I know Ralph Bellamy does commercials and turns up repeatedly on old TV movies. But is he otherwise retired? — Bill Reid, Columbus, O.

A. Don't underestimate the financial rewards of TV commercials. They can be staggering. Ralph's not retired. His emoting will enliven ABC-TV's new fall series, "The Survivors," pegged on Harold Robbins' bestseller.

Q. Didn't Diahann Carroll once have operatic ambitions? And wasn't her father a New York subway conductor? — J.S., Birmingham.

A. Yes to both questions. TV's "Julia" won a Met Opera scholarship when she was only 10 years old but said at the time she'd rather become roller-skating champion of the world. Despite her $ucce$$, independent Papa Johnson (Diahann's family name) continued to ride the underground rails.

Q. Does Howard Hughes lease out the casinos in his Las Vegas hotels? — H.B. Atkins, Long Beach, Calif.

A. All five of the zillionaire's gambling salons (or saloons) are operated by the management of the Howard Hughes Resort Hotels. No outside interests are invited.

Q. Is Omar Sharif suffering from jaundice? And does he plan to retire soon? — C.B., Staten Island, N.Y.

A. It's curious but Sharif's not yellow from jaundice. He calls his sallow complexion "bridge pallor," a result of ducking the sun constantly to play his favorite game. He recently started filming "The Last Valley" in Innsbruck, Austria. And since he's signed film commitments into 1973, I don't think Omar is about to fold his tent.

Do you have a question about your favorite famous personality? Send your questions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That," care of this newspaper, Post Office Box 2505, New York, N.Y. 10017. Mr. Gardner will answer as many questions as he can in his column. Volume of mail makes personal replies impossible.

How you play the game . . .

That's what makes the difference between an amateur and a pro. A professional . . .

Whether he performs on the playing field, in the sales room or in the repair shop, has an attitude of pride and commitment with regard to his work. He is motivated to make the extra work it takes to win.

At Pacific Ford we always play to win . . . and we've done it with 5 consecutive Distinguished Achievement Awards from Ford Motor Company . . . You be the judge!

FORD Distinguished Achievement AWARD

Ford Motor Company has honored
PACIFIC AUTO SALES INC. with the FORD DEALER
Distinguished Achievement AWARD in recognition of Progressive management . . .
Modern sales and service facilities . . .
Sound merchandising practices . . .
High quality standards . . .
Continuing interest in rendering superior service to Ford owners during the year 1968

PACIFIC FORD AUTO SALES INC.

Distinguished Achievement

The Distinguished Achievement Award is the highest honor which Ford Division bestows upon its dealers for maintaining high standards in dealership management, merchandising practices, service to customers and in dealership facilities. It is a pleasure for us to extend heartiest congratulations for your outstanding accomplishment in qualifying for this Award for the year 1968.

We are proud of your accomplishment and confidently expect you to earn distinction in future years by maintaining the high standards of dealership operation which the Award represents. Best wishes for your success!

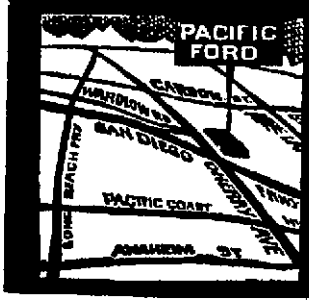

Dependable Transportation at the Lowest Price

That's what you'll find at Pacific Ford's transportation used car lot. We keep a carefully selected group of automobiles that are realistically priced from $99.00 to $995.00. These are fine for getting to and from work, and fitting in as the "second car" for your family. Last chance all year at 1990 E. Carson Street, Long Beach.

Pacific Ford's Management and Personnel Say "Thank You" to the Public

We wish to extend our sincere thanks and grateful appreciation to our thousands of satisfied customers who have made this dealership a success. Your response to our way of doing business is an endorsement we're proud of. We shall continue to exert every effort to please you during this new year of 1970. All of us look forward to meeting you in person and being of service in any manner you desire. Make your visit as soon as possible, won't you?

ANSWER TO TODAY'S PUZZLE

TEENS IN ACTION

The highway looks different from the side of the road. You can't see where you're going, but you get to know the pavement pretty well.

And the people. Matrons in Buicks never slowing down; a VW loaded with luggage and a young couple who stop anyway; trucks in the night. Edward Meisse, 18, of 1020 Mira Mar Ave., thumbed his way through three states this summer, joining the season's great migration of hitchhiking youths, bedrolls on their backs, bent on meeting new people, seeing new parts of the country.

Thumbing with a friend day and night, Ed reached Phoenix in 12 rides and 24 hours—"really good luck"—then traveled into Nevada and back to California where he started out for the Big Sur country.

His views:

—My three weeks started with $10 and a friend who likes to stop every few minutes and eat. That was a bummer—I'm the type to travel straight through. But it wasn't his fault we didn't make Big Sur. Coast Highway and other main routes are lined with hitchhikers all the way to San Francisco. We had to turn back just north of Santa Barbara, but we met more people on that stretch of road than in the other two states.

—Everyone develops his own hitchhiking technique. Some guys use a girl as a decoy and when a driver stops to pick her up, he joins her. My own style was to look cheerful and energetic. Some guys look like corpses, but I would smile and playfully jump out into the road. It worked a lot of the time.

—Girls and hairy people are the best chances. Almost always we rode with girls and hairy people. Sometimes truckers, but only at night. Drunks of all kinds were good too, but I was a little nervous with them driving even though they were really friendly. I got so I could sort of sense if a car coming down the road would pick me up. I didn't mind being passed up, but I didn't like the wiseguys who would pretend to offer a ride, then speed up.

—A guy with a girl has a good chance of getting a lift. Two guys have it a little worse, but three guys have about no chance at all.

—The low point was in Blythe. No one smiles in Blythe. We stood in Blythe for five hours before we got a ride, and then it was a guy from Arizona. The police suggested we leave the city limits. It was 112 degrees hot. It was the low point.

—Police didn't hassle us most of the time, though. Highway Patrol cars wouldn't pay any attention to us in the day, and sometimes would stop at night to see if we were runaways. "When did you last eat a good breakfast?" the cop would ask.

—We tried to avoid sleeping out at night, but had to a few times. It was cool and pleasant in the desert. We didn't even have to use our sleeping bags. Under a bridge in Riverside looked like a good spot, but we discovered we were on a hay truck route. It was like sleeping under a volcano.

—You meet people who like to talk — about themselves and about you. You meet people with ideas, hopes, adventures like yours, and you learn that everyone wants the chance to be helpful and unselfish. I didn't meet anyone who wished us harm. There's sort of a bond between hitchhikers — they are what is known. The drivers are the unknown, but they're people, too.

—I'm thinking about hitchhiking around the country next summer, and maybe writing about it. You learn to be thoughtful, open and cool. Don't worry about other people's prophecies: anything might happen, so be ready to accept it. ■

Bing Crosby opens the Hollywood Palace Seventh Season at 9:30 p.m., Saturday, Ch. 7

. . . I hope we said it well . . .

"What attracted me to the script?" mused Arthur Kennedy. "All the things that an actor looks for. The theme — which I consider moving and vitally important — the fierce independence, the earthiness, the pride, the relationship of father and son, and love of family in the man that I play."

Kennedy was discussing his role as Rome Harper in Earl Hamner's "Appalachian Autumn," the season's opening "CBS Playhouse" production in which he stars with Teresa Wright at 9:30 p.m., Tuesday, Ch. 2.

"I think the play, in its own unique way, throws a light on a big problem in our country — Appalachia itself," the actor commented. "These are people, like Rome Harper, who suffer in silence. It's poverty without protest, and there are millions of them."

KENNEDY NOTED that before beginning rehearsal all the cast members saw a documentary titled "Appalachia: Rich Land, Poor People" to give them a frame of reference for the people they were going to portray.

As fiercely independent as the character he plays, Kennedy is noted for the strength of his various roles.

On the Broadway stage, one need but mention three of Arthur Miller's most illustrious plays — "All My Sons," "Death of a Salesman" and "The Crucible." Kennedy was in the original cast of all three.

THE ACTOR'S film roles, for which he has received five nominations for an Academy Award, reflect the same gift of powerful characterization that has distinguished his stage portrayals.

Returning again to "Appalachian Autumn," Kennedy summed up his feelings quite simply:

"I loved the script. It has something to say. And I hope we've said it well."

Some TV Birds Fly Home

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

The television birds who flew the coop for movies are flapping back to their small tube nets, molting dispiritedly en route.

CBS-TV has announced that Mary Tyler Moore, Andy Griffith and Dick Van Dyke will all be back on the air with new shows within the next two years. Vince Edwards is returning, too.

Can Don Knotts, Patty Duke, Dick Chamberlain, Richard Crenna, Troy Donahue, Barbara Parkins, Inger Stevens and a hundred others be far behind?

THE ABYSS between television stardom and movie stardom is as great as that between the Albert Einsteins and the Jukes.

The differences are these: money, image, self-esteem, social standing, international recognition, time, freedom, independence, material and, like it or not, talent.

The American public simply will not pay money to see someone or something it has watched for years at no charge.

THE CASE against the television series star attempting to become a motion picture star is almost airtight. It won't work when the video actor becomes too closely associated with a single role over a long period of time.

Mia Farrow and Steve McQueen are two exceptions. Mia wasn't identified with "Peyton Place" long enough to destroy her larger goals.

McQueen bailed out of "WAnted, Dead Or Alive" before he became a weekly viewing habit. Jim Garner is another escapee, but he also got out early in the going.

DICK VAN DYKE and Mary Tyler Moore, shown with Emmys won in 1966 as best actor and actress in a comedy series. They left TV but will be back in new shows.

I'M ONE of many people who didn't even turn Bob Hope on. I read the papers during that hour. I enjoyed "The New People." We haven't watched "Gunsmoke" or "Lucy" or, for that matter, "The Beverly Hillbillies" in years.

We only watched the first 15 minutes of "Laugh In" in order to see "The New People."

I'm sure we are not the only family that shuts the color TV off many, many times. We couldn't stand "Hee Haw," either. But we watched "The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour" Sept. 24 and enjoyed it.

What does this make us?

Mrs. J. Ciborowski,
Wilmington
(Television critics?)

COULD YOU tell me who did the singing of the song in the recent "Ironside" having to do with Eve and her niece who was involved with drugs. The singer sounded much like Julie Driscoll, but I couldn't tell for sure.

S. B.,
Long Beach

(NBC says the singer was Betty Jane Baker; the song, "The Melody Man," by Dick McClelland and Billy Goldenberg. It is available on Decca).

THE HEADLINE in today's (9/24) Press-Telegram read "TV Violence Appalls Probers." It went on to read that the fall schedule "seems to indicate the beginning of a favorable trend toward less violent programs."

In reality, the fall schedule is laced with trivia and senselessness for the most part. There are no new shows which could be called controversial. There are so few shows which I consider worth watching any more that the tubes in my set are growing thin from lack of voltage.

Inventive shows like "The Wild Wild West" and "The Smothers Brothers," are off. Fictional documentaries like "The Untouchables," and "Garrison's Gorrilas" are off. What's left are shows which are so much alike that after two in a row one can't remember what the first one was about.

Why don't the people who want to control my enjoyment in life from smoking to watch television—why don't these people realize that I am entitled to a choice; if violence on TV is my cup of tea, please good people, don't take out the lemon that gives it life and then put in so much sugar that it turns sour.

Allen Katz,
Long Beach

SEVERAL YEARS ago I saw a pretty good western called "Duel at Diablo," starring James Garner and Sidney Poitier.

Tonight (9/29) I had the misfortune to see the television version which more or less butchered the entire film. Because of several scenes cut from the film, the plot line was lost and impact hidden from the viewers' eyes.

NBC, ABC and CBS have been promising us many high class recent pictures for their television seasons, but it's disturbing to see the soul removed from this film and others because of time limits and childish censorship.

William Michaels,
Long Beach

LOOKING THROUGH "TeleVues," I noticed that two of the afternoon programs I usually watch after housework and before school's out, namely "The Match Game" and "PDQ," are not listed. Nothing was said on either show Friday to indicate they would not return Monday. What has happened?

R.F.,
Westminster

(Television stations don't normally note the "departure" of shows dropped for various reasons -- primarily failure to attract as many viewers as hoped for. They prefer to dwell more on the shows that will replace them for obvious reasons. TeleVue's Sept. 21 issue noted the last airing of these and other shows in the Friday log listings).

'Little David' of the Networks

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press International

The Goliaths of American television — the three commercial networks — have completed the launching of the new season and are locked in their annual battle for the ratings on which their vast revenues depend.

Now comes the turn of Little David. On Sunday night the public Television Network, or NET as it initials itself from its name, National Educational Television, opens its 16th season.

NET has neither the finance nor the manpower to join in the ratings fray nor, in fact, is it in competition with the Giants. It was founded as a nonprofit, noncommercial organization to provide educational and cultural programs to independent stations.

And this, perhaps, is just as well for NBC, CBS and ABC for again this year Little David has a few powerful programs in its slingshot. One of them is "The Forsyte Saga," a British production of the John Galsworth epic, in 26 one-hour chapters, debuting at 8 p.m., Sunday, Ch. 28. British critics lauded it as one of the few masterpieces of the medium and it headed the ratings there on both its first and second runs.

BUT DESPITE the most ambitious autumn schedule in its history and its first season of transmitting to its 165 stations on its own lines (it could only afford to mail the tapes of its shows until this year) the serious problem of finance clouds the future of public broadcasting. The Ford Foundation has been the major source of its $8 million a year budget from the beginning.

"But now," said a spokesman, "it is trying to phase out and we are at a critical juncture. Congress passed the Public Broadcasting Act late in 1967 and the House authorized $20 million to help in programming and facilities. But President Nixon has asked for only $10 million.

"His interest in public television is not enormous," the spokesman said.

A second threat is the tax reform bill now before the Senate Finance Committee which prohibits foundations from engaging in any activity intended to influence public opinion—and practically anything on television can be so construed.

"If passed this would put us out of business," said the NET spokesman.

NET STATIONS receive two hours of net work programming a night, five nights a week from Sunday through Thursday. At other times they transmit local programs. The stations fall into three categories — community stations supported by public money, stations connected to state or local schools and stations mainly operated by state universities.

"We know there are other priorities for federal money," the spokesman said. "The war and the cities put public TV very low on the list. But since our basic problem is lack of a permanent system of finance we give that lots of thought.

"There are two schools on how this could be done. One believes in a license for each TV set as in England (where set owners pay $14.40 a year), the other in an annual appropriation from Congress," though some fear there might be strings attached to this."

Executives of NET are frank about its weaknesses. Tiny audiences, the stodgy image of the network — "professors behind the cameras" — the fact it has never been able financially to give its best programs the promotion they deserve, its inability to create stars.

"The commercial networks do a superb job of presenting the news and there's no point in our trying to compete there even if we could afford to," the spokesman said. "Our task is to interpret major issues to the public and move them to action — urban blight, conservation, the Vietnam War. We also carry consumer reports on products naming brand names. It's very hard-hitting.

"Our other missions is to experiment — not to copy the networks. We experiment with all kinds of electronic tricks. We try to do something with and for the medium. We're not committed to a large audience, you see. We would like it and we go after it but it's not essential.

"BUT WE must develop personalities and we must involve youth. By and large teen-agers have come to prefer the movies to TV. Our only two personalities at the moment are Julia Child, the French chef, and Fred Rogers, a minister and child psychologist who runs the 'Misterogers Neighborhood' shows for children. Many authorities consider it the first show that's popular with kids and good for them."

Balancing the shortcomings somewhat is the increasing strength of the programming such as the lineup for the fall — drama, ballets, jazz, opera, documentaries and a program of short film essays on life in America by conservative William F. Buckley.

NET Playhouse, the only weekly network drama, and winner of Emmy and Peabody awards, goes into its fourth year, still specializing in American regional theatre. The first production, "Glory Hallelujah," will originate in the San Francisco station, KQED, Oct. 30, and air on Ch. 28 at 8:30 p.m.

ANOTHER drama series, titled "On Being Black," consists of ten one-hour plays by, for and about blacks on the general theme of what it's like being black in white America. It premiered Saturday on Ch. 28 and airs at 8 p.m. weekly.

Singer Peggy Lee will star in a documentary showing how she prepares her night club act, at 9 p.m., Oct. 14. "The Advocates" is what the network calls "a live experiment in participation democracy." Viewers will be encouraged to take part in studio debates by telephoning in their comments. The show debuts at 7 p.m., Sunday on the topic: "Should Smog-Plagued California Outlaw Autos?"

From Here to the 70s

TV TAB SUN slub (70s) set 19.9 picas . . . .

The United States now and how things might be in the next decade is explored in a 2½-hour special, "From Here to the 70s," at 8:30 p.m., Tuesday, Ch. 4.

Aline Saarinen (top photo), NBC News correspondent will report on hunger and overpopulation; John Chancellor (lower left) shown at the Berlin Wall, will discuss interests abroad and Elie Abel, filmed in Tokyo, will talk about the U.S. and parts of the world in which it is not actively involved. Paul Newman is narrator.

DRAMA FOCUSING on the conflict between parents (Gene Blakely and Carol Teitel) and their son (John Youngs) launches the season for "Directions" at 1 p.m., Sunday, Ch. 7.

'Directions' Season Opens

Communication Obstacles Dramatized

A drama about game-playing as a means of communication, "The Game, and How It Was Played Today," opens the 1969-70 season of "Directions," ABC News' religious-cultural series, at 1 p.m. Sunday, Ch. 7.

"The Game, and How It Was Played Today" exposes the intangible obstacles that can block channels of communication among members of an otherwise "normal" family group.

George Dinningham (Gene Blakely) is an extroverted businessman. He understands the clear-cut relationships of the business world but cannot cope with the diffidence and evasiveness of his teenage son.

Alice Dinningham (Carol Teitel), competent wife and homemaker, is also unable to overcome thier son's refusal or inability to communicate.

Clarence Dinningham (John Young) is introverted and quietly rebellious. He is given to monosyllables, shrugs and sulking.

THE DINNINGHAM family is not without love. Each member appears to share a genuine affection for the other. Their failure to communicate would seem to stem more from a failure to comprehend those things about which they might communicate.

To break down the barriers, all three participate in a game situation, a fantasy which bypasses routine perspective and allows them to verbalize their feelings and concerns. Under the pretense of leaving to play a game of basketball, Clarence initiates the game they play, and which they evidently have played on previous occasions.

LIKE SALESMEN who constantly badger George with their pitches, Clarence must resort to subterfuges to reenter his home and begin the game. Only then, in the role of a census-taker, is he able to engage in a meaningful dialogue.

Clarence now can probe his parents' true attitudes toward him and reveal to them his own personal concerns, such as "sex, and school and the world" and what he is going to do.

"The Game, How It Was Played Today" is a presentation of ABC News in association with the Southern Baptist Convention. The program was written by Gene McKinney and directed by Robert DeLaney.

WAYNE NEWTON joins two-thirds of the team of Hines, Hines & Dad on Music Hall, at 9 p.m., Wednesday, Ch. 4.

Some TV Birds Return Home

fors, the smart ones play guest shots to avoid unemployment, all the while seeking roles in movies. Once they are established as feature film performers they are safe from stardom in a television series.

NOT THAT television is all that unremunerative.

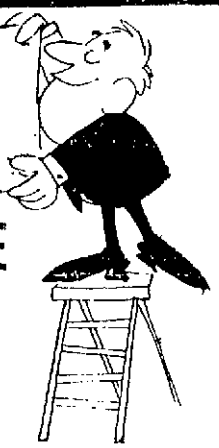

Such series stars as Lucille Ball, Danny Thomas, Jim Arness, Raymond Burr, Jackie Gleason and Lorne Greene have become millionaires.

But there is something built into the ego of an actor that makes him feel better knowing his audience has taken the pains of getting out of the house and plunking down his money to see him perform.

The trouble with Van Dyke and the others is the public took no pains.

DEAN MARTIN (4), 10 p.m.—Two competitors for tonight's 7:30 p.m. viewers come face-to-face with each other, when Fess Parker doffs his Daniel Boone togs for song and comedy with Dino, and Charles Nelson Reilly gets away from Mrs. Muir's ghost to offer a comedy sketch about a reluctant fireman who'd rather tell jokes than light fires. Other guests include Barbara Feldon, Jennifer, and Dino, Desi and Billy. (This is the first of six appearances with Martin set for Reilly.)

Ed Sullivan Show, premiered Sept. 28, Ch. 2.

The dean of television variety shows started its 22nd season last Sunday night as the dean of television variety hosts celebrated his 67th birthday.

Both looked in pretty good shape. The vaudeville format of "The Ed Sullivan Show" hasn't really changed much since 1947, but the entertainment now has "production values" where once there was a bare stage and a curtain.

Sullivan had a really big show for the double occasion — Tony Bennett and the Temptations singing, Red Skelton in a drunk sketch, and a taped of Barbra Streisand singing "Hello, Dolly" songs before a Las Vegas night club audience.

—Cynthia Lowry, AP

DURANTE - LENNON SISTERS, premiered Sept. 26, Ch. 7.

The new Jimmy Durante-Lennon Sisters variety series is what is known in the trade as a soft show. What it meant by this is that it doesn't have oomph, "t," pizzazz — stuff like that there. Like many a good Las Vegas lounge act, its status is shaky simply because it doesn't come on strong enough to take on the hardbolled competition.

The Lennon Sisters are clean, wholesome, pretty rather than sexy, and sing on key so that you can understand every word of their songs. For today's market, they will somehow have to find a way to overcome all these drawbacks.

They really sing very pleasantly, but they just don't have the sock to carry a show. And good old Durante isn't enough any more — at his advanced age — to carry it all off himself, though, as usual, he gives it all he's got and has his moments.

Jack Benny helped out on the premiere, and Noel Harrison, as always, contributed a nice bit of singing and relaxation. The tip-off to the headache the show faces is that the sisters seemed most relaxed with another guest, Jimmy Dean. At any rate, this is one series where the visiting talent must carry the stars.

—Rick DuBrow, UPI

GAME SHOWS, NEW SERIES, aired Monday, Ch. 4.

"Sale of the Century" is standard quiz show stuff interrupted occasionally to permit the studio contestants to use their winnings to buy such items as $375 worth of steaks for $8.95 or an electric organ worth $625 for $23.95.

"Name Droppers" has one person claiming an association with each of three celebrity guests while an audience jury guesses which story is true.

"Letters to Laugh-In" consists of reading jokes — mostly old and dreadful — sent in by viewers. They are graded by a laugh meter.

"Bright Promise," the serial, is set in a coed college. The first episode had the college president and the dean of women worrying about dropouts and the new freedoms.

Goldie Hawn: Last Season on 'Laugh-In'

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associated Press

Rubbery-faced, giggly Goldie Hawn, the smart blonde who only acts dumb on television's "Laugh-In," leaves the show after this season for a career in movies.

This summer she did one film, "Cactus Flower," with Ingrid Bergman and Walter Matthau, and found it "a very exciting experience."

She's set for a second for producer Mike Frankovich, "There's a Girl in My Soup," and producer Billy Wilder is scheduled to write another for her, as he did for Marilyn Monroe with "Some Like It Hot."

SOME OBSERVERS predict, indeed, that Goldie will become as big a star as the late Marilyn.

One is Goldie's agent-partner, Art Simon, who discovered her dancing in the chorus on an Andy Griffith television special three years ago. He and Miss Hawn have formed a company that will produce two Goldie specials for NBC and eventually, they hope, movies.

Simon says Goldie is leaving "Laugh-In" because "in the framework of the show, I don't think she has had the opportunity to present the talent she really has."

But Goldie is grateful for her three seasons on "Laugh-In," an "enormous thing that really shot off my career."

Around the show's stage, she's known as cooperative and unaffected. Producer Paul W. Keyes says her leaving is "like losing your right arm. She's going to be a big star."

GOLDIE
Another Monroe?

THE SHAPELY Goldie, 5 feet 6 and 114 pounds, is 23. She was born in Washington, D.C., where her father, Rutledge Hawn, is a musician in society orchestras. He is also a descendent of Edward Rutledge of South Carolina, youngest signer of the Declaration of Independence.

At 3, Goldie started ballet and at 10 performed with the Ballet Russe. Later she ran a dancing school for 150 youngsters in Washington and still later was a go-go dancer — clothed — at "fine clubs" while living with four other girls in a tiny Manhattan apartment.

Go-go is the same kind of wild gyration performed by "Laugh-In's" kookie comediennes. Goldie asked the producers to excuse her from that this year — "I didn't like to see myself up there dancing; I thought it was tasteless" — and they complied.

MISS HAWN launches her movie career married — this summer — to a film director, Gus Trikonis, 30, who soon starts a film in Germany. Goldie describes him as not as outgoing as herself but full of fun.

At their "nice little house in Studio City," she takes care of the roses, cooks and cleans on weekends and rests up for the next week's shooting. She and Trikonis have no immediate plans for a movie together.

Where would she like to be 10 years from now?

"Alive, happy, and no place special."

SPORTS TODAY

WORLD SERIES, 10 or 11 a.m. (4), opens its best-of-seven contest at the park of the American League winner (the earlier hour if at Baltimore, later if Twins win) where that team faces the victor in the National League's Mets-Braves series.

NHL HOCKEY, 5 p.m. (5), finds Jiggs McDonald and Dan Avey at the Montreal Forum where the Kings face the defending Stanley Cup champion Canadiens in the first of station's 15 NHL telecasts.

NCAA FOOTBALL, 1:15 p.m. (7), has Chris Schenkel, Bill Flemming and Bud Wilkinson at Dallas where Texas is host to Oklahoma. (Next week, it's Cal at UCLA in another national telecast.)

ABC's WIDE WORLD of Sports, 5 p.m. (7), has Jim McKay at Munich for the world table tennis championships, with Keith Jackson repeating segments on the national air races (Reno) and the Duke Kahanamoku Hawaiian Big Wave surfing championships (Sunset Beach, Oahu). Next week, expanded and earlier-slotted show brings Lew Alcindor's first NBA game, as the Bucks face the Pistons.

SPECIAL

SOUND & The Scene (11), 7 p.m. — Bobbie Gentry, Don Meredith and Charlie Pride are co-hosts for an hour of comedy and music — combining pop and country-flavored sounds — with Brenda Lee, Joe Tex, Ferlin Husky and the Fuller Brothers. It's the singing debut for the former Cowboys quarterback (Meredith), with show repeating Sunday, Oct. 19.

HOLLYWOOD PALACE (7), 9:30 p.m. — 6th season premiere. Bing Crosby again hosts the season opener, today welcoming Engelbert Humperdinck, Gwen Verdon, Bobbie Gentry, Dick Shawn, the Rodriguez Brothers (high wire act) and the Sweetwater rock group, with Nick Perito taking over from the late Mitchell Ayres as musical director. Bing and Bobbie team for "Put a Little Love in Your Heart," with all joining for a Beatles medley.

Dan Dailey: Not Cynical or Anxious

United Press International

Dan Dailey sat on the set of his new television series more interested in lunch than the rehearsal.

He has been around movies and television long enough to know there are few surprises and almost no pleasant surprises. He is heavier than he was a few years ago, his face redder, his hair thinner.

While Dailey may not be cynical, neither is he panting over public reception of his new show. "The Governor And J.J."

OF THE recent bubbub created by Debbie Reynolds objecting to her cigaret sponsor, Dailey groaned, "We have a cigarette sponsor and I'd quit if we didn't have a tobacco company picking up the tab.

"We get all our cigarets for free this way. And I smoke about a pack a day."

DAN DAILEY

HE IS A veteran of 50 motion pictures, at least half of them "B" epics made on the back lot at MGM.

"I made two pictures in 15 days before World War II," Dailey said with little fondness for the past. "In one of them, my co-stars were Andy Devine and Len Carillo. The other was a musical co-starring Donald O'Connor, Peggy Ryan and The Andrew Sisters."

Dailey shuddered and jerked his thumb at the door of his dressing room. It read:

"I'm number 3. I don't try at all.

"I'm doing the show because they aren't making as many movies as they used to. They wouldn't want me in the kind of pictures they make today anyhow because I don't look good in the nude.

"Fifteen or 20 years ago I had a good build and I might have been a nude star. But not today."

IN THE CBS series Daily plays Gov. William Drinkwater. The J.J. of the title is his teen-aged daughter. The show is predicated on laughs gleaned from the generation gap.

"I can't tell if the show will be a hit or a miss," he said without enthusiasm. "I'm no judge. Some shows that have been on the air for five years I'd have said wouldn't last five minutes.

"But then I don't spend much time watching television. I live at Malibu and I'd rather look at the ocean."

Daily wasn't asked if he would look at his show also.

HOW WOMEN MAY CURB BLADDER "WEAKNESS"

After 21, twice as many women as men suffer from feeling old, tired, worn out and depressed by losing sleep and worrying about getting up nights, due to common irritation of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Tract. This condition, often due to a germ called the colon bacillus, and non-specific germs, may cause frequent, urgent, stong, cloudy and painful urination, and may result in secondary backache, headache, nervous tension and disturbed sleep. To combat such germ irritations, secondary pain, aches and nervous tension get CYSTEX from your druggist today. CYSTEX is the formula of a registered, licensed physician and is scientifically compounded to quickly release a soothing, mildly antiseptic bacteriostat in acid urine. CYSTEX also contains 2 quick-acting analgesic pain relievers. So by promoting more normal urination and relieving pain and tension you gain in calmness, comfort and relaxation.

WORLD WIDE SUCCESS

CYSTEX is now recommended and sold by registered, licensed druggists, chemists and pharmacists throughout the free world. To discover more comfortable, restful sleep and see how fast you can feel refreshed, get CYSTEX from your druggist today.

THE GREAT SUMMER WRAP-UP... FALLPAPER

Summer's almost gone. So 7UP®, The Uncola™, is offering you a great summer wrap-up. It's Fallpaper. 21 by 34 inch reproductions of the *un*credible Uncola billboards.

What do you do with Fallpaper? *Un*novate. Fallpaper is a tool, a means to your ends. You can cover books with Fallpaper. Use Fallpaper as pers*un*al stationery. Make kites, paper airplanes or even clothing.

You can use Fallpaper to line the bottom of a birdcage, wrap gifts, make confetti, make an *un*collage, or simply hang it as it is. Fallpaper gives you *un*limited, *un*restricted creative freedom.

So this year, order some Fallpaper from 7UP, The Uncola. And wrap-up the summer for real.

Please send me ( ) set(s) of Fallpaper at one dollar each. I understand that each set contains four different sheets of Fallpaper. I'm enclosing one dollar and six liners from 7UP bottle caps (DO NOT MAIL METAL CAPS), or one dollar and the 7UP purchase seal from the bottom of a carton of 7UP cans or unreturnable bottles for each set of Fallpaper. Offer expires December 31, 1969.

AND THE PIRATES

GEORGE WUNDER

COME BACK! EVERYTHING IS OKAY! LOOK! I HAVE THE TAPE! DON'T LEAVE ME!

WITH HIS BROTHER UNCONSCIOUS, TERRY AND NIA OUT OF SIGHT IN THE DARK WATER, CARL HEARS THE TRAWLER'S LAUNCH DEPARTING.

CARL IS UNAWARE THAT, IN HIS STRUGGLE WITH JIMMIE, THE FALLEN KOUMBOLOIA BEADS HAVE LOOPED THEMSELVES AROUND HIS ANKLE.

AND NEARBY, IN THE FJORD...

WHU... JIMMIE?

SHHH! NO NOISE, NIA. I THINK THE SERGEANT'S JUST OUT COLD, BUT CARL WILL SHOOT AT ANY MOVEMENT!

WHILE, DRAWN BY THE PISTOL SHOTS, INSPECTOR VEGEN'S POLICE DETAIL, MOVES IN.

DROP YOUR GUN! YOU ARE UNDER ARREST!

NO! THE BOAT! MY FRIENDS! GOT TO...

HE WENT IN HERE... NO SIGN OF HIM!

THIS ONE IS IN NEED OF MEDICAL HELP. WHERE'S OUR DOCTOR?

OVER THERE! SOMETHING MOVED IN THE LIGHT!

DON'T SHOOT! IT'S ME, COLONEL LEE. I HAVE THE GIRL. WE'RE OKAY.

TO AVOID THE POLICE LIGHTS, CARL DIVES DEEP.

AND ON THE BOTTOM, A SUNKEN TREE STUMP SNAGS THE TRAILING KOUMBOLOIA BEADS!

WELL, IT LOOKS LIKE WE GOT GENERAL RUNAMOKA ON THE RUN, YOUR HIGHNESS! BUT I ADMIT... I'M AWFULLY WORRIED ABOUT ANNIE AND PRINCE MACADAMIA!

I, TOO! MY SON WAS NOT ADEPT AT MANEUVERING HIS BALLOON! I HAVE ALERTED MY ENTIRE NATION TO BE ON THE LOOKOUT FOR HIS CRAFT!

WE SHALL NOT BE THE ONLY ONES SEARCHING, SAHIB!

TRUE! GENERAL RUNAMOKA'LL HAVE HER SKY HOOKS OUT FOR THE KIDS!

EMPHASIZE TO KING BOOLA BOOLA, THAT HIS SON'S LIFE IS THE STAKE WE PLAY FOR... AND THE SAME IS TRUE OF WARBUCKS' DAUGHTER, ANNIE!

MY REPUTATION WILL INSURE THAT THEY TAKE THIS WARNING SERIOUSLY!

INFORM THESE GENTLEMEN THAT WE HAVE PLACED A SYMBOLIC NOOSE AROUND THE NECKS OF OUR "GUESTS"! SHOULD THE KING FALTER ... WE TIGHTEN THEM!!

YOU'RE SUPPOSED T' BE A PRINCE, MAC ... AND THAT MEANS YOU GOTTA HAVE MORE GUTS THAN US COMMON PEOPLE! SO... KNOCK OFF THE WHIMPERIN'!

I... I'M NOT WHIMPERING I... I'M JUST THINKING OUT LOUD!

FEAR NOT...

YOU WHIMPER SOMETHIN', MAC?

N-NO.... DIDN'T YOU??

GIVE ME A LIFT UP, MAC! SOUNDS T' ME LIKE THE VOICE CAME FROM OUTSIDE!

YOU NEED NOT SEEK ME! I WILL FIND YOU!

T-THERE IT COMES AGAIN ... AN' THIS TIME ... IT'S FROM ... FROM INSIDE HERE!!
